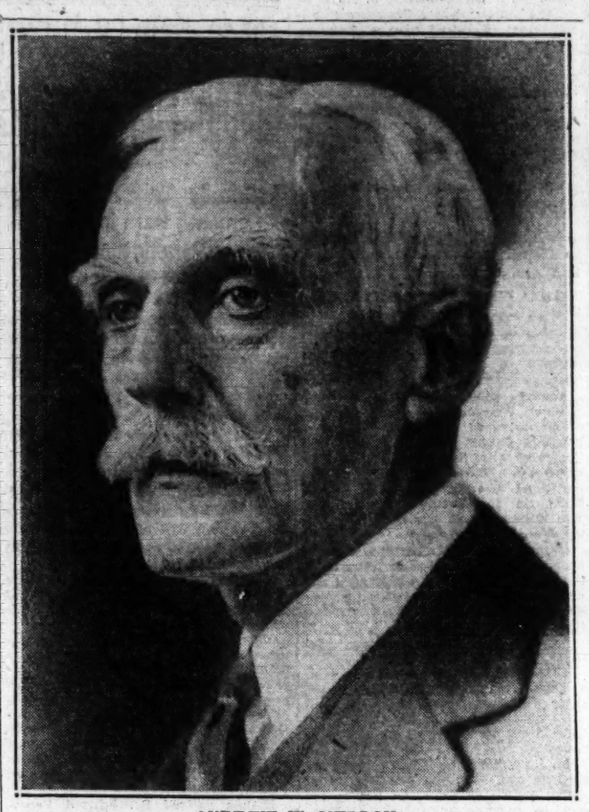
MELLON HAS ACCEPTED POST OF LONDON ENVOY, PRESIDENT ANNOUNCES

Secretary of Treasury Will Take Place of Gen. Dawes.

MILLS IS PROBABLE CABINET SUCCESSOR

Hoover Is Held Actuated by Impending Momentous Debt Negotiations.



ANDREW W. MELLON.

President's Statement On Selection of Mellon

President Hoover, announcing the selection of Secretary Mellon as Ambassador to London, issued the following statement:

The critical situation facing all countries in their international relations, the manifold economic and other problems demanding wise solution in our national interests, call for experience and judgment of the highest order. The importance to our country of the sound determin.tion of these world-wide difficulties needs no emphasis.

I have decided, therefore, to call upon one of our wisest and most experienced public servants to accept a position which will enable him, after many years of distinguished public service at home, to render equal service to his country in the foreign field.

I have asked Mr. Mellon to undertake the Ambassadorship to Great Britain. I am happy to say he has now expressed his willingness to serve.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

The long and colorful career of Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury was practically ended yesterday by the announcement that President Hoover had offered him the post of Ambassador to London and he had accepted.

In acknowledging he had the tender under consideration, Mr. Mellon revealed that his decision would be announced soon, and a few hours later President Hoover issued a statement saying the Secretary had accepted.

Diplomatic circles were unanimous that the great financier and statesman would be heartily welcomed at the Court of St. James.

Mills Probable Successor.

Close political advisers of the President consider it certain that Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills will be advanced to the Cabinet berth. As undersecretary during the last five years, Mr. Mills has been in intimate contact with Treasury affairs, and during the last two years has assumed an ever more important role in the day-to-day direction of policies and administration. The prospect of his appointment to Mr. Mellon's place was cordially received on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Anticipating momentous negotiations over the European war debts during the next year, President Hoover is understood to have undertaken some two weeks ago to persuade Secretary Mellon to take the keystone position in the United States' diplomatic service. The financial genius who reduced America's own war debt from $26,000,000,000 to $17,000,000,000 in ten years, and who directed the entire range of negotiations leading up to the debt settlements, is equipped as is perhaps no other man in the United States to deal with the pressing and complex economic and financial problems

Bennett Revamps Canadian Cabinet

Prime Minister Names 4 Men to Senate to Fill Vacancies

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—In a sweeping announcement of changes, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today reorganized the cabinet and filled four vacancies in the Senate, which convenes for the opening of Parliament tomorrow.

He handed over his portfolio as minister of finance to E. N. Rhodes, and named Alfred Duranleau, minister of marine, as acting minister of fisheries to succeed Mr. Rhodes, W. A. Gordon, minister of immigration and colonization, becomes also minister of labor and mines, Senator Gideon D. Robertson having resigned the labor portfolio on account of ill health.

Arthur Meighen, appointed senator and the conceded choice of Conservative senators as their leader in the upper chamber, enters the Bennett government as minister without portfolio.

SENATOR DAVIS GOES OVER TO WET CAUSE

Advocates Vote on Repeal and Modification Now in Changing Stand.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

United States Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, proclaimed himself a wet last night. In announcing his conversion—he was a dry in his last campaign—he went as far as any enemy of prohibition could ask him to go.

He advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment and pledged himself to vote for a resolution submitting a repeal amendment to the people in the States.

But in the meantime, Senator Davis said, the Volstead enforcement act should be modified so that the people could have beer and wine, not intoxicating in fact.

"My real desire," he said, "is to promote the cause of true temperance. * * * In the frugal homes of temperate and happy people, where I spent the days of my youth in Pennsylvania, there was on a family table a loaf of bread, a piece of cheese and a glass of beer."

By joining the wet ranks, Senator Davis is assured of the support of William S. Vare, Republican boss of Philadelphia, without whose aid he

CHEST TO CONTINUE DRIVE FOR $216,000

$2,384,913.98 Collected to Date Toward 1932 Quota of $2,601,000.

The Community Chest is short $216,000 of its quota of $2,601,000, but the drive will be continued until next Tuesday in an effort to make up this deficit and perhaps exceed it, it was announced last night at a final dinner of Chest workers at the Willard. The total up to date is $2,384,913.98. Additional subscriptions of $124,804.35 were announced last night.

Edward S. Colladay, general chairman of the Chest, who made this announcement, declared that if the quota is not reached by next Tuesday that intensive solicitation will continue until the money is obtained. A luncheon will be held at the Willard on Tuesday for final reports, but no further meetings will be held until that time.

The 3,000 workers present at last night's dinner, rose to their feet with affirmative exclamations when Mr. Colladay asked them if they were

Woman Injured as Car Of Attache Is in Crash

Lacerations to the scalp were suffered last night by Madeline Faulk, 45 years old, of the Shoreham Hotel, when the auto of Commander Frederico Monreal, Naval Attache at the Spanish Embassy, and a car operated by Dr. Augustus Maish, 55, a physician, of Hagerstown, Md., collided at First and East Capitol streets.

Senorita Caroline Monreal, daughter of the attache, escaped injury. Miss Faulk's injuries were treated at Emergency Hospital. Eight stitches were required to close the wounds.

Clark Griffith Commends Washington Essay Contest

Baseball Magnate Announces That Three of His Children Plan to Enter Competition; Many Applications Received for Booklet to Aid in Work.

Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, is another prominent Washingtonian who is solidly behind The Post's George Washington essay contest and he announced last night that three of his younger children plan to compete for the prizes.

"I'm one of George Washington's greatest admirers," said the baseball magnate, "and I rank him as the leading American of all time. The bicentennial celebration planned here should do a great deal to bring home to all what he did for our country and the idea of encouraging the youngsters to delve into history for essays on his life appeals to me."

So three of the young Griffiths are at work, boning up on George Washington and his times and it is safe to predict that Clark Griffith is going to know a great deal more about George Washington when the essays are ready. The question of whether George Washington really cut down the cherry tree or if he really threw a dollar across the Potomac will rank with the salary issue with his players in Clark Griffith's home until after March 14, when all the essays must be in the hands of the distinguished judges who have consented to serve in that capacity.

Application blanks poured in yesterday from contestants anxious to get the free Washington booklet which will be distributed until after Saturday of this week through the courtesy of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Essays were received yesterday from the following:

FEUD AND THEFT THEORIES HELD AS MAN IS SHOT

Victim Seriously Injured in Attack Off Sixteenth Street.

ROBBERY MOTIVE, COMPANION SAYS

Authorities Strongly Hint Underworld Row Cause of Shooting.

A man was shot and seriously wounded last night just off fashionable Sixteenth street. He is in Emergency Hospital with three bullets in his stomach and another in his leg. Physicians believe his condition is critical.

Police alternated between two theories on the shooting. They strongly hinted that an underworld feud was the background of the attempted slaying in which at least a dozen shots alarmed the fashionable neighborhood, but a companion of the wounded man told them he had been robbed by the gunmen of a diamond ring worth $3,100 and a stickpin valued at $1,500.

Shooting Is Described.

Henry Abraham, 30 years old, is the critically wounded man. His companion is William Poe Moses, 32 years old, of 1620 Buchanan street northwest.

It was Moses who described the shooting to police.

The pair drove up in front of Moses' house shortly after 6 o'clock last night, police were told. As soon as the car, bearing an unlettered license tag and driven by Abraham, pulled to a halt, three men stepped up and surrounded it. One man put his foot on the running board on the side where Abraham was sitting, according to Moses. The other two went to the other side of the car.

Before he had a chance to move, Moses is said to have told police, he was forced to hand over his jewelry by the two men who came up on his side of the car. The third man, who had gone to Abraham's side, opened fire. He shot four times, every bullet taking effect in his victim's body

Then Escaped in Coupe.

The trio then ran to a coupe parked on the opposite side of the street, evidently in charge of a fourth man, and the car started off at a high rate of speed, according to the story told police.

Moses said he got out of his own car as the men ran, drawing his pistol as he did so. He said he fired eight times at them. He told police he believed some of the bullets took effect, and police broadcast a lookout to hospitals asking them to be on a lookout for any one applying for treatment of bullet wounds.

Residents of the neighborhood told police the men who did the shooting evidently backfired the motor of their automobile in order to mask the sound of the shots. They expressed this belief from the number of reports heard.

After leaving the scene of the shooting the car bearing the gunmen

Writ Halts City's Paying Lobby Fee

Company Asks $2,000 for Guiding Harbor Bill Through Congress.

Oconto, Wis., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A restraining order today held efforts of the City of Oconto to pay $2,000 for services in guiding through Congress a bill to improve the Oconto harbor.

The city council, it was charged, negotiated with Cur-Fis Service, a Cleveland organization which makes harbor surveys, to present Oconto's case in Washington. S. Wallace Dempsey, of Washington, former member of Congress from New York, in proceedings here was named vice president of the Cur-Fis Service.

Improvement of the Octonto harbor had been disapproved by War Department engineers. Mayor Carl Riggins said he went to Washington to engage Dempsey and that it was arranged to pay Cur-Fis $2,000 and an equal sum to Dempsey. W. A. Holt, Oconto lumberman and former mayor, obtained a temporary injunction restraining the city from paying Dempsey.

MacDonald Recovering From Operation on Eye

London, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald went from a cabinet meeting to a nursing home today and underwent a delicate operation on one of his eyes, which was described as successful.

He was said to be doing "very nicely" tonight at the private Park Lane Nursing Home, where the operation was performed.

HOOVER PLEADS WITH NATION TO STOP HOARDING

War-Time Appeal Made for Returning Cash to Business.

PEOPLE HIDE BILLION, PRESIDENT DECLARES

Reconstruction Group Backs Call Upon Public to Aid Prosperity Revival.

(United Press.)

Every American citizen was summoned by President Hoover last night to enlist with war-time unity and courage in a patriotic fight against money hoarding.

A ringing call to arms in this fight was sounded in a statement from the White House, announcing that leaders of practically every important civic organization had been asked to a conference with him Saturday to start a national campaign against hoarders in every community.

More than $1,300,000,000 is in hiding, Mr. Hoover said. Every dollar of this, he explained, destroys $5 to $10 of business credit.

"Everyone hoarding currency injures not only his own prospects and those of his family, but is acting contrary to the common good," Mr. Hoover said. "It is to their own interest that they should return it to circulation, as well as a patriotic service to the country as a whole."

Appeal Is Nationwide.

Not since war time has the individual citizen been appealed to so strongly to enlist in a nationwide campaign. Unreasoning fear has caused many sound banks to fail, simply because depositors drew out their money to hide it. It has been one of the most stubborn and harmful factors in the depression.

There was no note of alarm in Mr. Hoover's appeal. On the contrary it was a calm summons on a patriotic basis for every citizen to do his bit as in war time.

It was an appeal to join hands with the Government's fight against depression, in a way in which the humblest worker can participate while the Reconstruction Finance Corporation uses its $2,000,000,000 in potential resources in a battle to break the tightened chains of credit, Mr. Hoover asks the average citizen to do his simple bit by taking his money out from under the mattress and putting it into the bank or into sound investment.

Statement Is Indorsed.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation issued a statement indorsing the appeal.

Success of this new effort would work in two directions—first, every dollar taken out of the family hiding place and put back in the bank instantly becomes available for loaning

Credit Agency Lauded By Governor of Oregon

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Praise for the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation plan as "a wonderful stroke" came today from Gov. Julius L. Meier, of Oregon, here on a visit.

He came here from Washington, where he conferred with Gen. Charles G. Dawes, head of the corporation, and other leaders. He declared the new project was functioning smoothly. He offered the good offices of Oregon to help along the return to prosperity.

2 Guardsmen Fall In Nicaragua Clash

Marine Sergeant Wounded in Skirmish With Sandinistas.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 3 (A.P.). Two members of the national guard were killed and a United States Marine sergeant slightly wounded in the course of two skirmishes near Matacalpa City yesterday, it became known today.

The clashes occurred on the Tuma River and involved a national guard patrol of 48 men under Sergt. C. T. Brannon and Second Lieut. M. A. Cramer. A group of Sandino followers was encountered and left four of their dead and two of their wounded at the scene of the encounter.

National guard headquarters reported that the patrol made contact with a group of 100 Sandinistas, fighting for two and a half hours before the enemy retreated. There was another skirmish of 30 minutes in the afternoon, after which the Sandinistas were dispersed.

JAPAN SEEKS DROPPING OF FIFTH PEACE POINT; BATTLE FLARES ANEW

DESTROYER'S SINKING DENIED BY JAPANESE

Americans Leaving Nanking; Shells Fall in Whangpoo Near U. S. Vessel.

(Associated Press.)

Japan will notify the United States, Britain, France and Italy today that she is unable to accept their proposals for Sino-Japanese peace as those proposals now are set forth.

It was indicated in Tokyo that the Japanese formal reply to the powers would be a series of countersuggestions.

Field guns and machine guns roared and rattled in a new battle at Shanghai today, with Japanese naval guns booming in the distance, as peace proposals submitted by the United States, Britain, France and Italy were found to be unacceptable to Japan.

A force of United States Marines, sent to strengthen the defense of the Interpational Settlement, was landed and took up posts.

It was indicated in Tokyo that the Japanese formal reply to the four powers' proposals for Sino-Japanese peace would be a series of countersuggestions.

Foreign Minister Yoshizawa announced that his government was unalterably opposed to neutral participation in Sino-Japanese negotiations regarding Manchuria, the groundwork for which was laid in one of the items of the powers' peace program.

Chapei was blazing again following an aerial bombardment by the Japanese.

Major Battle at Forts Early Today.

A major action was fought out between Japanese warships and airplanes and the Chinese forts at Woosung, sixteen miles from Shanghai at the entrance of the Whangpoo River into the Yangtze estuary.

The Chinese declared they had succeeded in sinking a Japanese destroyer—a statement that was denied by Japanese authorities—and the Japanese averred they had turned the forts into a pile of scrap iron.

Duds dropped on the property of the American-owned Texaco Oil Co. in Shanghai and a few shells splashed into the Whangpoo near the anchorage of the U. S. S. Parrott.

Thirty-six American women and children were evacuated from Nanking along with a number of British women and children. The United States destroyer Simpson waited in the Yangtze River to take off other American citizens left in the city.

Col. Richard S. Hooker, Marine commandant at Shanghai, notified Washington that an agreement had been

Aleutian Island Volcano Is Seen in Full Eruption

Anchorage, Alaska, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A radio report, received here today, said Shishaldin Volcano, on Unimak Island, was in full eruption with the summit flaming and the sides of the peak aglow with lava.

The lava was flowing in streams down the mountainside to the foothills below, said the message sent from False Pass, in the Aleutians, and picked up by a station here. Unimak Island is one of the largest in the Aleutian chain.

Chinese Women Enter Trenches With Guns

Shanghai China, Thursday, Feb. 4 (U.P.).—While shrapnel fell nearby, Chinese women stood in the war trenches today to bar the advance of Japanese marines on Shanghai's native city.

Attempting to follow the river road to Woosung, 8 miles below Shanghai, reporters encountered a dozen women in a camouflaged trench across the road.

The women were equipped with ancient rifles. They wore blue coolie cloth, sewed into make-shift uniforms.

8 DIE AND 300 HURT AS QUAKES HIT CUBA

Santiago's Damages Placed in Millions; Guggenheim Rushing Relief.

Santiago, Cuba, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Santiago was virtually a deserted city tonight in consequence of a series of disastrous earthquake shocks which left eight known dead and created damage officially estimated in excess of $10,000,000.

Mayor Desidierio Arnaz was authority for the death list and he estimated that at least 300 had been injured. Gov. Jose Varselo of Oriente Province set the damage figure, and his estimate was termed conservative by other officials.

As tiny groups of residents, still stunned from the panic of the early morning, discussed the disaster in hushed tones, Harry F. Guggenheim, United States Ambassador to Cuba, arrived by airplane to promise assistance to the stricken city.

Hospitals continued their care of the wounded, while about 75 per cent of the 130,000 population streamed into the outlying country away from stricken, wrenched homes. Some 150 major operations were performed on victims during the day.

In the harbor floated the United States destroyer Hopkins, with Navy doctors, medical corps men and surgical supplies.

A further survey showed extensive damage to the Swift & Co. Building, the customs house, the third floor of the Woolworth store, the San Carlos Club, the two buildings of the Hotel Venus, and the Hotel Casa Granda.

The buildings of the Bacardi distillery and brewery were slightly damaged, and the company lost 755,000 quarts of beer when vat pipes were broken.

Reports from outlying districts were that the town of Palma Soriano was slightly damaged, but that El Cobre, where the image of Cuba's patron saint stands, was unhurt. It previously had been reported damaged.

The swift series of tremors left hardly a building in the city untouched and a few were destroyed. Any estimate of the damage was only tentative until the task of bringing order out of chaos had been completed.

In the first confusion, as all of the able 130,000 residents fled to open spaces, newspapermen and other eyewitnesses estimated the death toll at from 500 to 1,500. All of these figures were found to be an exaggeration, as dawn and a measure of calm came to the city.

Even before the last of the series of nine shocks had left their jarring

FOUR PROPOSITIONS HELD ACCEPTABLE

Tokyo Will Offer Counter-Plan to End Battles in Far East.

By HAROLD J T. HORAN.

Secretary Stimson yesterday received the first informal reply to the American-British concurrent peace proposal, from Japanese Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi in a secret conference at the Secretary's suburban home, Woodley.

The conference with the Japanese Ambassador followed an equally secretive meeting of the Secretary of State with Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations; Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and Assistant Secretary of State James Grafton Rogers. There was, however, no connection between the two conferences. Secretary Stimson himself was very explicit about the purely impromptu nature of the meetings and was quick to deny that the visit of the Japanese Ambassador had any direct bearing on the previous conversations.

The visit of the Japanese Ambassador was in a certain sense the forerunner to the presentation of the Japanese reply and the counter peace proposals which are expected from Tokyo today.

Five Points Detailed.

Ambassador Debuchi's purely informal representations included the following points, it was authoritatively learned here last night:

First—The acceptance in principle of the first four propositions of the Anglo-American peace plan;

Second, the tendency in the Japanese foreign office to regard the first four propositions as sufficient for the solid establishment of conditions of peace.

Third, the elimination of the fifth point in the peace plan.

Fourth, Japanese refusal to regard the fifth point as embracing in any sense the Manchurian problem which has to all intents and purposes been solved by both disputants and even by the United States and Great Britain in the league council's resolution of December 10.

Opposition to Phrase.

Fifth, the opposition of the Japanese government to the last phrase of the fifth point which provides for the "aid of neutral observers or participants" as contrary to the fundamental principles of the present conflict which has always included negotiations direct between Chinese and Japanese without any neutral intercession.

At the same time the Japanese Ambassador also brought tidings of hope for the situation in Shanghai when he announced that the Japanese marines, hitherto guarding Japanese cotton mills in the American and British defense areas of the International Settlement, had been withdrawn and in their places, American and British marines had been detailed.

It is believed here that the Japanese counter offer will not be in any sense a repudiation of the "good offices" of the United States and Great Britain, but will contain the elements of a neutral proposal which will subsequently be worked out by the original parties to the plan. The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lind-

Pastor, Suspended, Faces 'Imprudent Conduct' Trial

Action Is Taken Against Annapolis Cleric After Four-Hour Hearing by Methodist Episcopal Committee; Wife Defends Former Capital Minister.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 3—The Rev. Joseph T. Herson, pastor of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, Annapolis, was suspended today by a committee of investigation until the annual conference meets in Frederick in June and disposes of the charges by trial.

The charges are "imprudent and unministerial conduct," and were preferred by the Rev. J. E. Kemp Horn, pastor of Howard Park Church, and the Rev. Vernon N. Ridgely, superintendent of West Baltimore district of the Baltimore conference.

Both charges were the same, that by Dr. Ridgely including two specifications and that by Mr. Horn three. The specifications were not made public.

Mrs. Herson appeared before the investigation committee which met in First Methodist Episcopal Church and spoke in behalf of her husband

The Rev. Chesteen Smith, superintendent of Baltimore district of the conference in which district the Annapolis Church is located said: "Witnesses appeared for and against Dr. Herson from the Forest Park community." He added there were "about ten witnesses on each side."

He asserted that one of "the incidents included in the specifications came under the observation of Mr. Horn, who made the charges." Dr. Smith said. "The specifications in the charges were not those of immorality or theft, but represented only practices that were detrimental to the work of a clergyman."

The committee met at 2 p. m. and came to a decision a few minutes

MANCHURIAN PROBE AGAIN IN SPOTLIGHT

Tokyo Registers Opposition to Peace Point as China Renews Plea.

Geneva, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The rich Province of Manchuria, pushed into the background by the recent dramatic events in Shanghai and Nanking, was thrust forward again today when the Chinese demanded that the great powers and the league include it in their concerted plan to settle the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Tokyo's opposition to any such action was registered with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, by Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador at London, and Naotake Sato, Tokyo's spokesman at the league.

They said the peace program submitted to Japan by the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy could be applied only to the Shanghai situation.

Including Manchuria.

It was authoritatively learned that the British government—and presumably the American government—intended the powers' intervention scheme should seek the ultimate solution of the entire Far Eastern problem, including the question of Manchuria.

The Chinese regard Manchuria as far more important than the disturbances in the Shanghai area, but Japan showed obvious determination to fight before the league council for the exclusion on juridical grounds of the Manchurian question from immediate consideration.

Russians See Failure.

Meanwhile the Russian delegation to the Disarmament Conference took the position that nothing would be accomplished by the attempt to bring peace to the Far East. A spokesman summed up the Russian opinion thus: "It won't do any good!"

The Russians, reasserting that Moscow declined to be brought into the conflict, said the league always had delayed too long in dealing with the Manchurian question and that while it deliberated Japan acted.

Declared Diversion.

Associates of Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese delegate to the league, asserted the Japanese thrust at Shanghai was merely a diversion designed to turn the attention of the league and the great powers away from Manchuria.

These Chinese declared Japan would be glad to retire from Shanghai under pressure of the western powers as a price of retaining her hold on the rich section above the great wall. Dr. Yen expressed fears the league and the powers were walking into what he described as a Japanese trap.

"Manchuria is many times more important to us than Shanghai," he said. "The Chinese will do their utmost to keep the council's attention upon Manchuria."

GANGSTER FEUD SEEN AS MAN IS WOUNDED

swerved from Buchanan street into Seventeenth street northwest at a dizzy pace, almost overturning as it took the corner.

Private J. A. Duley, of the Tenth Precinct, who was walking his beat on Webster street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets northwest, saw the car as it swerved from Seventeenth street into Webster.

He had heard the firing and was running to the scene to investigate. When he sighted the car coming toward him, he stepped into the street and attempted to wave it down. He said the driver of the speeding machine almost ran him down as he leaped to safety.

Running Without Lights.

The car continued east on Webster street and then turned north into Sixteenth street and disappeared.

Duley said he was certain there were three men in the car, but believed there were four. The car was running without lights and bore no rear license plate, he said.

At the start of their investigation police said they learned that Moses had been forewarned about two weeks ago that "something was going to happen."

This warning had come to Moses, they said, from a man well known in gambling circles in Washington. Since the time of the warning, police asserted, Moses has been carrying a pistol in anticipation of the "something" which was about to happen.

They believed that the "something" was the shootnig last night in front of Moses' door step.

Police investigating the case were inquiring into the possibility that the "numbers" game had some connection with it.

They said Moses told them he recognized one of the trio who attacked Abraham as Harry Yudelevit.

After receiving this information from Moses a police guard was immediately sent to the home of Yudelevit, at 1620 Allison street northwest, just one block from Moses' home. Yudelevit was not in and a guard was posted there to await his return.

Brother of "Shockey."

Harry Yudelevit is a brother, police say, of Milton "Shockey" Yudelevit, said to have been operator of an I street speakeasy, the hijacking of which led to charges of housebreaking against W. H. Middleton, former Washington policeman.

Middleton a short time ago was cleared by the Police Trial Board of cleared in connection with the alleged hijacking of this place. The former policeman was accused of having entered it and removed a quantity of liquor in company with Jack Cunningham, slain minor Washington racketeer.

Police were attempting to delve through this maze of connecting links last night in an effort to find a motive for the shooting and thus to trace the three gunmen. They said they did not discount the robbery theory advanced by Moses, however, and would work along that line also.

Baltimore police were given a description of the automobile in which the men are believed to have escaped after shooting Abraham. Baltimore authorities said they had been asked to keep a close watch at a house where several of Harry Yudelevit's relatives are living.

Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke ordered the men under him to leave nothing undone to bring the attackers of Abraham in custody. He said he wanted every angle of the case run down. Police on the various beats were given the best description possible of the automobile in which the trio escaped and were instructed to examine carefully every car which passed them.

Crack Trains Wait to Speed League Group Across U. S.

Commission Which Will Inquire Into Manchurian Row Leaves Paris and Is Due in New York Tuesday; McCoy to Join Delegation.

Preparations are being made to hold crack transcontinental trains at New York for the dash across the continent next Tuesday of the League of Nation's special commission of inquiry in Manchuria, which left Paris for New York yesterday aboard the steamship Paris. The commission has also requested the State Department to arrange to delay the sailing of the new steamer President Coolidge at San Francisco, some eight or ten hours to enable the commission to make the journey to the East in the shortest possible time.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, the American member of the commission, will join the delegation at New York and make the cross country trip with them. The present arrangements are all tentative and are naturally dependent upon the timely arrival in New York of the Paris. An agent of the League of Nations is traveling with the commission in close cooperation with the American State Department to facilitate all customs and entrance requirements. It is planned to eliminate all official receptions in New York, in order to permit the delegation to make the fastest train from New York to San Francisco.

The President Coolidge will take the commission to the East, as it has not yet been decided whether its members will first go to Japan or to China. The rapid shifts in the critical situation in the Far East have prevented the League Council from making any definite instructions to the five neutral observers who will decide on the merits and demerits of the present embroilment.

Gen. McCoy will be the American delegate. The chairman of the group, however, will be the Earl of Lytton, grandson of the author of "The Last Days of Pompeii." The other delegates will include the representative of France, Gen. Henri Edouard Claudel, member of the Superior War Council, and formerly inspector general of colonial troops; the German delegate, Dr. Heinrich Schnee, former governor general of German East Africa in the days before the war and now a member of the Reichstag, and, finally, the Italian delegate, the Duke Aldrovandi-Marescotti, who was the unfortunate victim of the celebrated diplomatic incident two years ago when the secret Italian code was stolen from the Italian Embassy in Berlin. The duke was the Italian Ambassador at the time. He and every member of the staff in Berlin were immediately recalled.

JAPAN OPPOSES FIFTH POINT IN PROPOSALS TO BRING PEACE say, called at the department yesterday as is his wont merely to keep informed of all developments.

Elimination of Fifth.

A certain quality of authority was given the tentative Japanese counter-proposals when the counselor of the French embassy, Jules Henry, expressed the sufficiency of the first four points of the peace plan and suggested the advisability of eliminating entirely the fifth point to which the Japanese also object. This is exactly the Japanese counter peace proposal. M. Henry was a caller at the State Department to see Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr.

The meeting between Secretary Stimson and the military and naval chiefs was held to review the situation in Shanghai and its possible eventualities. The Secretary was in conference most of the afternoon although he returned to the State Department at a late hour to see the latest cables and reports from the War and Navy departments.

At the Chinese Legation it was revealed that the Chinese reply was being transmitted directy to the State Department by the American Minister to China, Nelson T. Johnson, who is now in Shanghai. Although the Chinese government has been forced to move to its new capital, Loyang, a certain number of high officials of the foreign affairs ministry have been ordered to remain in Nanking to treat with the diplomatic representatives of other governments. It was impossible to learn what effect upon the Chinese acceptance the purported Japanese reservation regarding the fifth point of the peace program would have.

Without Reservation.

The fifth proposal of the peace plan forwarded to both China and Japan on Tuesday is as follows:

"Upon acceptance of these conditions prompt advances to be made in negotiations to settle all outstanding controversies between the two nations in the spirit of the pact of Paris and the resolution of the League of Nations of December 9 without prior demand or reservation and with the aid of neutral observers or participants."

The resolution of the League Council of December 9 was approved by American Ambassador Charles G. Dawes on behalf of the United States and was also approved by the British delegate. Its terms created the league's commission of inquiry which left Paris for New York en route to the Far East yesterday. The American member of the commission, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, will join the other members in New York next Tuesday.

Since the League Council thus disposed of the Manchurian situation by the appointment of the commission of inquiry to which both China and Japan agreed, the Japanese government, it is held, will decline to reconsider the Manchurian problem again in the light of the new Anglo-American peace proposals.

Use of Neutral Observers.

The second Japanese exception was in the use of "neutral" observers in the solution of the difficulty. It was made known here yesterday that the greater part of the Anglo-American peace proposal was drafted by the Secretary of State himself. Secretary Stimson, who is generally conceded to be one of the country's outstanding authorities on constitutional law, made an exhaustive inquiry into the precedents which governed similar situations and found that in the solution of the Shantung incident ten years ago the good offices of neutrals had been one of the most efficacious acts for peace.

It may well develop that some determined objections to this Japanese reservation will crop up, since the Secretary of State himself feels that the force of precedent has been clearly established in an analogous situation.

Some definite hope for the eventual lessening of the tension in Shanghai and the vicinity was derived from Japanese Ambassador Debuchi's statement that since the appointment of Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura he looked for a more restrained attitude in the plan of Japanese operations. The ambassador declared:

"Admral Nomura is going to play ball with Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, the American commander, and when the leaders play ball, the men are certain to follow their example."

FORTS NEAR SHANGHAI SCENE OF VIGOROUS ENGAGEMENT

concluded for the evacuation of Japanese troops from the portion of the International Settlement assigned to the American Marines.

Representative MacFadden told the House that to postpone action on the $616,250,000 naval construction bill would be "most foolhardy." He declared that "the dark shadow of war clouds rises upon the western horizon of the Pacific."

The destroyer tender Black Hawk was ordered from Manila to join the other American naval forces at Shanghai.

In New York a sharp rally was registered in Japanese bonds.

Japanese troops reached the outskirts of Harbin, important railroad center in northern Manchuria, and they expected to occupy the city without bloodshed today.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai (Thursday), Feb. 4.—Japanese and Chinese guns broke out again in battle today at Shanghai and the forts of Woosung.

Field pieces and machine guns roared and rattled at the city's outskirts, while the cannons of Japanese warships boomed in the distance.

Hostilities were renewed after a fierce battle that raged all yesterday both here and at Woosung, where the Chinese forts stand guardian over the mouth of the Whangpoo River, 16 miles down from Shanghai.

A force of 326 United States Marines, headed by 8 officers, was landed from the cruiser Houston, which arrived yesterday, and took up posts in the International Settlement to protect American lives and property.

A battle of words between Chinese and Japanese authorities as to the outcome of the fighting at Woosung ran parallel with the firing.

Chinese exultingly announced that the guns of the forts had sent a Japanese destroyer to the bottom and disabled two others. They also said that a Japanese airplane had been shot down and the pilot killed.

Japanese naval officers denied there had been any Japanese losses and entered their own claims of victory by asserting that projectiles from their destroyers and bombs from their airplanes had turned the fortress into a mass of scrap iron.

The firing today, distinctly audible in the northern section of Shanghai, was believed to extend along the Shanghai-Woosung Railway. The major scene of operations had been transferred from the native city of Chapei, where numerous fires reddened the city.

A big Japanese lumber mill was ablaze on the western boundary of the International Settlement.

In Hongkew, where Japanese machine guns raked streets and houses yesterday in a search for Chinese snipers, the situation was comparatively quiet. But rifle fire and the rattle of an occasional machine gun could be heard as the bluejackets continued their hunt for sharpshooters.

Japanese naval forces along the Whangpoo River between Shanghai and Woosung were believed to have started shelling Chinese positions along the railway, running parallel to the river as far as the forts.

Official reports that 120 Japanese airplanes were concentrated on aircraft carriers lying off the Saddle Islands and Hangchow Bay heightened apprehension of further bombardment from the air.

Chinese bankers and business men decided to reopen banks and all stores essential to the community's welfare in an effort to revive Shanghai's paralyzed business, at least 75 per cent of which has been at a standstill.

The United States Marine reinforcements were landed at the bund in the International Settlement and rushed in motor trucks to the Japanese cotton mill area within the American sector of the settlement. There they replaced Japanese forces, who left to take up new stands while the Americans consolidated their positions along Soochow Creek, facing Chinese barricades on the opposite bank.

In the rival claims of victory Teng Chen-Chuan, Woosung commander, said the Japanese warship went down after Chinese gunners had scored three direct hits. But Japanese naval authorities declared every bottom was safe and accounted for.

Justice McReynolds At Retirement Age, 70

(Associated Press.)

Associate Justice James C. McReynolds of the Supreme Court yesterday reached the retirement age of 70 years. A bachelor, strong in body and interested in his work, he is expected to remain on the bench for some time before availing himself of his privilege of resigning on full pay.

One of the justices, Oliver Wendell Holmes, recently went on the retired list 20 years after he passed retirement age. Two others, Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis, are eligible to retire at their pleasure.

JAPANESE OPPOSE ROW INTERVENTION

Foreign Minister Says His Nation Wants to Remain Friend of Powers.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo (Thursday), Feb. 4.—Japan will inform the great powers today that she is unable to accept their proposals to settle the conflict at Shanghai.

Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa said this morning that Japan could not agree to the powers' suggestions in their present form, and that he was making counter-proposals.

The particular cause of the difficulty is the fifth item of the plan. This item provides for settlement of all outstanding controversies between China and Japan in the spirit of the Briand-Kellogg pact and the League of Nations resolution of December 9, which set up a commission of five neutrals to investigate the conflict.

Outside Intervention.

The foreign minister declared that Japan never could agree to outside intervention in Sino-Japanese negotiations over the Shanghai and Manchurian questions.

M. Yoshizawa said that he would invite the ambassadors of the United States, Great Britain and France later today to consider a modified proposal from the Japanese government.

Foreign Minister Yoshizawa conferred at Okutsi with the octogenarian Prince Saionji, sole survivor of Japan's famous elder statesmen, before he decided what policy to follow in regard to the program of peace submitted by the powers. It is customary to receive the advice of the prince whenever the vital interests of the empire are at stake.

"We are eager to retain the friendship of the other great powers," M. Yoshizawa said when he returned to the foreign office, "but at the same time we must protect the rights and interests of Japanese citizens in China."

Unofficially the Japanese attitude toward the proposal of the powers was summed up as follows:

1. Cessation of acts of violence is acceptable provided the Chinese also agree.

Seeks Similar Pledge.

2. A pledge to refrain from preparations for further hostilities may be made when Japan is convinced of China's sincerity in making a similar pledge.

3. Withdrawal of Japanese bluejackets from points where there is a considerable Japanese population is impossible unless the Chinese withdraw to a safe distance.

4. Establishment of a neutral zone is acceptable and perhaps Japan may accept a permanent agreement that no Chinese troops be allowed within a stipulated distance of Shanghai's International Settlement. Such an agreement would be similar to the Tientsin-Boxer protocol.

5. It is impossible for Japan to agree under any circumstances to the participation of any third power in negotiations with China so far as the Manchurian controversy is concerned.

Shanghai Chinese To Reopen Banks

Stores Also Will Make an Effort to Bring Back Normal Trade.

Shanghai, Thursday, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Chinese bankers and business men today decided to reopen banks and all stores essential to the community's welfare in an effort to bring Shanghai's paralyzed business back to normal.

As the situation grew more serious in the conflict with Japan, business generally ceased. Some of the more conservative estimated that at least 75 per cent of the city's commercial operations were at a standstill.

Chinese bankers for several days have been doing a "bootleg" business with leading customers through half-opened back doors. Today, however, they promised a full resumption of business immediately.

Trust Fund Bequeathed To Charity Home Here

Special to The Washington Post.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 3.—A trust fund of $5,000 is established for the Henry and Anne Hyde Memorial Home in Washington, under the will of the late Miss Mary E. Cleary, filed for probate here today. The income of the fund is to be used for the support of Nicholas Cleary, a brother, as long as he lives.

Miss Cleary died here on January 10. The will gives $7,000 to other charities, mostly in and near New York. The amount of the estate is not disclosed, the statement filed with the will estimating it at "over $10,000." The residue goes to a nephew, Eugene Cleary, of Elmont, Long Island.

Plane Goes to Get Slayer of 'Mountie'

Heavily Armed Ship Is Piloted by Veteran of World War.

Edmonton, Alberta, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Master of the Arctic's air trails, a war-time flier took off into the twilight of the northern barrens today to aid Royal Canadian Mounted Police in capturing Albert Johnson, Rat River trapper, who killed a "Mountie" and wounded another in evading arrest at his cabin stronghold, 80 miles south of Aklavik.

This afternoon Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, veteran war pilot, took off from Fort McMurry, little trading post in northeast Alberta, on a flight of almost 1,000 miles to Aklavik, close to the topmost rim of the continent.

With him he had a Royal Mounted policeman and a supply of ammunition with which, if necessary, Johnson will be blasted from his Arctic fortress.

Soviet Organ Raps Maneuvers of U. S.

Moscow, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The military organ Red Star today devoted a quarter of a page to American naval maneuvers in the Pacific, declaring they increased tension in the Far East.

"The maneuvers undoubtedly are a demonstration of the military force of American imperialism against Japan, whose appetite had gone too far," the Red Star stated. "These large scale maneuvers are being carried on at a moment when the political atmosphere is highly charged because of Japan's aggressive policy in China."

The organ added that the maneuvers acquired a particular importance in view of "an alarmist speech" by Admiral Leigh when the fleet departed from San Pedro.

JAPANESE TO DRIVE UPON HARBIN TODAY

Thousands of Tamon's Men on Outskirts of City Are Awaiting Daylight.

Changchun, China, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Harbin, the important railroad center, built on the banks of the Sungari three decades ago by imperial Russia and now the headquarters of the Soviet government's Manchurian interests, was within the grasp of Japanese masters tonight.

Thousands of stocky little fur-clad soldiers of the army of Gen. Jiro Tamon, conqueror of Tsitsihar and Kowpangtze, encamped on the southern outskirts of the city in preparation for a triumphal entry tomorrow.

Cutting winds flurried the recently fallen snow as Gen. Tamon's troop trains advanced along the Chinese Eastern Railway, 30 miles from the city of Shuangcheng to the southern suburbs of Harbin. The temperature was around 30 below zero Fahrenheit.

Recalling the costly night fighting that preceded the fall of Tsitsihar last November, the general decided to wait for daylight before occupying the city.

The Chinese forces under Ting Chao, who had declared that he would hold Harbin at all costs, had retreated eastward, and Gen. Tamon looked for no resistance.

Reports that Gen. Ting's forces had streamed out of Harbin in motor buses were received here shortly after Japanese dispatches had announced that the Chinese leader intended to continue his opposition to the extension of Japanese domination throughout north Manchuria.

Rum-Laden British Boat Is Seized Off Cape Cod

Boston, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Laden with 1,200 sacks of liquor, the British power boat Pronto was captured off Cape Cod during the night and brought to this port by Coast Guardsmen today. The Pronto was captured 9 miles off the coast, well within the 12-mile limit, according to the crew of the patrol boat Jackson, which made the seizure.

The Pronto hailed from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, and was in command of Capt. Arlington Conrad. He and his crew of five were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C Jenney and pleaded not guilty. Capt. Conrad and his first officer, James C. Williams, were held in $5,000 bail each while the three members of the crew were held in $3,500 bail each.

Canadian Rail Trades Near Wage-Cut Accord

Montreal, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Settlement of the wage dispute between Canadian railways and trades emploes was reported tonight as likely within 24 hours.

The men were said virtually to have decided to accept th 10 per cent wage reduction recommended by the conciliation board. The date on which the cut was to be made effective, however, had not been determined, it was said.

Houston's Marines Landed in Shanghai

Two Days' "Shakedown" Will Precede Going Into Defenses.

Shanghai (Thursday), Feb. 4 (A.P.).—A force of United States Marines which arrived yesterday on the cruiser Houston, was landed this morning on the customs jetty in the middle of the Bund in the International Settlement.

The force, numbering 8 officers and 326 men, was taken in motor trucks to marine headquarters in the northwest part of the settlement.

After two days' "shakedown" they will enter the settlement defense lines already manned by marines.

Robinson Is Suggested For Supreme Court Seat

(Associated Press.)

The name of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader in the Senate, yesterday was joined with the long list of others from various sections of the country suggested for the vacancy on the Supreme Court.

Nearly two acore suggestions of outstanding men have been urged upon the President. Among them are Orie Philips, New Mexico Federal circuit judge, and Warren Olney, San Francisco lawyer. Many have argued that the Chief Executive will look Westward for his choice.

Costigan Objects to Two Tariff Body Appointees

(Associated Press.)

Efforts to reach an agreement to vote today on the nominations of Robert L. OBrien, Boston Republican, and Ira M. Ornburn, New Haven, Conn., Democrat, to the Tariff Commission, failed in the Senate yesterday. Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, objected. He intends to speak against both appointees.

Meanwhile, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor indorsed Ornburn and called upon "friends of labor" in the Senate to vote for his confirmation. Ornburn is former president of the Cigarmakers International Union.

36 AMERICANS QUIT NANKING ON VESSEL

Leave on British Steamer; Others to Depart Soon on U. S. Destroyer.

Nanking, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Thirty-six American women and children were evacuated from Nanking today aboard the British river steamer Woosung, which will take them to Shanghai. A number of British women and children also were aboard.

Other members of the American colony will be taken out of Nanking on the United States destroyer Simpson, now anchored in the Yangtze, off the Nanking docks.

Foreign business men and missionaries decided to remain in the city for the present. The American consulate did not advise its nationals to get out of the city, but offered assistance to all who desired it. The British consular authorities warned that British women and children should be taken to places of safety.

Lampson Due Soon.

Sir Miles Lampson, British Minister to China, was expected imminently in Nanking. He has been at Tientsin and his return here was delayed by heavy troop movements on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway. It was understood urgent instructions that he proceed to Shanghai awaited him here.

Among those evacuated on the steamer Woosung were the families of employes of the American International Export Co., the Texaco Oil Co., and the British-American Tobacco Co. These refugees spent the night at the International Export Plant on the Hsiakwan waterfront. The Woosung was jammed to capacity when it sailed.

China announced complete acceptance of the international peace proposals to deal with the Shanghai situation. The foreign office said steps were being taken to avoid further fighting.

Airmen Ready to Die.

This announcement was made after a group of Chinese airmen made their wills, sat for photographs, and declared they were ready to give up their lives in the defense of their country.

An agreement was reached between Chinese and Japanese officials under which each side promised not to resort to further hostilities at Nanking "unless provoked."

Nanking was under martial law and the Chinese authorities directed troops and police to make special efforts to protect foreigners.

Chinese and Japanese ships of war in the Yangtze changed their positions so that there was an interval of 8 miles between them, in which British and American naval ships were anchored.

Floods in Kentucky Menace Thousands

Waters Continue Spread Over Lowlands in Western Part.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Flood waters continued to spread over the lowlands of western Kentucky tonight along streams from Owensboro and Henderson, south to Hickman. Reports indicated approximately 1,000 families had temporarily left their homes.

The Ohio and the Green Rivers were expected to reach their crest at Henderson by Saturday.

The Cumberland and the Tennessee Rivers continued to rise over lowlands southeast of Paducah, inundating hundreds of acres of land and flooding the country roads. From Wickliffe, Ky., south to the Tennessee border the Mississippi continued to rise slowly and its crest was expected to be reached by Saturday or Sunday. It stood at 47 feet at Hickman late today, 2 feet above flood stage.

In the southeastern part of the State, where the Cumberland rises, heavy rains today sent that stream and its tributaries up again around Harlan, Pineville and Misslesboro, but no serious damage was expected.

Mayor Walker Breaks Physician's Rest Order

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Mayor Walker today disregarded his physician's order that he take a "complete rest" and appeared at City Hall for a series of conferences.

He has been described as suffering from mental fatigue, low blood pressure and a bronchial ailment.

Action Is Taken to Assure Smooth Path in Peace Negotiations.

Geneva, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The world disarmament conference today sought out a smooth path for successful negotiation by naming a general committe which will act as a sort of court of appeals when difficult problems arise.

This decisive action came on the second day of the life of the conference through its procedure committee, whose task was to lay groundwork for the delegates of the 60 nations represented here. The procedure committee was named yesterday by President Arthur Henderson.

The general committee will be composed of all the first delegates of the 60 countries and will make final decisions on serious points.

The procedure committee today also provided for the appointment of fourteen vice presidents for the conference, seven representing the larger powers and seven the smaller powers.

The position of vice president, considered most important because Mr. Henderson's uncertain health may compel him to leave the conference at any moment, was the occasion of a lively battle.

France backed Dr. Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, but encountered sharp opposition. The committee avoided the delicate point by providing for fourteen vice presidents, who will preside successively if called upon to do so.

The committee on petitions, of which Dr. Mary Emma Woolly, American woman delegate, is a member, formulated plans today for the plenary session of Saturday. At that time millions of petitions for disarmament from all over the world will be presented.

Laval Announces Action To End Shanghai Strife

Paris, Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Premier Pierre Laval announced today that the French Ambassador at Tokyo had been instructed to urge Japan to take a moderate course at Shanghai. The minister at Nanking was given similar instructions in regard to China.

The League of Nations' Manchurian commission of inquiry, headed by Lord Lytton, of Britain, sailed today. Lord Lytton will join the commission at Plymouth.

Receivership Suit Accuses Bankers

F. H. Smith Co. Charged With Defrauding Defunct Finance Concern.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A receivership suit was filed in chancery court today by William G. Albrecht, of Baltimore, a stockholder, against the Commonwealth Finance Corporation, of New York.

The bill of complaint alleges the charter of the company was revoked in January, 1929, by the Governor of Delaware, and states the corporation is entitled to recover from the F. H. Smith Co., of New York and Washington, a large amount of valuable assets and money. These, the bill charges, were obtained by the Smith company by fraud.

The bill further states the claim against the Smith company is the only asset of Commonwealth Finance.

ZONING COMMISSION BEGINS NEW POLICY

Action on Petitions Put Off Pending Advisory Body's Recommendations.

Inaugurating a new procedure as a result of the reorganization of the District engineer department, the District Zoning Commission, of which the Engineer Commissioner is chairman, postponed action on the nine proposed changes in the zoning regulations and the sixteen applications for rezoning until next week following an all-day hearing yesterday.

Under the new setup, Capt. Hugh P. Oram, executive officer of the commission, and other members of the zoning advisory committee will sit in on all hearings and make recommendations in writing to the commission on each application or proposal. Previously, when the commission alone conducted the hearings, action was usually taken immediately after the hearing.

Other members of the advisory committee are S. G. Lindholm, zoning engineer, and Charles W. Eliot 2d, director of planning for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

A storm of protest, led by Henry I. Quinn, chairman of the zoning committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, greeted a proposal to permit the commission to act in executive session on certain zoning changes without first granting a public hearing. While the amendment itself says nothing about hearings, Maj. D. A. Davison, Acting Engineer Commissioner, explained that no hearings would be held in certain cases if the regulation were adopted.

The commission was warned by Mr. Quinn that an appeal would be made to the courts if the amendment were adopted. Representatives of the Dupont Circle, Rock Creek, and the Takoma Citizens Associations also objected to the proposal.

Another amendment, designed to loosen up the restrictions on garages in residential sections and on the parking of automobiles on alley lots in commercial areas also was opposed by the Dupont Circle and Manor Park citizens groups.

Among the 16 applications for zoning changes the one that drew the most fire was the application to change the Herbert Wadsworth property at Eighteenth and P streets and Massachusetts avenue from 90-foot C area, residential, to 110-foot D area, first commercial, which would permit the erection of an apartment house or small stores. The Dupont Circle citizens also participated in this protest.

An application to change a site on the east side of Wisconsin avenue, between Western avenue and Jenifer street northwest, from residential "A" restricted to first commercial in order to permit the construction of a funeral establishment also stirred considerable protests from nearby residents.

Chinese Lines Declared Calm and in High Spirits

Shanghai, China, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Lieut. R. A. Boone, U. S. M. C., of Twin Falls, Idaho, reported today after a tour of the Chinese military lines about Shanghai that the men were well equipped and in high spirits, apparently not at all nervous under fire from the Japanese which was still going on while he made his inspection.

Phone Can Avert Wars But It's Not Omnipotent

By JOHN J. DALY

OCCASIONALLY, but only occasionally, business men of the Nation complain about telephone service—lines busy, out of order, wrong number and whatever they have to offer.

President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson do much better on the phone, especially when they want long distance without waiting long.

Here is a record:

The presidential eye caught a dispatch from the Far East intimating that China and Japan might be open to suggestions. It said they were looking for a peacemaker.

Mr. Hoover called Mr. Stimson, and got the number.

AFTER a conference with the President, the Secretary of State phoned his old friend, Ramsay MacDonald in London. The connection was perfect.

The Premier of England then called his pal, Pierre Laval, of Paris.

In a Franco-British conversation, the Premier of France was asked to get in touch with Washington. In the meantime, however, Washington got Paris on the line and Secretary Stimson took part in a three-cornered conversation with Laval and MacDonald on the receiving ends. The business was completed in less time than it takes to look up a number.

Then Washington put a buzzer on the phone of Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy. He went immediately into a huddle with Mussolini. The import of this conversation was phoned back to Secretary Stimson and two more fast calls were made, one from London to Tokyo, and the other from Washington to the Orient.

IN an hour or so after all these criss-crossed calls, across the Atlantic and the Pacific, the English Channel and the Potomac River, two gentlemen in frock coats and high hats, emerged from their residences and strolled along the main stem of Tokyo. They were, respectively, the American and British Ambassadors to Japan. Arm in arm they walked into the Japanese foreign office and laid their cards on the table. They presented a peace plan, a duplicate of which was being handed to the Chinese at the same time.

All this, in days to come—whatever the outcome of the overtures—will be cited as fast work on the wires and the wireless.

Naturally, after talking all over the world, Secretary of State Stimson was tired. He picked up the receiver on his desk to call home and tell the folks he was on his way to dinner.

The charming little central, in dulcet tones, rattling her rrrrs, quite nonchalantly said, in her best diplomatic manner, "Sorry, sir, but they don't answer."

EYEWITNESS TELLS HORRORS OF QUAKE

Flier Says Hundreds Hurt and Many of Residents Made Homeless.

The following eyewitness story of scenes in Santiago after the earthquake was written for the Associated Press by R. H. McGlohn, pilot for the Cuban Curtiss Airways:

By R. H. McGLOHN.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Havana, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—You could not see much damage from the air in Santiago but before I left about 6 o'clock this morning for Havana in my plane I drove through the streets in an automobile.

The first quake threw me out of bed at about 1:15 o'clock in the morning. I was pretty scared but so was everybody else. After a while I got in the car and went out to look over the damage.

It looked as though every wall in town had been knocked over, but as far as I could find out few people were killed. A lot of them were hurt but most of the injuries were superficial. When I left town there were crowds in the streets still screaming.

At the hospital it looked like there were hundreds waiting to have their injuries attended to. All the trolley lines were down, but the lighting plant worked all right until the mayor ordered the power shut off to prevent fire.

Up by the bacardi brewery something broke and there was beer pouring out into the gutters. I went on through the rest of the town.

Relief got under way very quickly with the city firemen in the lead, and it didn't look to me as though any outside help would be needed.

The bell towers of the cathedral were cracked straight across and one of the angels lost a wing. There were crowds outside the building and they seemed to be more upset about the angel than anything else.

I wouldn't even guess how many homes were destroyed, but you could see into a lot of them where the walls had fallen down.

Governor of Iowa Lauds Credit Plan

Urges That Corporation Begin Work in His State Soon.

Des Moines, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Gov. Dan Turner today sent telegrams to Charles G. Dawes and Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, praising the Reconstruction Corporation and urging that the organization begin functioning immediately in Iowa.

The Iowa governor also suggested that loans by the Reconstruction Corporation be handled in this State by an Iowa manager and committee, rather than through Chicago offices, as has been tentatively proposed.

"This State expects a prompt and liberal handling of a very serious situation," the Iowa executive said. "Our banks must have an outlet for good but slow agricultural paper with as little red tape as possible. If the help comes at once will save the situation in Iowa. "Don't want Illinois connected with the Iowa situation. If it is, Chicago will get all the benefit and Iowa none."

Cuban Quake Is Described As Forerunner of Series

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The Cuban earthquake today classes scientifically as a starter for a series expected all over the world.

This forecast comes from the earthquake records at Fordham University. There has been a prolonged period of unusual quiet in big quakes, and the records show such lapses are followed shortly by a sort of catching-up activity.

In November, only one major quake was recorded, off the coast of Mexico in the Pacific ocean. In December there was not one. In January something began to slip or heave in the bottom of the south Pacific ocean, and the waves from five great earthquakes there rolled under the Fordham instruments.

First of 1932.

But the Cuban quake today is the first break of 1932 outside the Pacific depths. It is also one of the greatest of recent earthquakes in one respect, its ability to shake the seismographs of an entire continent with big waves. On the instruments here, 1,500 miles distant, it registered as six or seven times as intense as the highly fatal Nicaraguan earthquake of March 31, 1931.

Father Joseph Lynch, in charge of the Fordham station, explained the tendency of the big earthquakes to strike more or less synchronously.

"About three years ago," he said, "there was a lull in major earthquakes even more remarkable than at the end of 1931. There was not one major quake on our instruments for six months. Then came the shake which destroyed the Newfoundland submarine cables, and from then on major quakes began coming in."

"Now we are all set for them again."

Likely to Miss Cities.

But the Fordham records indicate also that it is about a 30-to-1 shot that the big shakes will miss cities and sections where they can cause large loss of life.

From June 26 last until today there were 29 major earthquakes on the Fordham instruments Every one missed any big human target, although each was inherently capable of destroying much or almost any present-day city.

These quakes which missed were: June 29, southern Indian Ocean; July 9, North Atlantic Ocean; July 17, southern coast of Mexico; July 18, northern Chile; July 1, Kamchatka; July 21, southern Indian Ocean; July 27, Galapogas; July 27, Honduras; August 7, New Guinea; August 10, Mongolia; August 18, Mongolia; August 23; Pacific Ocean; August 24, Baluchistan; August 27, Baluchistan; September 9, off California; September 9, Marianas; 21, Japan; September 25, off coast of Sumatra; September 26, Gautemala; October 1, Lower California; October 3, south of Solomon Islands; October 10, Solomon Islands; October 26, west coast of Mexico; November 2, southern coast of Mexico; January 5, 1932, southern Pacific; January 9, New Hebrides; January 24, southern Pacific; January 27, southern Pacific; January 29, southern Pacific.

Reason Advanced.

Today's earthquake is attributed to the same new mountain building that many geologists hold accounted for last March's Nicaraguan quake, and for the destruction of much of Kingston, Jamaica, in 1907. Around the Caribbean, geologists find some evidence that the land is comparatively new, perhaps a few hundred million years old, instead of 1,000,000,000. Some think that Central America arose from the sea during this recent building period. A few find evidence in clay formations that now dry land in islands once was at the bottom of the sea.

Wegner's hypothesis of drift of continents is also used to account for the still slipping crust in the West Indies region. Under this hypothesis the America's were torn off from Europe and Africa and drifted west. Today's quake occurred in the site of a vast gulf created by this continental split. The most reliable evidence of newly forming mountains about Santiago is the geological study of the earth faults themselves. They give every sign of being comparatively recent breaks.

imprint, the military had assumed control. Soldiers superintended the removal of the more seriously injured to hospitals, and help came by plane from the United States fleet at Guantanamo.

Santiago was asleep when the first tremor shook the city shortly after midnight. This shock was followed by a more destructive one, and then came panic. It was not lessened in the quick succession of lighter shocks that followed.

Destruction continued to a certain extent throughout the day. The walls of the city jail fell in. Most of the prisoners who escaped uninjured went to work side by side with police and soldiers. They even stood guard to prevent looting of wrecked buildings.

Steps to Restore Order.

The Cathedral of Santiago, one of the show places of this historical seaport, and several of the important structures in the business district were damaged to some extent, and some of them seriously so. Immediately after an editor of Diario del Cuba telephoned quake information to the Associated Press in New York this afternoon, the building collapsed. There were no casualties.

Mayor Arnaz took swift steps to restore order. He had the gas and electric services shut off to prevent fire, and telegraphed Havana authorities that the local authorities and soldiery could handle the emergency.

He approved the exodus from the city, asking in a proclamation that the residents remain out of town for 24 hours to avoid injury from houses that may yet fall.

The United States cruiser Augusta, which had stood by to lend aid, sailed tonight for Guantanamo after Navy officers learned that the destroyer Williamson would come tomorrow with foodstuffs.

Religious Sanctuary Hit.

Havana, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The city of El Cobre, a few miles west of Santiago, was reported today to have been badly damaged by the earthquakes which shook the eastern end of Cuba.

El Cobre, which has a population of about 5,000, is widely known as a religious sanctuary.

(Associated Press.)

Relieved by reports that no Americans had been killed or injured in the Santiago earthquake, the Navy and Red Cross worked swiftly yesterday to aid those less fortunate.

Vice Admiral Willard, commander of the scouting force of the United States fleet, arrived on his flagship, the cruiser Augusta, to render whatever assistance was needed. He returned to Guantanamo soon afterward.

Medical supplies for the stricken were sent on the destroyer Hopkins from the American base at Guantanamo. Aircraft were sent to the scene to investigate. The Red Cross cabled $5,000 to its Cuban organization.

Reports to the State Department said the American consulate at Santiago was rendered unsafe and that American firms there had been damaged as follows: Swift & Co., $100,000; Cuba Railroad Hotel Casagrande, $30,000; F. W. Woolworth, $10,000, and others to a lesser extent.

About 737 Americans live in Santiago. Reports to the Navy Department said none of them was injured. Navy officers estimated the number of dead at 12 and injured at 250.

prepared to go ahead and get the rest of the money. They were encouraged by the general chairman's reminder that at the same time last year, the deficit was $75,000 and that this amount was not only reached but doubled in the subsequent week.

Community singing, led by Cyril Mee, and "pep" talks spurred the workers to renewed enthusiasm. Reports of unit chairman told of record returns yesterday. Government workers, it was announced, have subscribed a total of $1,034,000. The colored people of the Capital have given $100,000, Dr. Kelly Miller, in charge of this unit, announced.

A total of $19,203.96 has been contributed by schools and colleges, $3,361.43 of which was collected yesterday. The special gifts unit, of which Clarence A. Aspinwall is chairman, reported $15,800 for the day, making a total of $833,493.81 or 91.52 per cent of its quota. This announcement was coupled with an assertion by Newbold Noyes that there are at least 300 persons in Washington who are in a position to give large sums who have not contributed.

Lloyd B. Wilson, chairman of the group solicitation unit, reported additional donations of $67,892.39, making a total of $272,822.63. This sum represents the pledges made by employes in Washington firms.

H. L. Rust, jr., of the Metropolitan unit, announced additional donations amounting to $37,750.53. Mr. Rust, whose unit is now regarded as the potential "life saver" in the drive was given an ovation when he stepped before the microphone.

Elwood Street, director of the chest, appealed to the workers to finish the job, using the emergency pledge cards for those who have given and may give more and for those who have not given. He expressed confidence in the ability of the workers to reach the goal if they will just continue to work in the future as they have in the past. Mrs. Street was presented with a large bouquet from Z. D. Blackistone. The presentation was made by Mr. Rust.

Special mention was made of the District Grocers Society which was increased yesterday to a total of $1,697, and that of Catholic University which, in the schools unit, gave $3,956.25.

Mr. Colladay extended thanks to the Willard Hotel, newspapers and radio stations for their "generous cooperation and courtesies."

STATE ASSAILS JUDD INSANITY TESTIMONY

Prosecution and Defense in Scientific Verbal Battle Regarding Diagnosis.

Courthouse, Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Psychiatric diagnosis and the hypothetical laws of heredity collided today in the murder trial of Winnie Ruth Judd.

Her counsel invaded the realm of science in their effort to prove her insane and save her from death by hanging.

Paul Schenck, defense counsel, invoked the Mendelian theory of heredity in seeking to establish, through an insanity-streaked family tree, that the slight, blue-eyed woman could not have retained ability to recognize the gravity of murder.

Dr. Paul Bowers, of Los Angeles, State psychiatrist, despite admissions of the possible application of the nineteenth century monk's hypothesis, declared again at the end of a long cross-examination:

"She is sane."

Bowers Reiterates Claim.

"I would have found her sane from my examination of her," said he, "if I previously had studied all available charts of her family tree. The defendant in this case might be one of the lucky ones under the Mendelain hypothesis, and be normal."

Mrs. Judd is accused of slaying Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, her friends, last October 16. She is being tried only for murder of Mrs. Leroi.

Insanity Background Traced.

The defense chalked on a blackboard before jury and witness a chart depicting union of an insane woman—Ruth Judd's great-grandmother—and the resulting offspring through three generations, down to Mrs. Judd and her brother, Burton J. McKinnell. Certain members of each generation, Schenck contended, would, under the Mendelian hypothesis, transmit insanity if they were not insane themselves. He traced the McKinnell family insanity strain through such theoretically endowed ancestors, to rest upon Mrs. Judd.

"I can't assume that state of affairs," Dr. Bowers exclaimed. "It does violence to my reasoning."

Schenck obtained admission from the witness, through charts taken from a "manual of psychiatry" by Dr. Bowers, that dementia precox might be transmitted to the fourth generation, according to Mendel.

Struck Hard Blow.

He declined to admit her calm demeanor when she "entered a baggage room to claim trunks in which she knew were the bodies of her victims, with blood dripping from them," indicated anything further than keen reaction to the instinct of self-preservation.

Mrs. Judd's attack on him in a corridor yesterday he also declined to admit was due to a dementia rage.

"She hit me a pretty good blow," he said, "but she just let her foot slip accidentally on purpose as she went by and happened to think of it."

Dr. Bowers left the stand tonight. The State had "three or four" more witnesses to call. Counsel for both sides hoped to complete testimony tomorrow.

SUNKEN SUBMARINE IS FOUND BY BRITONS

M-2, Tomb of 60 Men, Rests on Bay's Bottom Alongside German U-Boat.

Portland, England, Feb 3 (U.P.).—The steel hulk of the British submarine M-2, tomb of 60 seamen who died without even a "fighting chance," was found tonight amid the wrecks of many vessels on the floor of Dead Man's Bay.

Warships of the British navy, cruising back and forth in a funereal procession over the scene of the disaster, located the missing submarine in 100 feet of water after seven days of fruitless search.

The M-2 was found alongside a German U-boat, one of the greatly feared craft of Britain's foe in the World War, which had been sunk more than a dozen years. The German craft was covered with barnacles, the divers reported.

Divers Find Craft.

Lifting lighters were summoned to the point, 5.8 miles off Portland Bill, where the submarine sank "stern first" during exercises in the English Channel. Again divers went down into the water where they had repeatedly searched for the M-2 and this time they reported its discovery.

Naval officials of the destroyers at the scene reported back to the admiralty, but it has not yet been decided whether to raise the 1,950-ton underwater craft. The divers continued their investigation in an effort to disclose the cause of its sinking.

The M-2 had actually been located earlier in the day, but the officers on the destroyer could not be sure of the identification of the craft they had found. There are many wrecks on the floor of Dead Man's Bay, near Portland, where countless ships went down during the World War.

Time and again during the search for the M-2, which sank January 26, the rescue vessels had reported the finding of "objects" believed to be the submarine, but each time the divers went down they reported that the delicate sounding apparatus and dragging lines had merely come in contact with old wrecks.

Discovery Is Confirmed.

It was not until 10:06 p. m. tonight, after an all-day investigation, that the naval officers aboard destroyers at the scene of work confirmed identification of the M-2. There were 58 men and officers and 2 members of the Royal Air Force aboard the submarine, which carried an airplane in a special compartment.

Long ago the admiralty had officially announced that all hope for rescue of the crew alive was gone. It was estimated that they lived possibly two days—trapped in the steel coffin on the ocean floor—after the submarine was disabled and sank, providing the craft was not damaged in sinking. After that, naval experts said, they must have suffocated.

TRADE LEADERS ASK GENERAL SALES TAX

Increased Return to U. S. Is Cited in House Attack on Selected Levies.

(Associated Press.)

A general manufacturers' sales tax to return about $600,000,000 annually in additional Federal revenue was advocated yesterday for the new revenue bill by representatives of several major industries.

Nearly a score of witnesses stoutly opposed propositions before the House ways and means committee to levy excise taxes on their industries. Virtually all conceded it was vital to balance the Nation's budget, but declared selected excise taxes would be discriminatory, would destroy business and inflict injury to employment and consumers.

Representatives of the American Petroleum Institute contended a 1-cent Federal tax on gasoline would drive automobiles from the highways and would encourage bootlegging in gasoline to evade Federal and existing high State taxes. This tax, if adopted, is calculated to bring about $150,000,000 annually in revenue.

Electric power and railway men declared that a 5 per cent consumers' tax on electric energy would wreck certain industries, place a heavier burden on the 25,000,000 household customers and disturb the power business. This tax also was opposed by mining representatives. About $107,000,000 annually is the estimated return from it.

A tax on household and commercial gas was held by a representative of that industry highly discriminatory unless levied in equal proportion on all other fuels. No estimate was made on its probable return.

Asked by Acting Chairman Crips what sources of revenue they would suggest, the witnesses generally urged a universal manufacturers' sales tax of 1 per cent to be levied at the factory and not pyramided by wholesale and retail sales. Manufactured products were estimated at $60,000,000,000 annually.

could not hope to win the Republican nomination for another term in the April primary.

Boss Vare had made it plain to Davis that he would have to go wet or else expect opposition from a machine candidate who was wet.

Meantime, drys have been hounding Davis, pleading with him to remain true to the cause.

Senator Davis' decision was known long before he issued his statement last night. It was made known by Boss Vare himself, who told reporters a week or more ago what the senator would do.

The shift that Senator Davis has made will be hailed as another wet triumph, and in a sense it is. However, it will require a great many more wets in Congress before a repeal resolution is adopted by that body.

The conversion of Davis, according to the figures of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, brings the number of United States senators favoring a referendum to 35.

That is just three more than a third of the Senate. It takes a two-thirds vote to adopt a resolution submitting a repeal amendment to the States.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment claims that there are 190 members in the House who favor submitting the quetsion to the people. This is 100 short of the two-thirds necessary to adopt a referendum resolution.

If Congress should approve a referendum the votes of three-fourths of the States would be necessary to bring about repeal.

Political Significance.

Looking at Senator Davis' shift from a political standpoint, it is significant. It means that henceforth he will be lined up with the other Eastern wets in the Republican party, men like Boss Vare, Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, and former Senator James Wadsworth, of New York, who are going out to the Chicago convention this June determined to write a wet plank in the Republican platform, President Hoover's views to the contrary notwithstanding.

In his statement last night, Senator Davis told how he had served as Secretary of Labor in the Cabinets of three Presidents before he came to the Senate.

After discussing unemployment and other issues, he gave his views on prohibition. At the outset, he said, he favored the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, thinking they would prove beneficial.

Ran on Enforcement Platform.

In his campaign for the Senate two years ago, he said, he announced that he stood on the Republican law-enforcement platform. At the same time, he said, he told the voters that he was awaiting the findings of the Wickersham Commission's report.

"After a careful study of the report," he said, "I regretfully reached the conclusion that the results hoped for under the program of national prohibition had not materialized, and that while it abolished the open saloon, national prohibition had brought unsatisfactory conditions which had not existed before its enactment and aggravated others already existing.

"I find I do not stand alone in these conclusions. They are shared by others. The American Bar Association, the American Medical Association, the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor and many other organizations have expressed these conclusions in formal resolutions."

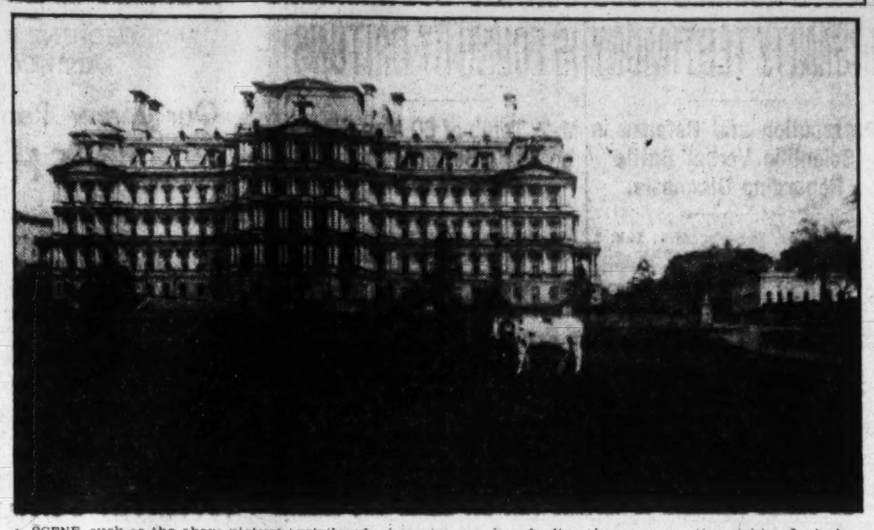
Cites Morrow's Views.

Senator Davis said that his own views on the question had been expressed by the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, of New Jersey, who advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution of an amendment which would restore to the States the power to determine their policy toward the liquor traffic.

But, as has been said, Davis also advocated modification of the Volstead act so as to legalize beer and wine. Such a modification would require only a majority vote of Congress.

However, there are many senators and representatives, who, while they might vote for a referendum, would not vote for modification. And among them are many wets.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 184



A SCENE, such as the above picture depicts, would probably cause quite a furore and not a small amount of comment, especially from the Park and Planning Commission, in these modern times of ours.

This lady's name was Pauline, and she was the pet cow of William Howard Taft while he was President from 1908 to 1912. She certainly was a privileged character, as her feeding ground was the State Department grounds and adjoining parks.

This picture shows Pauline on the grounds of the present tree-lined park where the First Division Memorial Monument stands, in the rear of the State, War and Navy Department Building.

The rear of the White House may be seen on the right. It looks as though a regular "cow" path is beginning to form across Pauline's domain. What cared she that affairs of state were being discussed in the rooms of the big building while she lazily chewed her cud and the grass under the windows, while making many gallons of milk for the then first family of the land.

Text of Hoover Statement On Cessation of Hoarding

The text of the President's statement on the cessation of hoarding of money in the United States follows:

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, under the leadership of Gen. Dawes, Chairman Meyer and its directors, is now initiating a definite campaign for reconstruction and recovery. I am gratified that the very act of creating the corporation has already shown results in the dissipation of fear and the restoration of public confidence, as indicated by the fact that recently we have had no balance, no increase in hoarding of currency in the country.

There is now a patriotic opportunity for our citizens unitedly to join in this campaign against depression. Given such patriotic cooperation we can secure a definite upward movement and increase in employment. That service is to secure the return of hoarded money back into the channels of industry. During the past year and with an accelerated rate during the last few months a total of over a billion three hundred millions of money has been hoarded. That sum is still outstanding. I am convinced that citizens hoarding currency or money do not realize its serious effect on our country. It diminishes the credit facilities by many billions. Every dollar hoarded means a destruction of from $5 to $10 of credit.

Credit is the blood stream of our economic life. Restriction or destruction of credit cripples the revival and expansion of agriculture, industry, commerce and employment. Every dollar returned from hoarding to circulation means putting men to work. It means help to agriculture and to business. Every one hoarding currency injures not only his own prospects and those of his family, but is acting contrary to the common good. It is to their own interest that they should return it to circulation, as well as a patriotic service to the country as a whole.

A prime need today is the extension and liberalization of credit facilities to farmers and small business men. The credit institutions are greatly crippled in furnishing these needed credits, unless the hoarded money is returned. Therefore, I urge all those persons to put their dollars to work—either by conservative investment, or by deposit in sound institutions in order that it may thus return into the channels of economic life.

During the Great War our people gave their undivided energines to the national purpose. Today we are engaged in a war against depression. If our people will give now the same service and the same confidence to our Government and our institutions, the same unity and solidarity of courageous action which they gave during the Great War, we can overcome this situation. I therefore request our citizens to enlist with us in the fight we are making on their behalf. I call upon our civic associations to organize in every State and town to make clear the problem and to effect our purpose. That it can be done successfully and that our citizens will respond to this patriotic service and that hoarded money will be returned when they understand its effect upon their own town life has been demonstrated by such movement in several communities already.

In order that we may have definite organization for this service, I am today calling upon the heads of the leading civil organizations to meet with me on Saturday next for the creation of a national organization to further this campaign. In the meantime, I request that the heads of such civic organizations in each State and in each community organize without waiting for the national action. I have so far invited the heads of the Chamber of Commerce, the labor and agricultural associations, the church and school organizations, the men and women's service clubs, the veterans and patriotic organizations and the trade associations.

SECRETARY MELLON TAKES POST OF ENVOY AT LONDON

Senator Reed's Comment.

"The offer is a compliment to Secretary Mellon," said Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, a fellow-townsman and political intimate of the venerable Cabinet officer. "The responsibilities of the London post during the next year will be very much greater than those of the Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Mellon is the best-fitted man in the country to be Ambassador to Great Britain."

Senator Reed added he regarded Mr. Mills as a "logical successor."

Because of his advanced age—he is nearing his seventy-seventh birthday—Mr. Mellon at first appeared reluctant to undertake the heavy burdens of the proffered London Embassy. Reminded by his friends, however, that his sound health, together with his easy familiarity with the whole course of European affairs since the war, made him more than equal to the task, he veered gradually toward a favorable consideration of the project until finally he had yielded to another urgent call to the service of his country.

Mellon Sees Stimson.

Senator Reed was a White House caller yesterday morning, but there was no official word that his talk with the President related to Secretary Mellon's appointment. An hour later, however, Mr. Mellon motored to the State Department for a long conference with Secretary Stimson. Pressed by newspapermen for an account of the conversation, the Treasury chief dismissed all inquiries pleasantly with the statement: "It is something you know nothing about."

Some twenty minutes later the private wires of the New York financial center sizzled with the report that President Hoover had decided upon Mr. Mellon for the London assignment.

Within the space of four or five seconds these reports were flashed back to Washington, but nowhere were they officially denied. At length, Mr. Mellon revealed to newspapermen, shortly after 3 o'clock, that he had the matter under consideration. Meanwhile, however, both the White House and State Department had observed scrupulously the diplomatic formality which requires consultation with the foreign government involved before any official intimation may be given that a certain appointee is under consideration. This formality was observed throughout the day, which also precluded any authoritative word that Mr. Mills had been decided upon as Secretary Mellon's successor.

Entered Cabinet in 1921.

Mr. Mellon entered the Cabinet as the appointee of President Harding in March, 1921, and his leadership in the difficult fiscal readjustments of the postwar era won for him the title, "the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Alexander Hamilton." Concurrently with a vigorous effort to systematize Federal finances, he worked unstintingly for tax reforms, for the funding of the war debts on a sound basis and for an intelligent and effective administration of the Federal Reserve System. With his policies in rich fruition when President Hoover took office in March, 1929, Secretary Mellon elected to continue with the new administration. In the entire history of the United States only two persons have served longer continuous terms in the Cabinet.

Although several of his policies during the last decade have been subjected to bitter political attack in Congress, no unfriendly critic ever has been able to sustain any charge involving either Mr. Mellon's official conduct or his private business enterprises. It was the manifest good will of his warm friends and admirers in both the Democratic and Republican ranks of the Senate which led yesterday to prediction that his nomination as Brig. Gen. Dawes' successor at London would be ratified promptly by an overwhelming majority.

Congress Approves U. S. Part in Chicago Fair

(Associated Press.)

Congressional action was completed yesterday on the measure creating a Federal commission for participation in Chicago's 1933 century of progress celebration.

The Senate accepted the amendment of the House cutting from $1,725,000 to $1,000,000 the amount to be expended by the Federal Government. Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, in obtaining Senate action on the legislation yesterday expressed to Congress the "appreciation" of Rufus Dawes, chairman of the Chicago celebration.

Coast Guard Aid Sent Shipping Board Vessel

(Associated Press.)

The United States Shipping Board freighter Endicott is aground at Tortugas, 3 miles south of the Florida Keys.

The mishap was reported to Coast Guard headquarters here yesterday with the request that assistance be rendered. The Coast Guard has dispatched its cutter Petrel to the scene. The Endicott is a vessel of 8,000 tons, employing a crew of 43 men. It was en route from Galveston to Germany.

DEMOCRATS SPLIT ON LENDING RELIEF

Plan to Permit States to Borrow From U. S. Divides Senators.

(Associated Press.)

The presentation of a Democratic plan for lending instead of giving Federal funds for unemployment relief developed a sharp intraparty row yesterday in the Senate. Nevertheless, Senate leaders said the plan, which calls for an appropriation of $750,000,000 to be divided equally between road construction and relief loans to States, was likely to be adopted.

Debate became more spirited than at any previous time this session. Senator Costigan, of Colorado, chided his Democratic colleagues who sought Federal funds last session for drought victims, but were now opposed to direct Federal aid to the jobless.

He read excerpts of the speeches made last session by Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, and Senator Black, of Alabama, in favor of appropriatiog $25,000,000 to be distributed by the Red Cross.

Robinson and Black supported the plan advanced by the Democratic steering committee yesterday as a substitute for the La Follette-Costigan bill to appropriate $375,000,000 for direct relief, which is now before the Senate.

They replied that the issue presented by Costigan's bill was not the same as in the case of the drought emergency. Robinson said he had only supported the proposal for direct appropriations last year when opposition developed to making loans and that he always favored the latter.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, joined the attack on his party's substitute proposal, branding it as a "subterfuge."

This was denied by Senator Long, Louisiana's new senator, who supported the substitute, and appealed to the Senate to "get together and accept" it.

Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, coauthor of the direct relief bill, said the Democratic substitute was "unworkable."

Costigan, in his maiden speech to the Senate, pleaded for enactment of the $375,000,000 bill for direct relief. He said the lives of "countless American citizens are today as definitely in danger as if menaced by flood, famine, fire and earthquake," and asserted failure to enact his bill would open "a new and black chapter of American history."

The Democratic substitute was introduced jointly by Black and Senators Walsh, of Montana, and Bulkley, of Ohio. The $375,000,000 for roads would not have to be matched by the States.

The $375,000,000 for relief would only be loaned on the request of a State governor who said funds necessary for relief could not be obtained elsewhere. The governor would be required to promise to recommend legislation for its repayment.

Senator Robinson, in a formal statement, called the direct relief bill "unprecedented" and said the substitute was designed to make Federal funds available "only when imperative."

out to business, under reserve safeguards, and thus starts a rotating course through the business channels of the community in the proportion of $5 or $10 credit to every dollar in currency so used.

Secondly, such currency as is not needed for business transactions relieves the pressure on the gold reserves of the country. Every dollar of Federal Reserve notes must have 40 cents of gold held behind it. The $1,300,000,000, hoarded and idle, reduces by that much the money which could be used for business credit, and likewise adds its proportionate amount to the required gold reserves.

ANNAPOLIS PASTOR GIVEN SUSPENSION

after 6 p. m. This was the third meeting of the committee. The first was on January 19, the second on February 1.

Three months ago Dr. Herson was transferred to Calvary Church from St. Mark's Church in Forest Park, here. He had been at St. Mark's a little more than three and a half years, and during that time built the present new church.

Dr. Herson went to St. Mark's from Hamline Church, Washington, which he united with Iowa Avenue Church. He sold the old property at Ninth and P streets and built a new church for the combined congregations at Sixteenth and Allison streets.

300 WOMEN IN BODY CALL ON PRESIDENT

Visit by Patriotic Conference Delegates Follows Demand for Strong Defense.

Climaxing the last day of their meeting yesterday, 300 delegates to the Seventh Woman's Patriotic Conference, which advocates expansion of national defense, were received at the White House by President and Mrs. Hoover.

The women, 800 strong, had previously descended upon the Capitol and demanded of Congress a strong Army and Navy.

The leaders whom the women expected to find at the Capitol were absent, however. They called for Speaker Garner, Democratic Floor Leader Rainey and Appropriations Committee Chairman Byrns, but did not locate them.

$625,000,000 Navy Bill.

Through their spokesman, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, they requested Representative Vinson, of Georgia, chairman of the naval committee, to secure the passage of his bill, which calls for $625,000,000 of warship construction.

He assured them that he would give his best efforts. Then they interviewed Representative McSwain, of South Carolina, chairman of the military affairs committee, who was urged to stand for strong defense measures.

After waiting for nearly an hour at Garner's door the women left. Mrs. Hobart's card was placed upon his desk.

Reds Are Assailed.

At the closing of the conference addresses were heard from Lieut.-Col. Orvel Johnson, executive secretary of the Reserve Officers Training Corps Association, and John B. Chapple, managing editor of the Ashland, Wis., Daily Press.

Johnson characterized the "greatest menace to the officers training corps" as the "Federal Council of Ghurches of Christ in America."

"How to prevent the Protestant churches from the pacifist preachers is one of the greatest problems in America today," he said.

Bitterly assailing communism, Mr. Chapple said that a group in his State, the "Republican Crusaders," intended to show that the "present La Follette experiments are stepping stones toward socialism and communism."

First Deficiency Bill Is Signed by President

RUM PRESCRIPTION ABUSE IS CHARGED

Rush Medical Head Says Well Over 90 Per Cent Are "Bootlegging."

(Associated Press.)

A statement that "well over 90 per cent" of the liquor prescriptions issued by doctors are "bootlegging prescriptions" was made before a Senate committee yesterday by one member of the medical profession and denied by another.

Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, head of the surgical department of Rush Medical College of the University of Chicago and a former president of the American Medical Association, made the assertion while testifying against a bill to legalize 4 per cent beer.

His statement was challenged later by a witness who favored the bill, Dr. William P. Lorenz, director of the Psychiatric Institute of the University of Wisconsin.

"A large number of doctors have not been able to resist the temptation of selling those prescriptions," Dr. Bevan said, "some selling the whole quota of 400 pints a year."

Increases His First Estimate.

"This makes it possible for a doctor to make about $1,200 a year out of these prescriptions.

"Of the 160,000 medical men in the United States, the lower half make less than $2,500 a year. There has been a terrific temptation to make $1,200 a year out of the prescription of alcohol.

"Certainly 90 per cent of the prescriptions written are bootlegging prescriptions."

Later he used the phrase "well over 90 per cent."

When Dr. Lorenz took the stand he was asked by Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, an antiprohibitionist, to give his reaction to "this astounding proposition that over 90 per cent of the medical profession are engaged in a conspiracy to violate the law."

Dr. Lorenz Defends Doctors.

"I was very much amazed to hear the statement," Dr. Lorenz replied. "I certainly can not concur in that statement. I am amazed at any one maligning the medical profession to that extent."

He said his experience, not only in Wisconsin, but elsewhere, had shown evidence of no such conditions.

"We have some blackguards in our profession just as there are some in every profession," he said, "and I do not doubt that some have made use of the opportunity to sell liquor prescriptions, but I certainly do not believe it applies to the profession as a whole."

Blaine said to Bevan "the situation comes to a question of enforcement and inquired whether the effect of the doctor's contention was not that "there is a lack of enforcement of over 90 per cent in the medical profession." Dr. Bevan assented.

Called Strongest Bet Argument.

"Then the prohibition law is making our doctors illegal," remarked Senator Metcalf.

"I have stated the facts," Dr. Bevan replied.

Representative Hull, of Peoria, Ill., an antiprohibitionist, said Dr. Bevan had given one of the strongest arguments against prohibition yet advanced.

Dr. Bevan said beer "will produce drunkenness," has a bad effect on the heart and liver and in some cases leads to the drinking of liquors containing larger amounts of alcohol.

Dr. Lorenz said "beer is a food, a good beverage," and not intoxicating in reasonable amounts. He said he had never seen a "mental or nervous disease due to beer drinking," although he had seen such effects from drinking of stronger spirits. Only in case of "very excessive beer drinking," he said, does the beverage injure the liver or kidneys.

Girl Wrote to Capital Friend BeforeDeath Fall

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The body of the woman killed today when she fell or jumped from a room on the tenth floor of the Hotel Taft, was identified as that of Mrs. Caroline McCoy, 21, a stenographer. Her father, Edward L. Burns, assistant manager of the shoe department of a department store, made the identification, but gave no address for himself or his daughter.

Detectives learned the woman had registered at the hotel last night as Caroline Smith, of Moundsville, W. Va. Letters found in her room were addressed to Mrs. Margaret McCoy, Washington, D. C. They also found an unsealed, unstamped envelope marked for special delivery and addressed to Mr. Burns.

ROSE ALLEN BARES BROTHER'S THREATS

Cross-Examination Develops Added Details of Events Before Slaying.

Norristown, Pa., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Uneasily biting her thin, pale lips, black-garbed Rose Allen told a jury today that her older brother, Eddie, threatened to slay Francis A. Donaldson 3d, her fiance.

She said the threat was made a few hours before the killing occurred in the marble foyer of the Allens' fashionable apartment last November.

Rose gave, too, a version of a conversation she had with her brother regarding Donaldson the day of the shooting, but failed to tell the complete story until an insistent cross-examiner wrung it unwillingly from her dry lips.

"He told me that Francis was not to come into the apartment again," she testified under the questioning of District Attorney Stewart Nase. "He said I could meet him downstairs in the lobby, but he was not to come upstairs. If he did he would blow his head off, he said.

Finally Remembers More.

"'From now on I'm running things around here and if you don't like it you can get out,' he said.

"I told him I didn't like it and I was going to get out and I asked him who he thought he was, that he was running things around here and he said he thought he was God, right at that moment."

On direct examination she said that was the extent of the conversation. Cross-examined by William T. Connor, of defense counsel, she admitted that there might have been more.

Connor asked her whether she had not said in a statement to police the day after the shooting that "Eddie said he didn't want to have any trouble with 'Skinny' because he knew he would have as much chance in a fight with him as 'Skinny' would have in a race with Eddie."

"I don't remember," Miss Allen answered after some hesitation.

"Well, did your brother make that statement?" Connor pursued.

"Yes."

Nature of 'Association' Unrevealed.

"Then you didn't tell the jury all he said, did you?"

"I told all I remember."

"He said a great deal more ,didn't he?"

"I can't remember."

During the cross-examination of Miss Allen, defense counsel referred several times to her "association" with Donaldson and once the defense asked whether she had told her father of her "relations" with Donaldson. What the association and relations were did not come out in the testimony.

Defense counsel took her many times over statements she made to test her memory as to what she said in a police statement the day after the shooting and what she testified to on the stand today. To many of the questions her answer was that she did not remember.

Nervous Under Cross-Questioning.

It was the third day of the trial and the courtroom was crowded with spectators who remained tensely interested as she spoke. Miss Allen was under direct examination for half an hour and under cross-examination for 55 minutes. She was calm and self-possessed while she was being questioned by the Commonwealth, but appeared nervous when she was turned over to the defense.

Rose wanted to show her friendliness for her brother as she took the stand and in passnig him said, "Hello, Eddie." She said it again as she went to her seat after the cross-examination.

Furred and bejeweled society, friends of the Allen and Donaldson families, occupying all avalable seats in the little courtroom, hung tensely on Miss Allen's words.

The defendant himself appeared unmoved by her testimony as a prosecution witness. Allen regarded her solemnly, his face expressing nothing, and did not return the greeting, when his sister said "hello" to him.

The sister was followed on the stand by Albert Gallatin H. Lucas, friend of Donaldson. He was the only eyewitness of the shooting and told the dramatic story of the killing which did not vary much from the detailed story he told at the coroner's inquest last November.

Jobless Mother Told She Is Heir to Million

Chicago, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—An unemployed mother of two children who came to America in 1914 as a 14-year-old "picture bride" was informed today that an uncle in Italy bequeathed her $1,000,000.

She is Mrs. Frances Taucher, 32, and she said the money would "come in handy because now I won't have to hunt for jobs and the children can go to school." Attorneys retained to represent her and friends of the family said they had no doubt but that she would get the money.

Miamian Believed Held At Witness in Rebellion

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Cliff W. Starn, Miami fishing boat operator, was arrested here today at request of Federal authorities in Atlantic City, N. J.

Starn said he beleived he was wanted as a witness in the indictment of persons in connection with the recent Cuban revolutionary activities. Department of Justice agents here withheld the cause of the arrest.

Ohio to Feed School Children.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Ten thousand Ohio school children, who have been going hungry, will be fed by the State. The State unemployment and relief committee announced it would start serving two free meals today to children in Athens County, where 7,000 bituminous coal miners are now on strike against a wage reduction. Later the work is to be extended to all sections of the State.

Denmark's Rulers Unhurt in Crash.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—King Christian and Queen Alexandrine escaped injury this evening when a big motor truck crashed into the royal limousine while they were on the way to the palace through a side street.

Bank Renews German Loan.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced today renewal of its $25,000,000 participation in the $100,000,000 central banking credit to the German Reichsbank.

SENATOR CARTER GLASS.

CARTER GLASS, Democrat, senator from Virginia, erstwhile Secretary of the Treasury, former member of the House of Representatives, walks in the manner of a man who expects his head rather than his feet to get him where he wants to go. His feet seem a sort of impediment to be dragged along beneath a forward thrust head and shoulders carried askew.

Those who believe that a senator should be a big man of picture-book impressiveness would be disappointed in Senator Glass and might wonder why it is he is a senator of power. He is a small man. He talks out of the corner of his mouth—not in a tough but in a manner purely Glassian. Those who have seen him in action are reminded of the testimony of the old, backwoods Negress who said she certainly should not be expected to specify which of the many teeth in the whirling buzz saw bit her first.

Senator Glass is like the buzz saw. Those who tangle with him are concerned afterward not so much which tooth bit them first as they are about how deep and in how many places the sharp teeth gouged.

A Protestant of no peradventure, the senator pondered the question of Al Smith's religion, and, though he opposed his nomination, tossed religion aside and taking off his coat went to work for his party's nominee, stumping the State in the face of open and undercover threats that the sentiment led by Bishop James Cannon would put an end to the senator's political career. The fiery Virginia senator became more firey and effective. He coined phrases which became classics in the last national campaign in his efforts to dissuade the voters from their apparent purpose to elect Mr. Hoover. He coined the descriptive word Hoovercrats—to designate those Southern Democrats who supported the Republican candidate in opposition to the Democratic nominee.

Senator Glass was born in his home town of Lynchburg, but he keeps secret the date. Perhaps it is indicative that in his approved biography in the Congressional Directory it is stated that he was "educated in private and public schools and in the newspaper business." He owns the morning and afternoon papers of Lynchburg. He has been a member of the Virginia State Senate, of the State constitutional convention.

Elected to the House of Representatives in the Fifty-seventh and succeeding Congresses, Mr. Glass resigned on December 16, 1918, to become Secretary of the Treasury, from which post he resigned on February 2, 1920, to accept appointment as senator. In the following November he was elected senator and since has been twice reelected.

Senator Glass is the congressional papa of the Federal Reserve act. He is recognized as one of the legislators who can talk the intricate language of the bankers and not be lost in the maze of technicalities. He is drafting a new banking bill. J. B. M.

METHODS IN OUR STORES

By H. G. WELLS

THE present distributing methods of mankind are in a state of violent fluctuation. Fifty years ago most commodities reached the consumer through three well-defined stages. First, the producer, whether manufacturer or grower, sold his produce to the wholesaler. Then the wholesaler sold to a retailer, who either sold in a shop or hawked the goods about the country. The retailer unpacked and repacked the goods; he cut up the cloth and calico, he chipped up the sugar loaf, weighed out the tea and butter. This seems, under modern conditions, of which increased efficiency in advertisement, packing and postal enterprise are the chief, to be at least one stage too many for stability, and the history of distribution for the past half century is largely the history of a struggle to squeeze out some one of the three stages. The manufacturer brands his goods and advertises them to the consumer; he may even, in the British boot trade, e. g., distribute through his own shops; retail shops unite to buy directly from the manufacturer; or as a third way to the desired end, the wholesaler cuts out the retailer and breaks out as a system of chain stores. Chain stores may thus arise either as wholesalers' shops, manufacturers' shops, or by an enterprising retailer adding shop to shop and cutting out his wholesaler.

• • • •

In America there has been a great development of mail-order houses selling their goods, not by displaying them in shops, but by describing them in catalogues and circulars which are distributed by the million. Mail-order houses appeal to a scattered population; they do for the country people what the great department store does for the concentrated urban population. The illustrated and explicit price list takes the place of the department displays.

• • • •

EVERY modification in methods of communication and carriage is felt at once in the distributing world. Each involves changes, novelties and abandonments, in warehousing and storage. The architecture of warehouses varies with improvements in handling. The old-fashioned retailer kept his goods on his premises and showed samples in his shop window. Now a dealer will keep a brightly lit showcase in a railway station, a hotel, an arcade or an exhibition of goods; he will receive your order by post in an office miles away, and pack and deliver your goods from some quite remote center.

• • • •

The breaking-up of the old retail shop tradition has also broken up the ancient traditions of the shopman. Formerly, in England and America, he was indentured as an apprentice, for four or five years, learned the "art and mystery" of selling, lived on the premises and worked upon time-honored precedents. As business grew in size and the personal contact between the employer and the apprentice diminished, the instruction of the latter in merchandising became more and more a pretense, and as the standard of living in the community rose, the long hours, the bad food and crowded housing of the living-in system became less and less tolerable. Now apprenticeship and living-in die out, and a vast variety of salesmen (often specially trained by their employing firm) take the place of the old "shop assistant."

• • • •

THE present existence side by side of old types of shop and new marketing experiments leads to a vast amount of overlapping in the distributing trades. In England there is a shop of some sort for every 45 inhabitants, and 1 person in every 25 is a nonproductive distributor. This seems a very heavy burden of not very skilled activities upon the general population. Our world is, in fact, full of goods (with sellers behind them) looking or wandering about rather vaguely in pursuit of the consumer. A typical instance of the planlessness of our distributing machinery is the wild multiplication of petrol pumps along the roads, twice as many as are needed, since the coming of the automobile. For half these adventurers struggle, failure and frustration lie in wait.

• • • •

No figures are available of waste through the deterioration of unsold goods, especially in the provision trade. Indeed, the science of distribution is still in a very backward, merely descriptive state. The general impression among financiers and business men, is that distribution in the modern community is loose, unstable, adventurous and very wasteful. But that is not the fault of the distributor. It is not only that shopping and selling change with the progress of transport and mechanism generally and with facilities for advertisement, but, as we shall see later, that customers are also in a state of flux. Purchasing power drifts from class to class. The rich and the middle class change not only in taste and in intelligence but in character.

• • • •

E. A. FILENE tells us that "the average article sold by department or other retail stores today costs the consumer two, three, four, often six or eight times its production cost." This does not seem to be a very exact average, but the statement is very illustrative of the huge unprecise interception of money due to the uncertainty and experimental disorganization of the distributing machinery of the modern state. This high cost to the consumer is not, Mr. Filene says, due to profiteering; it is due to waste. He quotes research work by C. N. Schmals (Harvard Bureau of Business Research) to show that the net earnings of a series of department stores studied, varied between 1.1 per cent and 1.6 per cent gain. His own ideal seems to be a combination of department stores with chain stores. He would have great department stores at all the centers of distribution, and each department, for boots and shoes, automobiles, watches, or what not, would be in a chain with the same departments in the other great store buildings throughout the country. This vast organization would deal directly with the producers; the middleman would be cut out entirely. This is "mass distribution" to balance mass production. As a third factor in the modern distribution of goods Mr. Filene advocates the credit union system, by which groups of employes and neighbors guarantee one another for the repayment of expedients for bringing the individual buyer into a less wasteful relation to Briareus and eliminating secondary middlemen, credit retailers, loan mongers and the like parasites upon popular distribution.

MALCOLM HUFTY, 58, NOTED LAWYER, DIES

Member of District Bar for 38 Years; Funeral to Be Tomorrow.

Malcolm Hufty, prominent attorney, died yesterday morning at his home at 2811 Fourteenth street northwest. He was 58 years old and was for 38 years a member of the District Bar.

Lieut. Malcolm Hufty, jr., his eldest son, is attached to the United States Navy gunboat Tutuila, which is engaged in patrol duty on the Yangtze River near Shanghai.

Mr. Hufty was born in Alexandria, Va., and received his early education at Prof. Blackburn's School there. His father was Francis Hufty, who was for many years a member of the real estate firm of Hufty & Dyer in Washington. He was graduated from Columbian Law School, which is now George Washington Law School.

Mr. Hufty is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mabel J. Hufty, and a second son, Page Hufty, well-known local amateur golfer.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at S. H. Hines parlors, at 1:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Rebels Routed in Ecuador.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Feb. 3 (A.P.). Revolutionary troops who revolted in the area of Tulcan were believed today to have fled across the Colombian border, the government announced. They were pursued, the announcement said, by government cavalry detachments.

MRS. JOHANN L. RYON RITES

Requiem Mass Will Be Said This Morning at 10 o'Clock.

Requiem mass for Mrs. Johann L. Ryon, of Glen Echo, Md., will be said this morning at 10 o'clock at the Chapel of the Little Flower, Glen Echo, by the Rev. Andrew H. Mihm, pastor of the church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mrs. Ryon died Monday at Georgetown Hospital in Washington.

Mrs. Ryon had resided in the Glen Echo section for the past ten years and was very active in community affairs. She was secretary of the Glen Echo Citizens Association and secretary of the Conduit Road Woman's Democratic Club. She is survived by her husband, Edgar Ryon, and nine children, Doris, Rita, Irene, Jack, Leo, Mary Ella, Betty Jane, Kathleen and Joseph Ryon.

Rites Tomorrow For Mrs. Harris

Widow of Naval Officer Will Be Buried at Arlington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock at her home at 1708 Rhode Island avenue northwest for Mrs. Sara L. G. Harris, widow of Rear Admiral Henry T. B. Harris, U. S. N. She will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Harris died at her home Tuesday after a lingering illness. She was well known in Washington, having lived here for about 25 years, although a native of Baltimore. Her only survivors are two cousins in Charleston, S. C., and two nieces in New York City.

Rear Admiral Harris retired in 1905 and died 15 years later in England.

CONGRESS MAY AIR AFFAIRS OF HOWARD

Several Members Receive Letters Condemning Rule of Dr. Johnson.

The turbulence which has marked the latter-day conduct of Howard University, leading Negro educational institution, may flare forth on the floors of Congress and result in a congressional investigation.

Anonymous communications have been received by several members of the House, and other communications which are not anonymous but whose recipients guard the identity of the senders, are tending to throw open the whole question of the conduct of the university to discussion on the floor of the House before consideration of the annual Interior Department appropriation bill, now before the House, is completed.

Representative Oscar De Priest (Republican), of Illinois, the lone Negro member of Congress, is prepared to demand a general congressional investigation of the conduct of the institution if matters are forced to an issue by an attack on the appropriations for the university carried in the appropriation bill.

Among the charges which have been carried to members of the House is one that President Mordecai Johnson is a Communist. It is interesting that the attacks on Dr. Johnson, first Negro to be named president of the university, come principally from members of his own race.

Defenders of Dr. Johnson discount the charges of radicalism against him with the statement that the university president simply has said that the rich and powerful should help the poor and weak. A minister of the gospel, they say, Dr. Johnson could not possibly be a supporter of Communism, which seeks to tear down the teachings he has sought to promulgate; that Christ sought to persuade the rich and powerful to recognize a duty to help the poor and weak.

Representative De Priest said yesterday that he does not intend to take the initiative in forcing the under-cover fight to an open issue.

"If the matter is brought to an issue I shall seek to persuade the House that it is of such importance that hasty action should not be taken," Mr. De Priest said.

JAPAN'S OBJECTIVE.

Although Japan intimates that it is willing to quit fighting at Shanghai if the Chinese will agree to quit also, the fighting continues, with every indication that Japan will not cease firing until it is in possession of the Chinese city.

With Shanghai in its grasp Japan would be in a position to exert great pressure upon China in the Manchurian negotiations. In dealing with Manchuria Japan insists that third parties shall not participate in the negotiations. Thus, if the Japanese plan at Shanghai should be made effective, China would find itself forced to relinquish rights in Manchuria as the price for ousting the Japanese from Shanghai.

Japan is anxious to avoid a clash with the great powers, but it is equally anxious to fasten its grip upon Manchuria. The Shanghai operations reveal very clearly that Japan will go to the verge of general war in pursuit of its object. The situation is filled with danger, even if Japan intends to cease aggression as soon as it has taken the native city. China, while signifying its desire to end hostilities at once, can not be expected to accept a status quo which would leave Japan in possession of Shanghai. China will demand that Japan withdraw, and will probably follow up the demand by fighting. In addition to this danger of war there is the possibility that one or the other of the combatants will be so hard pressed as to encroach upon the rights of other powers and force them into hostilities in self-defense. Certainly the United States would not condone the slaughter of Americans on the plea that they were slain as an "unavoidable incident" of hostilities between Asiatics.

Japan is pursuing a plan which threatens to make a great war inevitable. The powers which agreed ten years ago in Washington to respect the territorial integrity and independence of China will never agree to the absorption of Manchuria by Japan. China will never make lasting peace with the invader. A forced peace with Japan in possession of Manchuria would be merely the prelude to war. The powers entitled to equal opportunities under the open door agreement will not relinquish these rights to Japan. How they will compose their differences with the Asiatic empire short of war is a question of the future.

What is now clear is the fact that Japan's diplomatic and military objectives are one and the same. The empire is acting as a unit, in spite of the protestations of its diplomatic representatives. Japan entered upon an adventure last September whose sequels no one can foresee, but with each act of aggression the resistance to Japan increases and consolidates. The empire may have a secret ally, or perhaps two; but it courts disaster nevertheless, by antagonizing nations to which it has given its pledge to respect the territory and independence of China.

SANTIAGO'S AFFLICTION.

A succession of catastrophies throughout the world, convulsions of nature and disasters that are the work of man, bring forcibly to attention the widespread interests of Americans. The latest calamity to strike without warning descended upon the City of Santiago, Cuba, where an earthquake of unprecedented severity in that region brought many houses down upon the heads of sleeping citizens. Solid stone structures of typical Spanish construction which have stood unscathed for centuries were shattered, and the ancient cathedral is so damaged that its towers may fall at any time.

Santiago is the second city of Cuba, an important seaport on the southern side of the island at the eastern end. It is almost surrounded by hills that contain the famed Cuban mines of copper, iron and manganese. American capital is largely interested there, though not many Americans live in the city. First reports gave an exaggerated estimate of the casualties from the earthquake. Prompt and adequate measures have already been taken to aid the injured and homeless.

American assistance, as usual in such cases, has been rushed to the stricken district. First among the relief agencies were surgeons from the United States fleet at Guantanamo, who took medical supplies and professional aid for the injured. Ambassador Guggenheim also departed from Havana upon receipt of the news of the catastrophe, to assist and give authoritative reports of the situation. Santiago has suffered from earthquake disturbances before, but this latest visitation is the most disastrous of its history, and with increased population more persons are affected. The city and its afflicted residents have universal sympathy, and if more substantial assistance is needed it will be forthcoming from American friends.

MR. MELLON AS AMBASSADOR.

The many pressing questions of first importance in international affairs, involving problems of cooperation between the United States and other governments, require at this time the best counsel at London which the President can obtain. He has accordingly made the unexpected choice of Andrew W. Mellon to be Ambassador to Great Britain.

The urgency and importance of international economic and political questions awaiting attention is most emphatically disclosed when the President finds it necessary to take Secretary Mellon from the task of balancing the budget and rehabilitating the finances. His work is well begun, but not finished; and if domestic questions alone were concerned, it would be an absurdity to suggest that he should be transferred to London. But the duties of the American envoy to Great Britain are of a peculiarly delicate and confidential character, and it is obvious that President Hoover will have in Mr. Mellon a counselor in whom he can place absolute confidence, both as to ability and discretion.

The threat of war hangs over the nations. The United States is virtually compelled to cooperate with certain nations, especially those which are parties to the nine-power treaty. Europe's economic crisis alone thrust critical questions upon the United States. Secretary Mellon's experience, his wisdom, and the respect which his name commands throughout the world will be most useful in dealing with foreign relations. As Ambassador to Great Britain he will be in a position to advise the President in all problems arising from the confused situation in Europe and the Far East.

NO DOLE FOR THE STATES.

The Democratic substitute for the La Follette-Costigan dole bill is not impressive. Instead of drawing $375,000,000 from the Federal Treasury for direct relief in the States the Democratic measure would make available $750,000,000. Part of that sum would be used for road construction and the remainder in the form of loans to the States.

Senator La Follette's measure is objectionable because it would make Uncle Sam a dispenser of charity, thus weakening the responsibility of the States and local institutions. The Democratic bill seeks to overcome that objection, but in doing so it deepens the hole in the Treasury, which already has a deficit of $2,000,000,000 in prospect for this year. Congress may find it difficult to decide which is the lesser of the two evils. But if Congress faces the issue squarely it will conclude that both propositions are beyond the pale of practical legislation. Senator La Follette proposes a dole for individuals. The Democratic leaders propose a dole for the States. One is hardly less demoralizing than the other.

The expenditure of $375,000,000 on highways would be pure extravagance. Automobile traffic fell off considerably last year. Of course, better highways would be a fine thing, but the States are already heavily in debt because of lavish road building. Yet the sum proposed, if spent in highway contruction, would give work to only a small fraction of the unemployed. The present situation can not be met by further extravagance.

Furthermore, the practice of appropriating money from the Federal Treasury to be spent by the States is vicious. State governments regard it as a handout, and frequently spend it recklessly under the pressure of creating work for the unemployed. Last year when the Government appropriated a large sum to be matched by the States for road construction, with a view to relieving unemployment, some of the States used convict labor as part of their contributions.

No one can deny that want and distress exist in most parts of the country. But 43 of the States and most of the cities have already taken care of the situation. Others are preparing to do so. If the Federal Government steps in they will relinquish their efforts and conditions will not be improved.

What advantage could be gained by opening the depleted Treasury to the States? Ultimately the money thus spent must come from the taxpayers. If the States borrow from Uncle Sam the Treasury will have to borrow from the people.

If funds must be raised to start a larger program of road building to create employment the States are in a position to do it better than the Government. The Legislatures are in a better position to know the requirements of their own States than is Congress. If money should be advanced to the governors merely on their promise to seek legislation to reimburse the Government friction would be added to the other problems growing out of the depression. It would be madness for Congress to appropriate a handout for the States without the approval and consent of their Legislatures.

The more this problem is discussed, the plainer it becomes that Congress should not usurp the responsibilities of local government, not even in times of emergency. Local government has not broken down. Every State is capable of looking after its own people. States which believe that they can ease the burdens upon their people by surrendering their duties to a bureaucracy in Washington are simply hiding their heads in the sand.

THE GLASS BILL.

A major controversy has developed around the banking bill purporting to have been written by a Senate subcommittee of which Senator Glass was chairman. Although the measure was given to the public about two weeks ago, the sentiment of bankers regarding it did not become articulate until the last few days. When the 61-page document has been fully analyzed by experts in the banking field, widespread opposition to some of its features may be expected.

At present the public attitude toward the measure is confused. The bill does not present one issue; but a dozen or more. It would make a sweeping revision of the present national banking structure. Obviously, it can not be discussed, much less approved or rejected, in its entirety. Each feature of the measure should stand or fall upon its own merits. While financial experts may be unanimous in the approval of some provisions, on others they disagree, and some parts of the bill are universally condemned.

Insofar as it tends to strengthen the banking structure, the Glass bill ought to be given an early hearing. But the wisdom of trying to revolutionize the banking structure at this time may be questioned. The needs of the country at present are abnormal. Congress might not be able to enact, under the influence of the depression, a measure that would serve the country in normal times. Bankers charge Senator Glass with trying to punish the country for the 1929 speculation orgy by fastening drastic permanent legislation upon the banking system.

That provision in the bill for emergency credit expansion is applicable to the present situation. Whether or not the exact formula prescribed in the Glass bill would accomplish that purpose is a question for experts. But the need for more flexible adjustments of the banking system to times like the present is not seriously questioned. The provision requiring a national bank to keep its capital, surplus and undivided profits equal to 15 per cent of its average deposit liabilities for the previous year is considered noncontroversial. Its effect would be to strengthen the position of smaller banks. Branch banking, too, has advanced to such a stage that Congress should not hesitate to allow national banks to enter that field within properly restricted areas. Perhaps the provision for a liquidating corporation for closed banks will meet with approval from a majority in Congress in view of the present emergency.

Most of the criticism of this bill is leveled against the so-called deflationary provisions and those designed to prevent the diversion of money to the stock market. Certainly, this is no time for Congress to force further deflation, or to restrict credit. It is highly questionable whether Congress should ever attempt to curb stock market transactions through the manipulation of credit facilities. At any rate, Congress is not prepared to embark upon such a venture at present. Such issues require exhaustive study and investigation.

It would be unfortunate if the questionable features of this bill should prevent deliberate consideration of those constructive provisions designed to strengthen the credit structure in this emergency. Congress should not hesitate to strike out those undigested portions that seek to make the banking structure an agency of moral reform. Let each section be considered separately. What the banking system needs just now is added strength, and not revolutionary changes.

A trade attache reports that Shanghai showed little signs of the depression in 1931. No wonder Japan wants to capture the place.

The Farm Board should now claim that it knew war was coming and for this reason started the campaign to save wheat.

WASHINGTON "QUARTERS"

From the Detroit Free Press.

The Government's decision to contribute to the George Washington bicentennial a two-bit piece bearing a profile of the Father of His Country is calculated to make the long since well-desiccated dust of prominent anti-Federalists whirl about in their graves. They it was who kept a likeness of Washington off American coins during his lifetime. They were afraid that to stamp his head on coins, an ancient Roman practice, would turn him into a Nero or a Caligula.

Alexander Hamilton, as Secretary of the Treasury, sent to the Congress in 1790 and 1791 certain recommendations for the establishment of a financial system. Among them was one for the creation of a mint. Congress adopted it without disagreement. Attached to this recommendation was a proposition that the coins struck at the mint be imprinted with the head of the President during whose administration they were issued. A heated debate took place.

The opposition declared that the proposal smacked too much of the practice in monarchies, where coinage was adorned with the heads of the emperors and kings in whose reigns it was minted. They had just gotten rid of George III and his shillings. They had no mind to risk elevating another George to a throne by jingling his profile in their pockets. The upshot of it all was that the Goddess of Liberty, whom they expected would preside over our national destiny to the end of time, was stamped on the coins, while Presidents from that time to this have passed away unhonored thus, uncoined and unclinked.

Washington has been dead 133 years. The fear of monarchy in this country, a very real fear among certain people in his day, also has passed away. The adoption of Hamilton's suggestion would have been as great a boon to coin collectors as that which the Government has recently extended to collectors of commemorative stamps, but it was better that it be rejected, for the Washington 25-cent pieces are thus enabled to stand out as a unique and therefore all the more notable tribute to the memory of the man they will be minted to honor.

The Geneva conference says that if some one will disarm Japan and China it can tackle Europe with more hope.

Well, how would you and 20,000,000 more Americans feel about breaking your neck to help the unemployed if you knew Uncle Sam was handing out doles?

Japan will find in the peace plan proposed the purpose to put her right back in the position she occupied when the Manchurian row started.

Justice Gordon finds that the divine right of immunity not only allows a congressman with impunity to be careless of his language on the floor but he can go outside and say it again.

The copy writers are here to get Congress to fix the copyrights so they can get the movie rights. All right!

Notes don't mean much to the Japanese, but bond quotations are making them take notice.

The Willard-Henderson heavyweight battle at Chicago developed two broad-gauged, double-track diplomats, and in the contest both of them and the country won.

Premier Inukai says Manchuria is nearly 1,000 miles from Shanghai and the Shanghai is an affair entirely separate from the Manchurian incident." If the premier really thinks Manchuria has no connection with the Shanghai incident don't blame Japanese coolies and the army for getting things twisted.

Chinese officials move their capital well inland and recover composure as they recede from the Yellow Sea.

The result of several brave stands the Chinese soldiers have made since the Shanghai attack began will be, as in cases where resistance was offered in Manchuria, to tighten the Japanese hold. A nation's army must be effective or it might as well adopt Gandhi's method.

Texans won't hold that plug hat against Speaker Garner when they see how he wears it on the back of his head.

Sidelights: Mr. Raskob sidetracks prohibition; Mr. Baker sidesteps and Mr. Roosevelt sideswipes the League of Nations; official Democratic campaign conveyance—the side car.

SONG OF DIFFICULTY.

Oh, let us hold together through these days of stormy weather.
Let us make a jest of hardship and a quip of carking care.
Let's build bonfirese of our crosses and high memories of our losses
And press forward to tomorrow with our heads up in the air.

Let's not dwell too long on sadness,
for in fretting much lies madness,
And a gay heart, so they tell us,
will a grieving heart outrun.
Though to dreary tasks we buckle,
let us do it with a chuckle.
Who can grin at Old Man Trouble has his battle party won.

Let's not make so much of trial and the need for self-denial!
Let us give up feeling sorry for ourselves and face about!
Let's defy each dismal rumor with our native sense of humor!
Let us get our heads together and we'll work this problem out!

The Best Ship Can't Weather a Storm If Everybody Takes to the Lifeboats.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

BANK depositors ruin themselves.

The chief security of their deposits is their own faith, and by losing faith they destroy the foundation of the whole banking system.

No bank is stronger than the faith of its depositors.

There isn't a bank in America that could remain open in the best of times if all of its depositors lost faith in its security; and, by the same token, nothing but theft or criminal carelessness can break the ordinary bank in time of depression if depositors keep their heads and their faith.

"He who would save his life shall lose it" was spoken of the soul, but it is equally true of money in banks.

The explanation lies in the fact that the actual sum of money in existence is only a fraction of the sum deposited in banks.

The total sum of money in America, outside of the Treasury, is less than eight billion dollars; yet in ordinary times the banks have eight times as much to the credit of their depositors.

How can the banks hold fifty-five or sixty billion of deposits when the total sum of money in the land is but a fraction over seven billion?

The answer is that money circulates.

When you deposit a thousand dollars in a bank, the money isn't locked in a vault to await your return. If banks functioned that way, all of the money would be in storage and there would be nothing to do business with.

The bank lends your money, taking ample security to make the loan safe, and thus makes the profit that enables it to serve you. The bank keeps enough cash on hand to meet the ordinary demands of its depositors, but it lends as much as it safely can—keeping the money busy so that each dollar in the course of a day does the work of twenty or thirty or forty.

If all depositors demand their money at once, the bank must close its doors. The money is safe, but it is loaned to Tom, Dick and Harry and can't be recovered until it is due.

But if you and other depositors keep your faith and support the bank in its ordinary conduct of business, every dollar is as safe as steel vaults can make it.

No honest bank "fails." It merely continues business as usual until depositors fail in faith and thus destroy it and themselves.

Next, a Clash Over Aliens.

Minneapolis Journal.

Before a congressional subcommittee is a resolution to submit to vote an amendment to the Constitution that would exclude aliens in the census enumeration for apportioning representatives in Congress. If there are as many aliens in the United States as in 1920—they numbered 14,000,000 then—adoption of the amendment would change the representation of one-third of the States. Massachusetts would lose two representatives; New York four, Pennsylvania one. There were seven States with 700,000 aliens each in 1920—Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan and California.

The line up on the measure is partly urban against rural, but more particularly wet against dry. It is argued that the predominant alien population, being grouped in cities, now contributes to exercising undue power in Congress, compared with rural strength there.

Mr. Baker's Gesture.

Manchester Union.

It is not surprising that Newton D. Baker's sudden pronouncement that he would not take the United States into the League of Nations if he had the power to do so, and that the League should not be opposed or advocated in the platform of either political party, should be interpreted as an attempt to remove a possible objection to his eligibility as a Democratic presidential nominee. In the light of Mr. Baker's earlier silence and his refusal to allow his name to be mentioned as a presidential aspirant, this statement has no ominous ring.

So far as the League of Nations is concerned, Mr. Baker's tactics are sound, even though they indicate that the more extreme Wilsonians are beginning to recognize that the sponsorship of that organization has become a liability rather than an asset to the Democratic party.

And when the Record has some more appointments to make it will probably let Hoover know.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Traffic Regulation Not So Difficult If Safety Is Ignored; Accidents Increase.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several months ago a director of traffic was imported from Pennsylvania to give expert aid in the smoothing out of our traffic difficulties. In all respects except one, as most motorists will agree, the work done has been fairly satisfactory. Trees have been cut down, streets widened, one-way streets posted, stop-go signals placed and synchronized, the left-hand turn perfected, and other basic details attended to, so as to speed up traffic.

But the speeding up of traffic is not the most important problem of a traffic director. It is not the most difficult. Means for the simple regulation of motor vehicles are now pretty well standardized. A bright high school boy, if he knows his city as well as most high school boys do, could choose a suitable arterial highway as readily as the accomplished expert. The hardest traffic problem is that of safety, and, to judge from the record of daily accidents and frequent fatalities, street traffic experts, unlike railroad experts, have seemed to assume that to increase speed and decrease danger at one and the same time is impossible.

The obvious conclusion is that traffic experts with single-track minds have been found wanting and that a traffic director should be warm-blooded as well as practical—a humanitarian not less than a technical expert. In other words, he should not be satisfied with his work so long as the excessive toll of death and broken bones continues, and should, if necessary, go out of his way to insist that a salutary number of reckless and incompetent motorists be arrested and punished even if it involves an intensive campaign of plain-clothes law enforcement, to which, possibly, some of his more cool-headed conferees might object.

Uncle Sam Should Pay Hospital Bills and War Orphan Expenses of Foreign Debtors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would suggest as one way of helping solve the economic ills of the world today and make thousands of people in foreign lands love us is by being their good big brother.

Allow credit on reparation payments and war debts what the foreign countries pay for wooden legs, glass eyes, pensions, hospitalization, &c., of soldiers. Allow credit for sums spent in support of widows and orphans and other direct war sequels. The poor devils who were butchered and shot to pieces were not responsible for the war. The boy orphaned by the war is now in his teens and needs schooling which has been denied him by the loss of his father.

This country can spend a thousand dollars easier in this way than it can pay $100 in gold on a war debt.

Stop Home Brew and People Will Turn Wet With a Vengeance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gen. Grant once said: "If you want an obnoxious law repealed than enforce it."

If the antiprohibition party would introduce a bill in Congress to repeal section 25 and section 29 in regard to cider and fruit juices, title II, and then see to it that it was strictly enforced, the arid, hypocritical atmosphere would disappear over night, as that would mean the invasion of the sanctity of the homes, which the national prohibition law does not allow.

Just as long as the people under the national prohibition act could make their home brew and have intoxicating cider and wines in their homes they were satisfied to vote the dry ticket, not caring that their birthright had been sold for a mess of fanaticism.

Why should Congress today be wasting all of its valuable time in trying to modify the national prohibition act by allowing 2.75 or 4 per cent beer which, unless President Hoover changes his tactics, will be vetoed?

By repealing sections 25 and 29 in regard to cider and fruit juices, title II, they would accomplish something and put the drys on record.

Tunnels Under Certain Circles Would Make for Speed and Safety.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The suggestion of J. B. Webb that tunnels be run under the circles is a good one and ought to have earnest consideration. Such tunnels would greatly aid both speed and safety. They would cost much money, of course, but the Government pours out money like water in enterprises that afford only momentary benefit, while this would be a permanent improvement. Not all the circles would need to be tunneled. There is certainly need for more relief from dangerous congestion in many places.

WORLD BRIDGE TEST MATCH IS PROPOSED

Col. Beasley Will Probably Lead English Team in Culbertson Session.

London, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A world bridge test match, in which teams from all the bridge-playing countries would compete, is the dream of Col. H. I. M. Beasley, who probably will head the English team which plans to invade America some time this spring to take on the victorious Ely Culbertsons and whoever else may be handy.

Col. Beasley, who plays for Crockford's Club, London, has high hopes for such a contest.

"As many nations as wanted to could compete," he explained. "The match could be held, say, in London—since it is the handiest—sometime this year, preferably in the fall.

"Personally, I should prefer that it should not be played for any stakes, but merely for the fun.

Bring Nations Closer.

"Actually, I think such international matches would be a great thing for the world, especially if they might become annual events. They are another means of bringing the nations of the world closer together and in something that all bridge players, at least, will understand without any translation."

Countries which might participate in such a match, Col. Beasley said, are England, America, Germany, Holland, France, Austria, Italy, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Japan.

Col. Beasley left England February 2 to see Culbertson in New York and discuss the visit of the English team next spring—probably in late April and early May.

The Crockford's Club team hopes to accept as many invitations to play in various cities as their time will permit.

"I understand that Cleveland is a hotbed of bridge," Col. Beasley said, discussing the cities in which the team might appear.

Culbertson System Used.

Most of the English players use the Culbertson or American system, he said, and any battle would not be between systems, but between individual wits.

"I use the forcing bid myself," he said, "but I like a two club variation of the 'forcing two' bid. Sometimes I use the psychic bid, as well, but not often."

Col. Beasley, retired from the British Army, is a bluff Englishman, with gray hair, a ruddy complexion and bright blue eyes. He has a smart sense of humor, and he likes to play without any cross-table arguments.

"I played against the Culbertsons here 18 months ago—I found them extraordinarily quiet and if anything, too careful in their playing. I don't think there's much difference between American playing and that of any nation."

Col. Beasley has been playing contract for about nine years. Before he played the continental style contract, which differs in scoring.

The English players likely to accompany him to America when the arrangements are definitely made will be picked from these five: Capt. George Morris (now in Cuba), Sir Guy Domville, Capt. Horace Renshaw, Mr. Tabush and Edward Mayer.

Woman's Body Found After Tabernacle Fire

Houston, Tex., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The body of an unidentified woman was recovered late today from the fire-swept ruins of the Raymond T. Richey Evangelistic Tabernacle.

Dr. J. W. Sinton, a member of the congregation, said he "understood five or six persons were in the prayer room in the third floor of the tabernacle when the fire started," and rescuers sought other victims. The city fire marshal directed the hunt launched as soon as the blaze had been controlled and the heat had subsided to some extent.

Man Says Ghosts Told Him to Murder Seven

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The most brutal wholesale murder in Manitoba's history was believed solved today when police said they obtained a confession from Tom Krechkozie, 28, that "ghosts" ordered him to kill the family of seven at Elma. The seven, all relatives of Krechkozie, were slain with an ax and knife Friday.

Krechkozie was captured yesterday at Contour, 12 miles from Elma. He worked as a farm hand for his uncle, Martin Sitar, who was slain with his wife and five children.

Blackmail Attempted On Jockey Club's Head

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—An alleged attempt to extort $7,500 from James N. Crofton, president of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, was announced today by police.

They said the millionaire sportsman had met last night a representative of a gang that threatened him and four other prominent San Diegans and arranged for payment of the money tomorrow. The man who met Crofton escaped and eluded followers. Plans were laid to trap him and other members of the gang.

Woman Flier Will Try To Save Furs on Ship

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edna E. Christofferson, Portland flier, arrived here today from Portland, to meet William R. Graham and make plans to accompany him on an air search for valuable furs aboard the abandoned steamer Baychimo in the Bering Sea off Point Barrow.

Mrs. Christofferson expected she and Graham will leave Friday for the North. She will act as Graham's co-pilot.

Building Trades Wage Slash Affects 115,000

"Christian Internationalism" Topic Discussed; Philip Ben Greet There.

A significant conference in view of the situation in China and the proceedings at the Geneva parley on the limitation of armaments is being conducted this week at the College of Preachers of Washington Cathedral on "The Gospel of Christian Internationalism." Twenty-four Episcopal clergymen and one distinguished layman, Sir Philip Ben Greet, of London and New York, are participating in the conference, which is being conducted by the Rev. D. A. McGregor, professor of dogmatic theology at the Western Theological Seminary.

Sir Philip Ben Greet, who is a well-known Shakespearean actor both in England and this country, is attending the conference as a guest of the college.

The clergymen at the conference are: The Rev. John Mockridge, of Philadelphia; the Rev. Fred Arvedson, of Pekin, Ill.; the Rev. Frederick T. Ashton, of Greenville, Del.; the Rev. Carleton Barnwell, of Lynchburg, Va.; the Rev. F. Craighill Brown, of Southern Pines, N. C.; the Rev. Joseph R. Clair and the Rev. Charles Patterson-Smythe, both of Syracuse, N. Y.; the Rev. James C. Crosson, of Buffalo, N. Y.; the Rev. D. Maxfield Dowell, of Piqua, Ohio; the Rev. John W. Field, of Charles Town, W. Va.; the Rev. Harold L. Gibbs, of New York; the Rev. Richard H. BODIES OF 2 HIKERS FOUND ON MOUNTAIN Third of Climbing Trio Is in New Hampshire Hospital With Frozen Limbs.

Twin Mountain, N. H., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The bodies of two young mountain climbers were found today by searching high on the snow-covered side of Mount Washington within a short distance of the summit shelter. They had become exhausted trying to reach safety Sunday.

Ernest McAdams, 27, of Stoneham, Mass., and Joseph Chadwick, 23, of Woburn, Mass., were the victims. They were found where they had fallen after several hours of fighting off fatigue in a heavy blizzard.

Several miles away, in a Whitefield Hospital, lay Donald Higgins, 23, of Winchester, Mass., the only survivor of a trio which had started out to climb the mountain "for the fun of it."

His face and his hands were frozen as he tried to aid his companions, as first McAdam and then Chadwick dropped in the snow. For two days and nights he had nursed his injuries in the summit shelter before he found the strength to make the descent yesterday and tell of the tragedy.

A searching party of 28 hunters and trappers found the two bodies near where Higgins had said he had last seen his chums. First McAdams' body was found and then a short distance farther on the b dy of Chadwick was found, half-covered by the drifting snow.

$350,000 Award Made For Damage to Scenery

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—An award of $350,000 for alleged damage to the scenic value of Hahatonka, famous Ozark beauty spot, by the waters of the new artificial "Lake of the Ozarks," was made by a Federal jury here today to the Snyder estate of Kansas City. The lake, part of the $30,000,000 hydroelectric project of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., partially inundated Hahatonka.

The trial lasted more than eight weeks. The tilts of the rival counsel, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, for the Snyder estate, and Walter H. Waine, Houston, Tex., for the utility company, attracted many spectators. Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor, was one of the witnesses for the Snyder estate.

GANDHI'S SON PICKS DUTY, SPURNING LOVE

Devi Das Prefers Jail With His Family to Happy Married Life.

New Delhi, India, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Caught between love and duty, Devi Das, youngest son of the Mahatma Gandhi, has chosen duty in preference to a beautiful 19-year-old bride.

Imprisoned here yesterday in the government's drastic drive on Indian Nationalists, Devi Das had made a deliberate decision to court arrest for civil disobedience, it became known today. Simultaneously was revealed his romance with the charming daughter of C. R. Rajacopalschari, one of his father's closest friends, and one-time president of the Indian National Congress.

The marriage of the young couple was arranged a few hours before the Mahatma was imprisoned at Poona. The wizened old leader gave Devi Das in marriage before he was whisked to jail, and the ceremony was to have come about at the earliest possible moment.

Faced with the knowledge that a warrant was out for his arrest and knowing full well that flight to the Northwestern frontier trouble spots would mean immediate detention, Young Gandhi attempted to make the flight. He was promptly seized and placed in jail, making the fourth member of the Nationalist's family who has been imprisoned in the renewal of civil disobedience.

Declaring that he was deeply attached to his fiancee, the handsome, olive-skinned young man argued it would not be right for him to covet happiness in marriage while others in his family were suffering for the ideal of independence.

Meanwhile the government's program progressed apace, orders going out to Bombay police to fire on any violent mob which refuses to disperse.

Unofficial figures revealed today in Bombay that a total of 20,000 Nationalists had been imprisoned in the new disobedience program throughout India. The Nationalists themselves were not idle. A. Hoon, Indian member of the legislative assembly, introduced today a resolution demanding dissolution of that body. He charged that India was ruled by ordinances and that the legislature had ceased to function.

Drive Against Indian Disobedience Attacked

Madras, India, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Declaring he had witnessed a "disgrace to British justice, law and order" Peter Freeman, former member of the British Parliament, today telegraphed Premier Ramsay MacDonald in London asking an official inquiry into the campaign against civil disobedience.

His message said: "Just personally witnessed merciless hitting of unaggressive, unarmed and defenseless citizen until unconscious in a public thoroughfare, which was encouraged by English officers. Without inquiry or trial such daily exhibitions in many towns disgrace British justice, law and order. Please arrange official inquiry."

Stories on Murder Destroyed by Wife

Mrs. Biggs Fires Clippings on McBride Case as Husband Is Held.

Mrs. Temple Biggs, whose husband is charged with being an accessory to the murder of Barney McBride, has burned a collection of clippings relating to the crime since the arrest of her husband, Sheriff W. C. Hopkins said yesterday.

The Prince Georges County official said that Mrs. Biggs, when she visited her husband in jail Monday, told of having the newspaper stories of the case. Yesterday the sheriff went to her home near Camp Springs and asked to see them, thinking there might be written comments on them to give a clue. At this time Mrs. Biggs said she had burned them since talking to her husband, the sheriff said.

The remains of a number of trucks and autos have been found in the woods where the truck used to transport McBride's body is supposed to have been burned, the sheriff said. Whether any of them are the make of fast truck said to have been used in the murder has not been determined. Two persons have said that Biggs told them of the killing and said the truck was so bloody it could not be cleaned and had to be burned. Biggs, however, still denies knowing anything of the death of the wealthy oilman whose body was found in a Meadows, Md., culvert in 1922.

Second Wife Slayer Hanged.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Andrew Bodz, 53, second convicted wife slayer to die on the gallows at Headingly Jail this week and the scaffold's third victim since Monday, was hanged this morning. Bodz was sentenced to death for the murder of his wife at Pine River, Manitoba, last July.

NEW YORK'S SHERIFF INDICTED IN INQUIRY

Farley and His Predecessor Charged With Grand Larceny on Fees.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—While Sheriff Thomas M. Farley guarded a condemned murderer today, he and his predecessor, Charles W. Culkin, were indicted for grand larceny.

The indictments were the second and third returned within ten days as the result of revelations before the Hofstadter legislative committee investigating the city administration.

James J. McCormick, deputy city clerk and Tammany leader, was indicted by the same grand jury ten days ago. He was accused of accepting illegal fees.

The indictments against Sheriff Farley and former Sheriff Culkin are the result of testimony they gave the committee regarding their bank accounts, which showed incomes far in excess of their salaries as sheriffs. The excess, they testified, came partly from interest which they retained on money intrusted to their care. They argued they were entitled to the funds, since they were liable for any losses that might result.

Both appeared before Judge Max S. Levine in General Sessions late in the day and pleaded not guilty. They were released in bail of $2,500 each and given until February 15 to change their pleas or make motions on the indictments.

Each man was named in two indictments. Both of those against Farley charged second degree larceny, while one against Culkin charged first degree and the other second degree larceny.

The indictments were returned as Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter committee, was trying to have Farley removed from office and to prevent the board of finance from granting Culkin the usual retirement annuity when he leaves his position Saturday as head of the pension division, which he assumed after completing his tenure as sheriff.

Farley was told about the indictment, while guarding George Harris, holdup man sentenced to electrocution for killing a policeman. Three hours later Farley and Culkin presented themselves for fingerprinting.

Antifreeze Drinking Toll 9 as 4 Others Die

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Four more deaths today from drinking an antifreeze mixture brought the total here for three days to nine. Seven of the victims were members of a single drinking party.

The other two have not been definitely connected with the group, but their deaths are ascribed to the same cause. One more victim is not expected to live. Still another is apparently recovering.

3 MESSAGES WARN OF MARLBORO BREAK

Escape Plots of Suspects in Teahouse Slaying Fail to Materialize.

Emphasizing two previous warnings that an attempt might be made to liberate suspects in the Bladensburg teahouse slaying from the Marlboro Jail, the Department of Justice yesterday told Sheriff W. C. Hopkins that they had heard of an escape plot.

According to the Justice agents, the assault on the jail was to have been made yesterday afternoon. It did not materialize, however. No special guard is being kept at the jail, but guns are being overhauled and oiled and ammunition bought. Sheriff Hopkins does not put much faith in the warnings, but he and his deputies are being prepared.

Monday an anonymous phone call from Philadelphia told the sheriff that Peter Abbott, held for the murder, had hacksaw blades and weapons. A thorough search of the jail failed to disclose them. Tuesday a letter from the Baltimore police department warned authorities to be on the lookout for such an attempt.

Another of the suspects in the shooting, Thomas Simone, who is also charged with murder, is said to be in in a serious condition at Gallinger Hospital. During the hold-up which resulted in the murder of Grover Amick last November 23, Simone was shot in the leg. The fractured bone did not mend properly and had to be broken and reset. Simone then became worse.

Woman Doctor Named Town's Health Officer

Dr. Katerine Chapman, who was the first woman interne to serve at George Washington University Hospital, was yesterday appointed health officer for the town of Kensington, Md., by Mayor Frederick W. Brown. The appointment was made to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Eugene Jones, former State senator, several months ago.

Dr. Chapman, who has been a resident of Kensington for about 31 years, graduated in medicine from George Washington University in 1925. After serving her internship at the hospital, she began her practice in Kensington. Dr. Jones was health officer for the town for many years before his death.

4 Takoma Park Residents Saved From Burning Boat

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Six persons, two of them women, were rescued from a flaming boat four miles off Miami today just before they would have had to choose between death in the fire or a struggle for life in high waves. However, all were burned, one seriously.

Flames licked the head and body of Mrs. Russell H. Armentrout, of Takoma Park, Md., and she was hurried to a hospital at Miami Beach in a critical condition. Her husband and L. J. Matthews, jr., and his wife, of Takoma Park, and A. T. Fine, captain of the boat, and his son, C. W. Fine, were injured less seriously. All were treated at the hospital.

Matthews said the party left the city yacht basin early today for a fishing trip to the Gulf Stream. About four miles offshore a fire developed from the motor and enveloped the middle of the boat, an auxiliary sloop.

The flames were between those aboard and the life preservers in the front of the boat, Matthews said. They battled the fire for forty minutes with a hand fire extinguisher before another boat, the Princess Pat, reached them. Their boat was burned nearly to the water's edge and the fire was creeping toward their last stand in the stern.

The fire and the rough seas prevented the Princess Pat from coming alongside and Capt. Robert Burns threw out life preservers and ropes. Those on the burning boat jumped into the water and were drawn to safety.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews and Armentrout were unable to swim, but were assisted to the life preservers by Capt. Fine and his son. Because of her burns, Mrs. Armentrout also had to be assisted. Physicians said her recovery is doubtful.

The four persons injured at Miami yesterday left Takoma Park Saturday for a brief Southern vacation. Mr. Armentrout, whose Takoma Park address is 108 Cedar avenue, is manager of an auto accessories shop at 944 I street in Washington. Mr. Matthews is a building contractor of Takoma Park and Washington. He lives at 53 Takoma avenue, Takoma Park.

Radnor Heights Citizens Ask Greater Protection

A letter has been directed to Gov. John Garland Pollard, of Virginia, by Vito Tassono, resident of Radnor Heights, Arlington County, appealing for protection against the number of homes which have been broken open in that section.

The letter was signed by more than 60 residents of that section in which they claim that there have been a number of such crimes without resulting in remedial action by local authorities.

Bulk of Lappe Estate Left to Son and Husband

The will of Mrs. Sarah A. Lappe, who died January 24 at her home in Battery Park, Md., was filed yesterday in Orphans Court, at Rockville, Md. The will bequeaths all her property to her husband, C. Eugene Lappe, and son, E. Clinton Lappe, to be held in trust until the husband's death, at which time it will revert to the son outright. The husband will receive the income from the Pitts property at 130 to 140 Wineskiddle avenue.

Should the son die before his father, the estate is to go to his wife, Mrs. Ruth Lappe.

The will also directs that three diamonds be sold to pay for the education of her two boys. The sum of $5 monthly is left to Mrs. Lillian McGrew Lappe, widow of another son.

Ambulance Is Donated Marlboro Rescue Squad

A rescue squad is being organized among members of the Marlboro, Md., Volunteer Fire Department. Its members are now taking the Red Cross first aid course. An ambulance given to the county squad by Casualty Hospital is now being reconditioned for the Marlboro unit.

It is expected that the Marlboro group will be headed by Henry Morris, captain of the fire department last year. The ambulance service of the Marlboro squad will supplement the service now given by ambulances at Bladensburg and Glenn Dale.

Silver Spring Volunteer Firemen to Give Smoker

The Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department will hold a smoker tonight for the men of the Silver Spring community who are members, former members of prospective members of the department. Each member is expected to bring a prospective member to the smoker, although attendance will not necessarily mean that the guest has to join, according to Leo Bender, president.

A program of informational talks, entertainment, reminiscences and a buffet supper is planned. Members are requested to bring along decks of cards. The smoker will begin at 8 o'clock at the engine house on Georgia avenue.

HOOVER SUPPORTED IN ARLINGTON TALKS

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 309. Clarendon, Va.

"The depression through which we are today passing can not be charged to any one man or to any party," declared Peter F. Snyder, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Labor, at the monthly meeting of the Arlington County Republican Club last night at Clarendon.

"With the House in the hands of the Democrats and the Senate only by a small margin Republican, the most gratifying thing is that Congress has supported President Hoover in all of his plans to relieve the present situation," he said.

George H. Zeutzius, the next speaker, member of the Young Republican Club of the District of Columbia, called upon the Republicans of the county to put their shoulder to the wheel and return Hoover to the White House.

It was voted to hold the March meeting in Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon.

Considering more good can be derived by giving employment than by handing out funds to the unemployment of Arlington County, Frank Lyon, president of the firm of Lyon & Fitch, developers of Lyon Village, makes public the following letter written to the secretary of the Arlington County Welfare Board. The letter in part reads:

"We have decided during this year to furnish work to the unemployed to the extent of $100 at the rate of $2.50 per 8-hour day. We will create new work to this extent."

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier and Lyman M. Kelley, member of the Arlington County Board, left yesterday for Lexington, Va., where they will attend the seventh annual conference of the Virginia State Highway Department.

County Manager Roy S. Braden will speak at the monthly meeting of the Barcroft Garden and Civic League in the community house at 8 o'clock tonight.

The county manager of Arlington County yesterday authorized the issuance of a permit to Sidney A. Sharpe for erection of a dwelling at Fort avenue and Spruce street, Clarendon, at a cost of $6,700.

Soft Shell Crabs Make Debut Before Schedule

Certainly Mother Nature does not seem as decorous as she has been given credit.

It seemed to be folly when spring blossoms opened last month, but even more disconcerting is the evidence that she has given the crabs leave to doff their long underwear.

Never in memory of folk at Benedict, Md., have soft shell crabs been caught before summer, but Tuesday, groundhog day, Roy Thompson, of the Maryland town, captured one in summer garb.

Second Released In Ilsley Murder

Furnace Man Fails to Aid Search for Slayer of Two Women.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Feb. 3.—Alex Grayson, 35, colored, former convict and furnace man at the Ilsley house at the time of the murder of two women, arrested Saturday on a warrant charging he was an accessory to the crime, was released this morning from Leesburg Jail by order of Commonwealth's Attorney John Gallcher.

The man was subjected to another questioning late yesterday, but could throw no further light on the crime. He was taken into custody after authorities discovered discrepancies in his account of his movements on the night and morning of the murder.

With the release of Grayson, who is the second suspect arrested and released in connection with the double murder, the authorities are apparently no nearer a solution than on the morning of the crime.

Kenneth Waters, a son of Horace D. Waters, was named administrator of the estate of his father, wealthy storekeeper and banker, of Old Germantown, Md., who was murdered last month by holdup men. The administrator filed bond of $100,000. The value of the estate, which includes real estate and personal property, is estimated to be in excess of $100,000.

Mr. Waters was shot and almost instantly killed by a holdup man while struggling to retain possession of a pocketbook containing about $100. Montgomery County, Baltimore and Washington police have been unable to capture the slayer.

BICENTENNIAL MASS OUTSTANDING EVENT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The bicentennial celebration at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Alexandria, on February 21, when the Rev. Richard Blackburn Washington, of Hot Springs, Va., will be the celebrant of a mass at 11 o'clock, promises to be the outstanding bicentennial celebration of the Catholic Church in America, according to the reports of the laymen in charge.

The committee on arrangements includes the Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, chairman; Judge William P. Woolls, Martin E. Greene, Michael T. Dwyer, William Lindsey Carne, Francis H. Fannon, Frank H. Nowland, Mrs. Annie L. Demaine and Miss Frances McDermott.

An invitation has been extended to the Rev. Thomas A. Conlon, national director of the Holy Name Society of the United States, to attend.

The officers of the George Washington Birthday Association of Alexandria yesterday applied to the State corporation commission for a charter, stating the organization is a non-profit-sharing one. The purposes declared are to hold patriotic celebrations, meetings and other affairs in connection with the celebration of the birthday of George Washington. The officers who are to serve for a term of two years are: William Albert Smoot, president; Harry F. Kennedy, vice president; Martin E. Greene, secretary; J. William May, treasurer. The foregoing with the addition of Harry D. Kirk constitute the board of directors.

The time limit for candidates filing their declaration of candidacy to enter the Democratic primary to be held April 5 for the purpose of nominating two members of the city council, will expire at midnight tonight. Thus far only three candidates have filed their notices, two of the incumbents whose terms expire, Michael T. Dwyer and Benedict Weil, and Capt. T. M. Hamilton. Councilman Dwyer and Weil were elected by the council to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Councilmen Thomas J. Fannon and Carroll Pierce.

The will of the late Edward H. Kemper, dated July 20, 1914, was admitted to probate yesterday in the circuit court for Alexandria. The entire estate was left to his wife, Mrs. Fanny L. Kemper, who qualified as administratrix without bond.

The blade we are talking about is made by the new management under a new process. Do not confuse it with the former "new" Gillette blade

WE hope you share our charitable feeling for clerks who attempt to "switch" you from a demanded product to another "brand". When successful they make a commission or PM, and they need the money. So don't blame them. They are honest, hard-working young men and really merit your sympathy.

We call your attention to substitution at this time only because it might stop you from trying today's Gillette. This blade is a stirring achievement. We have good reason for our elation. We positively guarantee it as the sharpest and finest blade we have ever manufactured. The proof of this statement rests entirely with you. We urge you to try the blade—resisting any attempt at substitution this once. Self-interest prompts this message, of course. We feel sure that no clerk could possibly make you "switch" blades when you have experienced the matchless comfort of shaving with today's Gillette. Don't blame the clerk if he tries to substitute—but say Gillette and mean it.

Newspaper accounts commenting on the present Japanese controversy brought about by the exclusion of Japanese students from American schools in San Francisco and by the large increases of Japanese immigration to Hawaii and Russia bring out the fact that Japan has increased her budget $60,000,000 to provide additional military forces and that China has made the sum of $10,000,000 immediately available for the establishment of naval bases.

The State rested in the murder trial of Harry K. Thaw today. The defense is making a plea based on hereditary insanity and that when Thaw shot Stanford White he thought he was acting as an agent of Providence.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

CANDID WINTER VACATIONIST.

"WANTED—By a substantial manufacturer from the North, a room with bath; meals (prefer fruit and vegetables); also garage space; must be on East Coast, anywhere between Palm Beach and Key West. Corns are my trouble and wish to go barefoot some of the time. Box U-145 Herald—The Miami, Florida, Herald.

Box U-145, Miami Herald.

Dear Sir: I saw your advertisement in the paper and I hasten to say that I think we have just the sort of place where you would feel at home. We have a room with bath, plenty of fruit and vegetables, garage space, &c., but what's more we have a sympathetic attitude toward roomers with corn troubles. We can understand your desire to go barefoot (an ambition which among Northern manufacturers is not due entirely to corn troubles this year, we understand), and can assure you every encouragement with us.

* * * *

Many of our winter guests have had corn troubles, and we have specialized in this type of clientele. Last winter we had two bankers who not only went barefoot with us but did not have a shirt to their backs. Sockless Sam Shrewsbury, of whom you may have heard, comes here every winter to room with us. Some people like to have their guests wear shoes and stockings, and are, in fact, finicky about this, but we have always aimed to be broad-minded and tolerant, and if our guests want to run around with their socks off, that is their business.

* * * *

OUR place is not far from Palm Beach, where some of the best people are barefooted this season, and that isn't the half of it. You will like the neighbors. There are several Northerners near us who haven't worn any socks or shoes since the Florida boom, and, in fact, one of them hasn't worn anything but a loin cloth. They all have corns, and so you would have much in common.

* * * *

Thank you for stating your case so frankly in the advertisement. Most people who advertise for a room don't give a clear idea of their personal habits and a lot of trouble results. There is nothing like a clear understanding in advance, so that when a new guest comes down to dinner in his bare feet there will be no resentment.

* * * *

Hoping that you will take our room and assuring you of our deep personal sympathies for your corn troubles, we are, sincerely yours,
MR. AND MRS. EPHA STRUTTERS.
———, Fla.

P. S.—Of course it would be nice if you would put on your slippers for Sunday dinner.

ON the snow-covered slopes of Lake Placid, N. Y., 300 athletes from seventeen countries will participate in international broadcasts during the III Olympic Games. Beginning today, and continuing through February 13, NBC and CSB announcers will relay descriptions of each day's events over the national networks and several of these will go also to their short wave stations for retransmission to other countries. Winning athletes at the winter games will send greetings to their homelands in their native tongues.

The NBC broadcasts will include descriptions of the opening and closing ceremonies, a dog sled race, a ski race, a ski jump, bobsled races, the hockey finals, and resumes of the daily events.

Ted Husing will do a daily resume at 4:45 o'clock each afternoon over WMAL.

Following is the NBC schedule through Sunday:

Today, 10:00 a. m., WJZ, WBAL—Opening ceremonies.

Today, 4:45 p. m. WRC—The day's resume, Ed Thorgersen.

Tomorrow, 4:45 p. m., WEAF network, but not WRC—The day's resume, George Hicks.

Saturday, 4:45 p. m., WRC—The day's resume, Ed Thorgersen.

Sunday, 2:15 p. m, WJZ, WBAL—Start of 30-mile dog sled races, Clem McCarthy.

NORMAL service by radio has been maintaind between Shanghai and the United States continuously by the R. C. A. Communications since the beginning of the bombardment in the Shanghai area, and the station has never been bombed or damaged, according to J. B. Rostron, traffic manager. The only disruption of the main circuit occurred in the early morning of last Friday, due to a brief interference with the wire line connections between the receiving office in Shanghai and the transmitting station.

"R. C. A. Communications has handled a greatly increased volume of business between Shanghai and the United States since the beginning of the Shanghai disturbance," Mr. Rostron said. "This is the only direct communications connection between Shanghai and the United States. The circuit which was placed in operation a little more than a year ago, is one of the longest and most reliable in the world, having installations of the most modern short-wave transmitting and receiving apparatus."

The second anniversary of the American School of the Air will be observed today. The programs are being transmitted by 73 stations from coast to coast as the school enters its third year.

In evidence of the increasing importance of broadcast education, the American School of the Air will be represented this year, for the first time, at the annual conference of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association. The conference will be held in Washington in February.

A BROADCAST of a literary tea which will bring before the microphone several men and women prominent in the literary world, gathered to meet Branch Cabell, will be heard over WMAL at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Cabell is none other than James Branch Cabell, who announced last year that, following the publication of his last book, "The Way of Ecben," he would never write another book. He is now bearing out his statement by using the name of Branch Cabell for his new work, "These Restless Heads," selected as the February publication of the Literary Guild.

Among those who will speak are Carl Van Doren, Grand Duchess Marie, William McFee, Burton Rascoe, Hendrik Willem Van Loon, George Jean Nathan and Corey Ford.

Ethel Borden Harriman, socially prominent daughter of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, will be guest speaker over WMAL tomorrow night, 8 o'clock.

The story of a curse haunting an old English family for many centuries will be the theme of the story related by Dr. Watson during the Adventures of Sherlock Holmes program tonight (WRC, 9:30 o'clock).

An orchestra formed by the boys at the National Training School, Bladensburg road northeast, and under the direction of Robert Jones, will present a half-hour concert over WJSV at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

DISCUSSING the Far Eastern situation, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, addressing the National Radio Forum, declared that vigilance was the word of the hour.

"Uncle Sam had better look up," Senator Lewis concluded significantly, "and look out."

The Apollo Club of Illinois Wesleyan University, which consists of 30 male voices, directed by Virgil Greene, will be featured during the National Farm and Home Hour tomorrow (WRC, 12:30 p. m.)

A program to be known as Auth's Old Timers will make its debut over Station WRC next Monday night at 6:15 o'clock. The program will be heard every Monday night for one year. Old-time numbers will be featured.

Leon Brusiloff will conduct the orchestra, with MacGregor Brown as soloist. Mr. Brown will be heard in a short recital over WRC this afternoon.

Japan's attack on the native settlement at Shanghai, the reign of terror at Nanking, the mobilization of American and British forces in Chinese waters and declarations by foreign ministers of the nations involved will be dramatized when the March of Time goes on the air tomorrow night (WMAL, 8:30 o'clock). * * * Bernardino Molinari will make his second appearance as leader of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra tomorrow afternoon (WJZ, WBAL, 3:15 o'clock). * * * Owing to the fact that W3XJ, the Jenkins station, is changing its operating frequency from 1,604 to 1,550 kilocycles there will be no sound transmission from that station in conjunction with W3XK, the television station, during the remainder of this week. * * * A story covering three generations of a shipbuilding family will be given by the Radio Guild in its presentation of "Milestones" tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 4:15 o'clock). * * * Lieut. Col. Ulysses S. Grant, 3d, grandson of President Ulysses S. Grant, will broadcast a descriptive tour of the old Ford Theater, where President Lincoln was martyred, through WMAL on Lincoln's birthday.

THE latest invention of Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle is a sieve without holes—this masterful kitchen implement designed for the use of those who aren't particularly interested in straining anything.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Coat dresses are new, and this one from Jenny, Paris, is charming in black wool, with a black satin belt.

New York, Feb. 3.

SOMEWHERE between winter and spring styles, a new color for trimmings has sounded its cheerful note. It's just a hint, and whether it will develop into real importance will depend entirely upon Milady and her acceptance or rejection of it. 'Tis red I'm speaking of, not the all-red of winter smartness, but the brilliant little touch of red that has replaced the emerald green touch and the turquoise of a couple of seasons ago.

Red is now brightening up many a somber black, warming up many a quiet brown, contrasting many a dark green. It is very discreetly used, too—never more than a twist of ribbon or a feather flower, or a belt. And quite often in combination with white, just as emerald green was used last year with white, both shown together on a darker costume!

And I predict that red touches will be popular, for any number of reasons. First, maybe, because red is cheering and cheerful. Secondly, perhaps, because it is so becoming to most every type, the brunettes choosing the ruby reds, the blondes and demi-types choosing the corals. And finally, because it is the only color note that we haven't been sounding for trimming lately.

The Beauty Sorceress.

My deahs, I could just laugh, if it weren't more of a crying matter! For after simply dozens of years trying this and that to keep my limbs, (pronounced legs) shapely, a very old Japanese masseur has to tell me that if I lie on my back with my, er, limbs, propped up against the wall, quite, quite over my head—for just half an hour every night, they will keep their contours and be slim. 'Course I didn't believe it—but since I read every night an hour or so after I am in bed anyhow, and since I did know that standing on one's head at the gym has a curious way of resting one, I just tried it. Of course, with no results—the first two nights! But—well, I'll tell you the rest tomorrow!

That leaflet! Them six-in-one dress! Well, if you miss me all of a suddink, I'll tell you now why it will be—because a pyramid of those requests for the sketch 'n' directions for making the one dress that is six toppled over an bur-r-r-ried me! Not that I care—I am glad to see that so many of you believed me when I said that this was absolutely the easiest dress to make, and the best looking one I had ever seen, because that is absolutely true. And as to the five sleeve and vestee sets on a guimpe that make six dresses out of this, that's no exaggeration either, because each of the three who go to make up this reduced-in-numbers Fashion Fambly has a different version of this six-in-one dress. And, it takes two and a half yards of material to make, yes mam! So better add your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the pyramid, and get the leaflet telling you how to make this dress. Send letter to Dare, The Post, you know.

You do remember how I told you about coat dresses being very much in the mode, don't you? It's coat dresses of the kind I sketched for you today that make this a fashion fact! Jenny, with her genius for taking fifteen years off of any figure over fifteen, designed this one—just simple black wool, with a satin belt, but how charming, and practical!

West opened the Queen of clubs, which Dummy took with the Ace. A spade was led from Dummy and won with South's King when East ducked. South then led a small heart to Dummy's Queen and immediately suspected the distributional freak confronting him when East discarded a diamond. Another spade was led from Dummy and East won with the Ace, cashed his King of clubs and led a small spade which South took with the Queen, discarding a diamond from Dummy. South then ruffed a club in Dummy (East discarding a diamond) and returned the diamond five which East topped with the eight. Not wishing to take the chance on this obvious freak of allowing West to get in for a trump lead, and being prepared for an end play, if necessary, South trumped with the Ace and West made the fatal mistake of discarding a club. (Who would blame him?) South then ruffed his last club in Dummy and returned a diamond which he trumped with the King and on which West was forced to drop the heart six. At this point South held the Knave-nine of hearts and the eight of spades, while West held the Ten-eight seven of hearts. Of course, South led his small spade and took the last 2 tricks, making his contract of four-odd doubled.

East's Double was not sound, as his hand is extremely freakish and his partner has constantly passed. However, the hand is an extremely interesting one because of the careful play of the Declarer in trumping the first diamond lead high and the preparation and subsequent execution of the end play by South. However, as Mr. Melton so justly pointed out in sending me the hand, West had the opportunity to defeat the contract by a defensive coup, a double exit play in which West would undertrump twice so as to avoid taking the lead at the eleventh trick. Through this play the Declarer's contract, unwisely doubled by East, would have been brilliantly defeated by West.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: Does the actual honor-trick value of the hand ever change because of the honors held in the trump suit by the Assisting Hand?

Answer: No. The honor-trick value does not change but the trump trick value may. For example, should my partner bid one heart and I hold the heart King. As an honor-trick, this King is still worth only ½ honor-trick, but because of the fact that such suit becomes trump, it is worth 1 trick, but I must only count the higher value when assisting my partner, in which case I do not also count the honor-trick value. For any other purpose than assisting my partner it still counts as only ½ honor-trick.

Wives of Tomorrow

"Keeping Him Afraid."

VIOLA is about to be married, and wants to play safe, so Viola wants the statistics on husbands.

"My father has always been afraid of my mother, and I notice that it seemed to work very well. There were never any arguments. Mother handled all the money, disciplined us, and really was the head of the house. Now my prospective husband never seems afraid of me unless I become really angry, which is seldom. I do not want to be like my only married sister. She has to consult her husband about everything and they never seem able to agree on anything. I think one person should do the deciding, but I would never let a man do it, if I could help it. All I can get out of mother is, "Begin right and you'll have no trouble." I want to begin right. So what should my attitude be?

And right there one sees all the glamour, all the romance departing for parts unknown. The magic words are not yet said, the bride is asking how she may so intimidate, threaten, or brow-beat the trusting and defenseless lover into that state of complete insensibility where there can be no more pain, no more hurts, just one large ache of disillusionment.

What we want to know is how a young girl can picture with any sort of thrill a life time of this sort of thing. Bad enough to see one's father cringing and crawling but one's prince glorious? Of course, it is natural that daughters of a weak man should be domineering, but has love lost all its powers?

Truly men today face a cheerless prospect. Girls who want to pay the dinner check, girls who want separate homes, girls who want obedient husbands. What manner of world is this going to be when love has finally been laughed out of the picture? What will compensate us for the loss of that sublime sense of being taken care of, that perfect assurance that all is well because he is right in the house smoking his pipe, that feeling that whatever comes up he will settle it for all time and make everything right? It seems to us that that feeling is almost necessary to a woman, that without it, she is not quite intact. If so, what will she be when man is at last just a menial?

We do not like to think of Viola's poor lover. It hurts too much. For regardless of what woman's weird whims have done to man in the last few recent years, the fact is still evident that man must go on worshiping woman no matter what she does to disguise herself, or lessen her lure. Man is such an innocent creature, simple, elemental, defenseless. He looks at his big homely hands and at the smooth little hand that nestles so snugly and so safely in his grasp, and the thing is done. He gives up all that he possesses, freedom, friends, loose change, and stakes all that he may win for himself all that he visions as he gazes spellbound at that very small hand that knows exactly what it is about.

Poor man like a sheep he trots to the slaughter. Only his heart is beating high, and where the sheep knows all about the slaughter, poor man knows only that now at last he is fulfilling his destiny, now at last he is really a man, a husband, a protector.

And at his side trots a very competent little baggage, who is figuring just how she is going to keep him afraid of her! If she only knew that nature took care of all that far back in the dawn, and that man left to himself is really by instinct scared to death of the small being who can send his blood racing or chill him to the very soul.

How to make him afraid? We would say just keep him enchanted, the star dust in his eyes, poor simple-hearted soul that he is!

Collarless necklines on suits, and gay scarfs to wear with them won high favor at the Spring opening . . . and here they are together in a stunning single-breasted suit copied from Lucille Paray . . . which also boasts the important military influence in the shoulder cape. HOW TO KEEP WELL

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

ACIDOSIS TREATMENTS.

THE habitual treatment of acidosis is the internal administration of bicarbonate of soda. This treatment has proved far from satisfactory. In most cases acidosis ends spontaneously, or is cured by the processes of nature, and taking soda as a remedy does no good. In some it does harm and in a third is possibly of service.

Dr. V. E. Levine, of Omaha, thinks the basic reason for the lack of success with the bicarbonate treatment is that it is based on chemistry rather than physiology. A blood analysis may show that the blood reaction is low in alkali, but that state may not mean that the system is not in good condition. Often the lessened alkalinity is an effect and not a cause. These and other points make the routine use of soda in the treatment of what may be called acidosis inadvisable.

Dr. Levine tells us what to do in some dozen or more emergencies in which acidosis is a marked feature of the symptoms picture:

In the coma which develops so frequently in the course of diabetes, the best treatment by far is insulin. Given promptly and properly it is a veritable lifeline. So very efficient is it that some propose to use insulin in meeting other emergencies.

At the other extreme from diabetes is the coma, and sometimes convulsions, caused by acidosis by reason of too little sugar in the blood. The emergency treatment for that is to inject some sugar solution and to give the patient some sirup to drink.

Akin to the acidosis just mentioned and at the opposite pole to acidosis of diabetes, is the acidosis of hunger and starvation. The treatment for that is food in some easily absorbed form. Sirup, candy, sugar and a sweetened fruit juice stand toward the head of the list of such foods.

Newly born babies sometimes have difficulty in getting the first breath of life. The customary way to meet this condition is to slap the baby's body, to throw cold water on him, or to hang him by the heels. These methods are useless and inefficient and they may be even worse. Science has proved that even an older method—one approved by some religious rites as well as by folklore—is the right one. It consists in clearing the baby's mouth and nose of mucous and then having some person blow his breath into the baby's mouth and lungs.

The best way to overcome the acidosis of a dead drunk is to have the unconscious man breathe a mixture of 95 parts oxygen and 5 parts carbonic acid gas. A few minutes of this and the drunken man begins to breathe deeply, his blood alcohol drops rapidly, and consciousness returns.

SEEDS AND APPENDICITIS.

C. S. writes: Are grapeseeds or blackberries liable to cause appendicitis?

REPLY.

No.

TEMPERATURE FOR OFFICE.

H. I. writes: What is the correct temperature for an office?

REPLY.

Seventy, as a rule. If the floor is warm, and there are not many drafts, 68 is a better temperature.

BUGS IN THE FLOUR.

Mrs. A. B. asks: It seems that in any cereal, flour and even boxes of raisins I find small insects about the size of an ant. They are almost dark brown in color. In the flour there are small white worms. My flour is kept in a can, always covered lightly. The cereal is kept in the ice box.

REPLY.

There are at least a dozen insects that have their habitat in flour, meal and cereals. The present methods of milling and marketing flours and cereals are based in part on the danger that weevils will develop in the article after it leaves the manufacturer and before it reaches the consumer. That is one reason for white flour rather than whole wheat flour, desquomated meals, sealed packages, and so on. The insects hatch from eggs laid in the grain or cereal. These moths, weevils and worms are harmless, but they are not nice. Report your findings to your grocer.

Madrid, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Authorities throughout Spain today began confiscating Jesuit schools, colleges and residences while 3,500 former inmates peacefully disappeared into towns and cities as private residents or embarked for other countries. Jesuit superiors assured the press and public that the brotherhood would vacate completely without resistance.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE three plants which have been attacked by root aphids; is there any way of saving these plants? MRS. SETH W. M.

Sometimes tobacco solution poured over the soil in the pots will rid plants of root aphids If this does not have the desired effect all I can suggest is that you remove the plants from the soil and wash the roots with whale oil soap (one-quarter of a pound to two gallons of water). Then rinse in cold water and repot in clean, fresh soil.

I have several ferns in a glass inclosed though unheated porch. Please tell me how low a temperature they will stand without injury.

MARION D. T.

In the coldest weather the temperature in which ferns are growing ought never to go below 55 degrees at night. A raise of temperature during the day of 15 degrees is sufficient.

Is it hard to make a cutting from a cactus plant? MRS. PAUL H. L.

No, it is quite easy. Just remove a piece of the plant you wish to propagate. Since the tissues are watery, the cut surface must be callused before the cutting is planted. Lay it on some blotting paper in a sunny situation, where there is a good circulation of air, for a few days. Then plant in a sandy loam. Late May and June is the time to take off cactus cuttings because the wound will then heal quickly and well.

Please explain what is meant by a wardian case. HELEN F. P.

A wardian case is really a miniature greenhouse. It is made of glass with a wooden or metal frame. In the bottom of one of these wee houses is a zinc pan of earth. The plants are set in the soil and then watered and the case closed. The moisture transpired by the foliage and evaporated by the soil condenses on the glass and drops back. As a result there is always a humid atmosphere in the case and but little watering has to be done. These cases are usually planted with woody plants and delicate ferns.

I want to have some fall-flowering Paris daisies, chrysanthemums and begonias. I now have plants of each of these varieties but they are in a forlorn state and must be discarded. Is there any way I can remove cuttings from them before throwing them away? MRS. HENRY F. T.

Yes. This is the time to start cuttings from all of the plants mentioned. In the case of the begonia you can also save the parent plant. After removing the cuttings cut the plant back to the roots. It will, as the warmer days come, send up new growth and be as beautiful in May as it was in September.

Are palms apt to be injured if the room suddenly becomes really cold. Our fires went out the other day and since then I noticed the ends of the leaves of all my palms are turning brown. Due to a defective flue, our fires had to be put out and remain unlighted for almost thirty-six hours. The temperature went below freezing during that time.

MRS. ARCHIE H. G.

Palms are usually injured by sudden drops in temperatures or by drafts blowing across them from an open window or door. This causes the plants to become chilled and the leaves turn brown and the plant may eventually die.

The only way to store these plants is to keep them under skilled care in some greenhouse.

Is the century plant a species of agave? ROBERT T.

The century plant is a succulent plant, known botanically as agave Americana.

PLAUDITS ARE WON BY ROSA PONSELLE

Mario Basiola Is Costar in Last Musical Morning of Season.

Rosa Ponselle, America's favorite prima donna, gave a gala finish to the last of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's musical mornings for the season at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday in a concert which will linger long in the memory of all privileged to hear it.

Mario Basiola, barytone, Miss Ponselle's costar from the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, shared honors with the soprano and also contributed a number of splendid solos to the program.

One of the high points of his singing was in his masterly rendition of the prologe from the opera "Pagliacoi." This great song for barytones seldom has been as well sung as by Mr. Basiola yesterday.

It was followed by a group of ballads in French, Italian and German beautifully sung by Miss Ponselle, the grace of the diction in all these languages adding to the vocal achievement.

Miss Ponselle reached the acme of her performance in the aria "O Divina Afrodite," from the opera "Fedra," by Romano Romani.

In the duet from the third act from "Aida" both of the stars were in good voice and well earned the applause which followed it.

The first musical morning of the season 1932-1933, under the auspices of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, will be given at the Mayflower Hotel on Wednesday, December 7.

Henderson Leaves Estate of $282,927

Widow, Son and Three of Daughters File Petition for Probate.

An estate of $282,927.67 was left by Richard W. Henderson, prominent merchant, when he died December 17, it was shown yesterday when his executors, who are his widow, a son and three of his daughters, filed a petition for probate of the will.

The widow is Mrs. May W. Henderson and the children are Richard W Henderson, of Baltimore; Ethel W Henderson, Eleanore Henderson, Esther L. Henderson and Mrs. Claribel H. Brooks, all of this city, and Mrs. Elizabeth McCaffrey, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Dorothy H. Stengel, of San Diego.

The son is to have $10,000 in cash and his father's jewelry. The remaining personal estate is to be distributed among the widow and daughters and there was a provision in the will that a home is to be provided for the widow and unmarried daughters. The income from the real estate is to be divided between Mrs Henderson and her children.

Student Loan Fund Recital Is Arranged

Zonta Club Will Sponsor Benefit to Broaden Educational Aid.

With several girls now being given business and professional training through the student loan fund of the Washington Zonta Club, wide interest is attached to a benefit recital to be given by the club tomorrow evening in the Wardman Park Theater. The proceeds from the recital, which is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock, will accrue to the educational fund.

The Zonta Club, which is an organization of business and professional women, will present two of Washington's most gifted young artists, Miss Evelyn Davis, in a series of dances, and Miss Frances Gutelius, pianist.

In the last seven years thirteen girls have been given educational assistance through the Zonta Club's student fund, and all but five now hold responsible positions. The benefit recital will consist of a program of interpretative dances and musical offerings of the old masters.

Merchants' Group Elects F. R. Jelleff

Chosen as Director During National Convention of Dry Goods Body.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A prediction England would lower within a few weks her high antidumping tariff was made today by Gerald Campbell, British Consul General in New York.

He told the import managers' section of the National Retail Dry Goods Association convention that Great Britain is looking to this country for a large share of the new market she seeks.

Division directors elected were William H. Burkhart, G. Fox & Co., Hartford, Conn.; Albert M. Post, Mandel Bros., Chicago; Frank R. Jelleff, Washington, D. C.; Frank Smith, Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia, and Arthur W. Wright, William Filene's Sons Co., Boston.

Citizens' Service Group Selects New Director

Wilbur La Roe, jr., was elected to the board of directors of the Citizens Service Association to succeed William Knowles Cooper, who died recently. The board met at Calvary Baptist Church.

A special guest at the gathering was Canon W. Sheafe Chase, of New York City, who spoke of his life-long interest in the cause of temperance.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

HAROLD LLOYD, who of recent years has formed the crafty habit, to which Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks also are addicted, of making only an occasional picture, thus promoting a ravenous appetite for all their wares on the part of the omnivorous picture public, according to all reports is about to branch out and become a producer of pictures other than the latter-day few in which he personally appears.

It is expected that negotiations between the Harold Lloyd Corporation and Eddie Quillan, youthful movie comedian, which will make Quillan the only other player in the organization—at least for the time being—will be successfully culminated this week.

There is an economic side to this arrangement that will prove distinctly salutary to the Lloyd organization. With other pictures than his own to make, he will be able to keep his organization intact the year round at no financial loss. Profit, I believe, is one of the main ideas!

It is emphasized by William R. Fraser, general manager of Lloyd, that this acquistion of Quillan as an up-and-coming comedian does not at all presage Lloyd's retirment or indicate that Quillan is being groomed to take his place. Three, possibly four, Quillan releases a year will be scheduled—just enough to keep the studio wheels turning.

The last time I heard anything approaching accuracy about it—and that was a good many years ago—the Lloyd income amounted to about $35,000 per week, or some such trivial sum, so, you see, some drastic action had to be taken to keep that wolf from galloping clear down the hall into the dining room and frightening the children!

For those who are interested, "Lysistrata," the Gilbert Seldes adaptation of the old Greek play, which ran for two weeks at the Maryland Theater in Baltimore, is now in its third and last week of nearby showing at the Auditorium Theater, on Howard street, in the Monumental City.

The early bookings at the Fox are noteworthy. The pictures scheduled are "Cheaters at Play," with Thomas Meighan and Charlotte Greenwood; "Business and Pleasure," with Will Rogers and Jetta Goudal; "She Wanted a Millionaire," with Joan Bennett, Spencer Tracy and Una Merkel; "The Gay Caballero," with George O'Brien, Victor McLaglen, Conchita Montenegro and Weldon Heyburn, and "After Tomorrow," with Charles Farrell, Marian Nixon and Minna Gombell.

Booked for personal appearance during the same period are El Brendel, the famous Swedish comic from Philadelphia, and Ben Lyon, screen star on his own account and husband of Bebe Daniels.

A special attraction for Lincoln's birthday in the Capital will be the first appearance on the lecture platform of the distinguished British orator and statesman, the Right Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, who will be heard in one of his brilliant discussions of "The World Crisis," in Constitution Hall, February 12, at 8:15 o'clock, under the auspices of the Community Institute of Washington.

The Washington Chapter of the American Society of Magicians, of which Judge W. J. Hughes, of the Department of Justice, is president, tendered a luncheon to Cardini, featured on the current bill at RKO-Keith's, at the National Press Club on Tuesday.

I understand the boys counted the silver very carefully after they were gone!

Attractions in the theaters and music halls—not to mention the halls of music—are so numerous and so very varied during the ensuing week that it probably will be best to recite them without benefit of 2-em dashes, those funny little jiggers that ordinarily separate these items.

On Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in the National Theater, E. M. Newman, the inveterate globe trotter, will deliver the third in a series of five Sabbath afternoon travel talks, on the subject of "Berlin in 1931." Mr. Newman is said to have found Berlin the rival of Paris in many of the major aspects of its daily and nightly life.

Following Mr. Newman on the National stage at 9 p. m., will be Maurice Chevalier, idol of the Paris boulevards and foremost light singing comedian of the American films, assisted by Jacques Fray and Mario Braggiotti, in their modern pianologue duos. M. Chevalier will be heard in songs both English and French and in many of his inimitable stories and anecdotes.

One of the largest advance sales in the history of the house is said to have been inspired by the announcement that Fred Stone and his daughter Paula will appear for one week only, beginning Monday night, at the Belasco Theater in "Smiling Faces," described as the most pretentiously staged and sumptuously mounted of any of the vehicles in which this celebrated comedian ever has been seen. Lotti Loder, Billy Taylor, Roy Royston, Eddie Garvie and a long list of other popular players appear in the supporting cast.

For four nights only, beginning Monday, Walter Hampden will bring his magnificent revival of Edmond Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" to the National. Certainly there is no more picturesque or fascinating figure in drama or history than Rostand's great-nosed Gascon adventurer—poet, duellist, philosopher, soldier, lover, madman.

Along with all these other distinguished events, Mr. Jimmie Lake announces as next week's attraction at the Gayety, Columbia Burlesque circuit's "London Gayety Girls," starring Fred Binder and Mike Sachs.

Tomorrow at the Wardman Park Theater, Evelyn Davis, young Washington dancer, will appear with Frances Gutelius, pianist, on the program of the Zonta Club benefit recital.

The percussion instruments of the modern orchestra will be demonstrated by Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, of Washington, D. C., at the fifth concert for young people in Central High School auditorium, Thirteenth and Clifton streets, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Horowitz, the brilliant young pianist, will be the soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, Fritz Reiner, conducting as guest in place of Leopold Stokowski, when that noted organization is heard in Constitution Hall on next Tuesday evening, February 9, at 8:45 o'clock.

Club Chantecler, the smart night rendezvous for Capital society, will reopen tomorrow night with La Mae and Alice Louise, Latin-American dance artists, as hosts and featured entertainers.

And now for the new bills in the palaces of the talking tintypes and recrudescent vaudeville: Columbia, Greta Garbo and Ramon Novarro in "Mata Hari;" RKO-Keith's, Dolores Del Rio and Leo Carrillo in "The Girl of the Rio," from Willard Mack and Belasco's "The Dove," and Kate Smith, Washington's own "songbird of the South," in person; Earle, James Cagney and Loretta Young in "Taxi," and Barto and Mann and Herman Timberg & Co., jointly headlining the vaudeville; Fox, Lionel Atwill, Greta Nissen and Weldon Heyburn in "The Silent Witness," and Fanchon and Marco's "Dream House" idea; Rialto, Edna Best and Herbert Marshall in "Michael and Mary;" Palace, Ruth Chatterton and Paul Lukas in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," and Loew's "Get Gay" revue, with Bert Frohman; Metropolitan, Clive Brook, Vivienne Osborne and Charles Ruggles in "Husband's Holiday."

For the first time last night, new lines and business were injected into the first act of "Blessed Event," currently piling the customers high in the aisles at the Belasco. Not that the first act was noticeably defective even on Monday night, but those in authority felt that a little sharper definition of the change that had come over Alvin Roberts, the columnist, during the year that elapses between the prologue and act one would help. And it will.

Also last evening for the first time—or so I am told by Miss Marian Spitzer, charming and able publicist for, and in private life wife of Harlan Thompson, coproducer and director of "Blessed Event," who honored this department with a brief call yesterday afternoon—the role of Roberts' secretary, Miss Stevens, was assumed by Mildred Wall, who supplants Linda Carlon, for ne reason visible from the front of the house.

Miss Wall will be remembered—or maybe not—as one of the two eternally scrapping, hair-pulling chorines in "Broadway" when that sizzling comedy-melodrama was the Broadway smash "Blessed Event" seems destined to be.

Jimmy Dunn, the personally appearing film star at the Fox, radio vocalist and bon vivant, hosted a large party in the Flemish (or something) room at the Willard last evening from 11:30 p. m., to closing—or maybe it was opening, my Wednesday night social engagements being limited exclusively to the blue pencil and the typewriter.

A little earlier in the evening Jack Hurford, house manager at the Fox, made a lot of people hot by throwing a chili con carne party.

Oh, well, I worked as late as they played, so we're all even on sleep!

Airway Weather Data Methods Told to Club

Experiences in gathering weather data on European airways for comparison with methods and information on airways in this country were told last night to the Masonic Club of the Weather Bureau, at its annual meeting at the Shoreham Hotel, by Willis R. Gregg, chief of meteorology, Bureau of Airways.

Other speakers included Montrose W. Hayes, principal meteorologist of the rivers and harbors division, and R. H. Weightman, forecaster. E. B. Calvert, chief of forecast division, was toastmaster. Entertainment was furnished by Miss Edith Reed and Samuel B. Lapin.

ROOSEVELT'S STAND AROUSES COMMENT

Most Democrats Praise as Republicans Chaff Retreat on League.

(Associated Press.)

The retreat from the League of Nations issue of Democratic presidential possibilities brought a scolding and some indorsement yesterday from Senators of that party and much fun-poking from the Republican foes of the league.

Advocates of Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, for the Democratic presidential nomination hailed his stand Tuesday against the league, saying it assured an "America First" administration.

But Senator Walsh, of Montana, one of the veteran Democratic leader for the Wilson League of Nations and the World Court, spoke sharply of the statement of Roosevelt and that of Newton D. Baker, of Ohio.

"I see no occasion," Walsh said, "for the statements by either Gov. Roosevelt or Mr. Baker. No one, so far as I know, is at present urging membership by the United States in the league. I see no prospect of its developing into an issue in 1932."

The Republicans who led the successful fight in the Senate against American entry into the league in 1919 smiled and commented freely.

Statements of Republicans.

Senator Moses issued the following statement:

"The Reno-like celerity with which Democratic leaders—and especially Democratic candidates—are seeking to divorce themselves from the League of Nations is interesting and amusing. It has apparently dawned upon their consciousness that the 7,000,000 majority by which the American people repudiated this issue in both 1920 and 1924 has a validity as applied to the election of 1932.

"Death-bed conversions, however, smack of the theatrical, and are generally as unreal as most theatrical performances. As further evidence of the genuineness of the Democratic views which are now coming so belatedly to light I suggest that there should be added to their renunciation of the League of Nations an equally emphatic renunciation of the league's pet baby—the so-called World Court."

Democrats Hail Stand.

Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, indorsed Roosevelt's statement as "most excellent," adding, "It shows, if elected, we will have an administration with the interests of America first."

Senators Wheeler, Montana, and McKellar, Tennessee, other supporters of Roosevelt for the Democratic nomination, said the statement on the league was timely and warranted.

Senator Fletcher (Democrat, Florida, said he was inclined to agree with the position of Roosevelt.

Meanwhile, the Hoover drive got going again yesterday with Senator Barbour, of New Jersey, urging his State party to instruct for the President. The New Jersey committee recently decided to wait for a while before deciding whether to instruct for Hoover or to send an uninstructed delegation to the national convention.

WINTER OLYMPICS OPEN TODAY IN FROZEN SETTING

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

GENTLEMAN GENE TUNNEY takes the opportunity in his autobiography, now current in Collier's, to refute the belief that he was a "made" fighter rather than a "natural" one. He has been described in the past as an automaton that an engineer might put together with no instinct for fighting and a distinct dislike for the whole business.

Tunney takes direct issue with this criticism.

"There were and are a good many things about this business of prize fighting which I did not and do not like," he says, "but to make a sweeping announcement that the whole thing nauseates me is somewhat overstating the case. I honestly do not believe there was ever a boxer who had more genuine love for boxing competition, or prize fighting, if you will, than myself. Moreover, I do not think that any champion has ever done one-tenth the amount of boxing for the sheer love of the sport that I did before taking up the game professionally."

The widespread impression of Tunney as purely a mechanical fighter is not without reason. Throughout his challenging and championship career he has best been known as a counter-fighter, rarely aggressive or leading, but content to allow his opponents to carry the fight to him.

A counterpuncher like Tunney scores effectively especially with body blows, but the type is the least spectacular to watch, thus giving the impression of a dull, mechanical style. Tunney's ability to take punishment contributed to the development of his counterpunching. In both bouts against Dempsey he permitted Dempsey to do all the leading until the late rounds when the Old Mauler was fagged and an easy victim of Tunney's rallies.

Dempsey was the antithesis of the counterpuncher, rushing his man from the start and flinging his fists until he was brought up or his man dropped. Dempsey's weaving and bobbing made him difficult to hit in his salad days, but he was a luscious target in his declining career when the spring had left his legs.

Present plans for the makeup of the Washington Ball Club which do not include Joe Judge or Sam Rice in regular positions presage the rapid decline of both players in the opinion of this department.

Both Judge and Rice admit that their major league careers will extend only a few more years at most, but there is grave danger that their baseball life will be shortened considerably if they are permitted to languish on the bench. Players of their age require constant duty to be in top form and their value to the club probably will be considerably impaired as a result of the bench-warming.

Rice and Judge, both beyond the 35th year, do not find it as easy to maintan their best condition between long lay-off. Their systems do not respond as readily to the workout as in their younger days. But, in the line-up every day, both the veterans, now in fine conditions, would be enabled to keep fit.

In justice to their long services with the Washington Club it would be fitting to trade the pair to a team on which they would see service every day, if they are destined to bench duty here. And the opinion is strong that they would be welcomed by a half-dozen clubs.

The extreme in excuses for a prize fight has been reached by the Madison Square Garden promoters, who announce that Max Baer will meet the winner of the Schaaf-Paulino fight tomorrow, for the honor of "alternate" to either Jack Sharkey or Max Schmeling should one of the title bout contenders be stricken with appendicitis, the hives, engulfed in a tidal wave or dafted as Ambassador to the Court of St. James, a post now vacant.

With Schaaf the heavy favorite to beat Paulino and then dispose of Baer it would be a fine outcome, indeed, if he were to substitute for Schmeling should the latter by force of unseen circumstances be obliged to withdraw against Sharkey.

In that case, the prize fight industry would witness the unusual spectacle of a fighter fighting his manager, for Sharkey owns an equal share with Johnny Buckley in the earnings of Schaaf. In that case there ought to be a law.

Yale-Harvard Crews In Regatta on June 24

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Yale and Harvard will meet in their seventieth annual regatta on the Thames River at New London, Friday, June 24.

The varsity race, contrary to last year's event, will be rowed downstream from Bartletts Cove to the drawbridge at New London, athletic officials from the two universities decided today in drawing up plans for the meet.

Tom Yarr, Notre Dame Grid Captain, Weds

Chicago, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Tom Yarr, center of Notre Dame University's national championship football team in 1930 and captain of last year's club, was married today to Miss Rosemary Killen, of Chicago.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father James Gleeson, assistant pastor, in St. Mel's Church. A small group, including the bride's mother, Mrs. Beatrice C. Killen, attended.

Yarr, whose parents live in Chimacum, Wash., is 23, his bride, 22.

Sister-Manager Gets $7,500 for King After Wrangle.

Bout on February 18 Considered Important to Both.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Chicago Stadium promoters today finally arranged a match between Jack Dempsey and King Levinsky, Chicago's fighting fish peddler, for February 18, but they had a tough battle on their hands.

"Leaping Lena" Levy, sister and manager of the celebrated kingfish, stuck by her guns with roars of defiance all day until Matchmaker Nate Lewis finally hiked his offer from $5,000 to upward of $7,500 as the Levinsky share of the purse. Then, after accepting, she predicted that the kingfish would go Luis Firpo one better by knocking the former heavyweight champion out of the ring and out of the building.

Dempsey Faces Real Test.

The match, although listed for but four rounds, is considered the most important of Dempsey's comeback campaign. Rugged, strong and able to stand severe punishment while dealing out roundhouse smashes that a Missouri Mule would be proud of, Levinsky has clubbed out decisions over some of the best heavyweights of the country, including Tommy Loughran and Paulino Uzcudun. Max Baer, however, conquered him last week.

"Luis Firpo? Huh!" shouted Mrs. Levy. "Wait 'til the king gets Dempsey into the ring! He'll knock him right out of the building."

Navy Head's Kin Wins At Pinehurst Traps

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Robert H. Adams, of Chevy Chase, Md., nephew of Secretary of the Navy Adams, today won the 100-target, added bird, shoot of the Pinehurst Gun Club with a score of 98.

Adams was high gun with 90 and had a handicap of eight. Sam Oldham, of Philadelphia was second with 80-15-95 and W. L. Dunspaugh of New York was third with 71-15-86.

Mrs. Sterrett Is Victor In Miami Golf Play

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kas., today eliminated Mrs. James Lawlor of New York, five and four, in the Bay Shore Club Women's golf championship tournament.

Mrs. Sterrett was six-up at the turn, but lost the tenth and eleventh holes. She won the next two, however, to end the match on the fourteenth green.

Mrs. Lillian Zech of Chicago, defeated Mrs. H. S. Matizinger of New York, 4 and 2.

U. S. G. A. Announces Entry Closing Dates

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The deadline for filing of entries for the national open golf championship was set as Tuesday, May 17, by the United States Golf Association today, with qualifying rounds to be played June 6. The open will be contested at Salisbury Country Club, Long Island, June 23, 24 and 25.

Deadline for entries for the national amateur was set for Tuesday, July 26, with the regional qualifying rounds Tuesday, August 16. The national amateur will be played at the Baltimore (Md.) Country Club, September 12-17.

Kingsrud Tops Pros In Miami 4-Ball Golf

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A par card of 72, which gave him a 54-hole score of 220 strokes today, landed young Ralph Kingsrud, Fargo, N. Dak., professional, at the top of 54 golfers seeking six places remaining open in the international four-ball golf matches here next month. Kingsrud's round compared with 77 Monday and 71 Tuesday. In second place was Herman Barron, of Port Chester, N. Y., with 150—72—222.

Johnny Watson, South Bend, Ind., leader at the end of the 36-hole play, required 77 strokes today, and dropped to third with a total of 146—77—223.

Ralph Stonehouse, of Indianapolis, posted 149—75—224, for fourth, while Harry Hampton, Chicago, with 152—73—225, and Walter Bourne, Princeton, N. J., with 150—75—225, tied for fifth.

TWO RED SOX SIGN.

Boston, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The Boston American League Baseball Club today announced the receipt of signed contracts from Harold Rhyne, regular short stop, of Inglewood, Calif., and Henry I. Patterson, a catcher, of Los Angeles. Patterson is a former St. Mary's College (Kansas) player.

Champ Pickens Is Named Bicentennial Sports Head

CHAMP PICKENS.

THE District of Columbia Commission of the George Washington Bicentennial yesterday moved to prepare an extensive sports program for Washington during the coming year by appointing Champ Pickens, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., as sports director of the bicentennial.

The commission, in the selection of Mr. Pickens, went far afield to appoint a director of wide experience in the promotion and management of sports spectacles for the past 30 years. Washington's most active and pretentious year in sports is the plan of the commission and Pickens.

Arranged Alabama's Rose Bowl Games.

Mr. Pickens, a former member of the Alabama State Legislature, is the donor of the Pickens trophy, annually awarded to the team winning the Southern Conference football championship. He was instrumental in arranging the University of Alabama's first successful invasion of the Rose Bowl at Pasadena for the annual New Year's Day game with the Pacific Coast champion, and since has accompanied the team on two subsequently successful trips. Last year he sponsored the charity game between the Notre Dame All Stars and a Coast team.

Coming to Washington late last year, Pickens arranged for the invasion of the Alabama Rose Bowl team for its triple-header game against Georgetown University, George Washington University and Catholic University, which netted the District of Columbia unemployment fund more than $11,000.

Pickens yesterday launched plans for bringing to Washington during the coming year the most attractive features on the sports calendar, including the visits of the Olympic champions in every sport following their conquests in the international games at Los Angeles in June.

Champions to Display Skill in Capital.

A long list of other attractive events has already been outlined by Pickens, ranging from water sports to amateur boxing, golf, tennis and baseball, in which the featured performers of the Nation will display their skill before Washington fans and bicentennial visitors.

Mr. Pickens was the host at a luncheon yesterday to the sports editors of the local newspapers, whom he appointed to act as a committee in an advisory capacity. The advisory committee comprises Denman Thompson, of the Star; Bryan Morse, of the Herald; Dick Moore, of the News, Kirk Miller, of the T[illegible] and Shirley I Povich, of The Post.

8th STRAIGHT GAME LOST BY G. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 3.—Willie Bender, appropriately named the "Big Gun" by Loyola rooters, fired a salvo of long shots that reduced the Georgetown U. defense to ruin tonight at Evergreen, and the Greyhounds won by a single point, 31 to 30. Bender made seven field goals all told. Six were long-range efforts that sailed over the heads of the Georgetown players. The defeat was the eighth straight for the Hilltop Team.

Bender had almost the entire responsibility of the team's play, since the home team acted at his direction, and Ken Curtis, who gained every jump at center, was the only other Loyola player with any amount of experience. Vince Carlin, leading point scorer and ordinarily the key man of the attack was absent, ill with an attack of grip.

Georgetown Passing Poor.

The local quint was aided in part by the lack of direction on the part of Georgetown, particularly in the first half. The Capital team was guilty of poorest passing seen on the local court, and Loyola, realizing it had to make every effort court, turned these slips to greatest advantage.

The first half was tight all the way, with no more than 2 points separating the rivals until the final minute, when Lunak's netting of a rebound gave Loyola a 16-to-12 lead.

Tom Carolan led Georgetown in a second half rally which tied the score at 18 all, then Loyola threw all its resources into an attacking charge which rolled up the points until a 10-point lead was opened at 29 to 19.

Then Georgetown answered with a counterattack, which cut away at the Loyola lead. Carolan, O'Neill and King, the last two substitutes, shot field goals in rapid order in the last two minutes.

New Orleans Races Forbidden During Lent

New Orleans, Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Racing may be stopped at the Fair Grounds track after next Tuesday if Mayor T. S. Walmsley and the city commission council carry out their threats to prevent horse races during the Lenten season.

The basis of the action is a city ordinance which prevents horse races during Lent.

The Louisiana Jockey Club, operators of the Fair Grounds track, will be expected to comply with the ordinance, Mayor Walmsley said at a meeting of the council tonight.

DAY NURSERY BOUTS ARE LISTED

Crawford and Perry in Chief Preliminary on Tuesday.

A PRELIMINARY card that lacks big names, but has all the earmarks of a great supporting show, was entirely closed out yesterday by the Alexandria Day Nursery for its battle of the cauliflowers Tuesday night at Portner's Arena, where Buster Brown and Stumpy Jacobs will headline a 32-round card.

Keller Crawford, sensational Cordova, Md., welterweight, has been awarded the main preliminary with Young Perry, Lawrence, Mass., boy. Crawford, a hard hitter, has been boxing around Baltimore and Pocomoke City clubs for the past year.

Recently, he gave Mike Farrie a lacing in Baltimore. Farrie will be remembered here for his great battle with Joe Bruno at the Mid-City Club last summer.

Tillman Meets Quigley.

Benny Tillman, tough Hazelton, Pa., boy tackles Jack Quigley, local lightweight, in another of the four-rounders. Tillmann is said to be a slam-bang fighter. In workouts at Mann's Gym he is causing quite a bit of comment.

Young Groves, brother of Harry Kid Groves, will open the show meeting Bob Portna, local featherweight. Tommy Horn, Baltimore featherweight, boxing under the colors of Eddie Ross, has definitely been signed with Billy Reed, promising local feather.

New lights over the ring will be installed for Tuesday's show. Boxers have been complaining over the low candle power of the lights. An electric sign indicating the rounds will also be added.

Old Line Five Beats C. U., 39 to 34

Maryland Ahead by 14-8 at Half After Trailing 5-0.

Cards Thrill Crowd of 3,000 With Rally as Game Ends.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S valiant bid for basket ball fame at the expense of Maryland fell short of its mark last night by the score of 39 to 34, while a crowd of nearly 3,000 had chances both to yawn and cheer as the last two nearby colleges still on speaking terms battled within the select interior of Ritchie Coliseum.

The forthright bark of the timekeeper's gun dispersed a frenzied Catholic University rally, which had reverted a score of 30-15, with six minutes to go, to a score of 37-34, with but a gasp or two remaining.

Maryland had achieved its prohibitive lead by unleashing a style and caliber of game that made ambitious novices out of C. U. after the first five minutes of play. The Old Liners, vivid in their bright yellow silk uniforms, splattered and scampered down the floor like great hands of fallen yellow quicksilver, burst through the Catholic University defense without fail and sent Norris, Berger, Chase and Ronkin streaking beneath the cords for point after point. Maryland led, 14-8, at the half, and 26-11 three minutes after the start of the second section of play.

Catholic U. Takes Lead.

Catholic University was first to recover from butter fingers at the start of the game. Cannazzera's foul and two pot shots over the impregnable Maryland zone defense gave C. U. a 5-0 lead, which Berger, Norris and Buscher evened at the conclusion of ten minutes given over largely to working the ball about the place and missing shots which would have caused high school reserve players to commit hari kari.

Once it began to function on all cylinders, Maryland gave every evidence of its right to the championship of Southern schools. Catholic was totally unmined by the teamwork and potency of Maryland. The Old Liners blocked, shot and passed pretty close to zenith.

Defensively Maryland could not be punctured. Catholic University could not work the ball beneath the basket and actually did not score from beneath the cords until Galiher snared a line drive from Sheary and dumped one in, snowbird fashion, to bring the score to 30-17 in Maryland's favor, with 6 minutes to go.

Heartened by this, an epidemic of hot hands hit C. U. Shooting from seemingly impossible angles and record distances, the slow Cardinal team sent thrilling potshots ringing through the cords, soaring their shots high over the long-armed Maryland defense.

3 Regulars Benched.

When the score stood 37-26, Coach Shipley retired Ronkin, Berger and Buscher from the floor, in favor of Cohen, Chase and Wilson, but as Sheary and Galliher dropped in fouls and Spinelli heaved one in from the middle of the floor, the regulars rushed back in the fray.

With the score 37-30, and the place a bedlam, Bob McVean scored on two marathon shots, for 37-34. Maryland froze the ball with the game ebbing away, and while C. U fought for possession of the leather balloon Snyder slipped away and rang in Maryland's other basket as the gun exploded.

UPSET SEEN IN SCHOOL SERIES

Central May Knock Eastern Out of Running Tomorrow.

CENTRAL HIGH concludes its high school series appearances tomorrow afternoon with a chance to do itself little good and ruin Eastern's hopes of going into the final game of the series tied with Tech. Central, victim of a 25-to-24 loss to Eastern earlier in the series, seeks revenge of a satisfying sort and the tussle promises to be one of the most exciting played during the schoolboys' handicap.

Central, which can do no better than take third place in the series standings now, come what may, was prematurely counted out of the series as a serious contestant when it lost its captain and leading scorer, Billy Burke, but his substitute, Jack Moulton, proved to be as good, if not better. Central, with Moultor scoring 18 points in three quarters, mauled Business, 45 to 25, last Tuesday.

Central May Provide Upset.

It would not be altogether surprising if Bert Coggins' club achieved an upset tomorrow. Eastern has not been overimpressive in its last few games, and has begun to fear that Barney Kane, once its greatest scoring threat, has lost his shooting eye for good. The team also will be without the services of Ben Zola, capable guard. On paper, Eastern, although it is in first place with Tech, does not appear to be the club it was at the start of the campaign. It has no dependable shot and most of the smart money will hang on the head of Central tomorrow to score a rousing upset, if it can duplicate its performance against Business.

Tech has easy pickings tomorrow against Western. A loss by Eastern, plus a Tech victory, virtually will hand the title to the Ma ual Trainers.

Today Eastern and Central warm up for their battle tomorrow with the Georgetown Freshmen and Wilson Teachers, respectively. Also listed today are Busines and Swavely, at Manassas, and Emerson and Staunton, at Staunton.

Illinois Orders Londos To Meet Rudy Dusek

Chicago, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The Illinois Athletic Commission today ordered Jim Londos to go through with his wrestling match with Rudy Dusek, of Omaha, on February 11 at the Chicago Coliseum.

Londos, claimant of the world's heavyweight title, requested a postponement to build up an argument that would cause the commission to reconsider its ruling, barring Londos' neck lock in this State. The commission refused a postponement because all arrangements for the match had been made.

CONDITION OF SLEDDERS SERIOUS

Brehme, of Germany, Making Fight for Life After Spill.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 3 (A.P.). There was little change today in the condition of the four German bobsledders, two of whom, Capt. Fritz Grau and Albert Brehme, were severely injured in a crash on the Mount Van Hoevenberg Olympic run yesterday.

The full extent of their injuries had not yet been determined tonight X-ray pictures so far show that Brehme, the most seriously hurt, has a fractured skull, a back injury that may be a fractured spine, broken wrist and multiple contusions.

Today he was given oxygen several times. While his name is on the danger list, it is believed he will live.

Capt. Grau suffered a broken right hip, a broken right shoulder, concussion of the brain and deep cuts on the head.

Two other riders on the sled that crashed through the top of Shady Corner traveling 70 miles an hour, were doing well. Helmut Hoppmann's left leg is badly torn and Rudolf Krotki suffered a strained back and possible spine injuries. All may have internal injuries, however.

Rossner Seriously Injured.

It was disclosed today that Heinrick Rossner, another German rider and member of the Capt. Werner Zahn's team that crashed on "zigzag" curve Sunday, suffered a fracture of the fifth vertebrae in that spill. Capt. Zahn is still in the hospital with a fractured left arm.

The slide almost took toll of Rene Fonjallaz's two-man Swiss team when he turned over in Whiteface with his cousin, Gustave, but he got out without more than a headache.

Gustave, limping from a slightly injured knee, righted the sled and they finished the slide.

Billy Fiske, American Olympic champion, made the fastest run today, going down the course with his four-man team in 1:58. The world record, made on this slide, is 1:52.

With the consent of all officials and contestants, a new German bob sled team, headed by Baron Walter von Mumm, was entered today in the Olympic bob run championship, partly making up for the loss of two of the three original teams in crashes.

Hans Killian, lone German pilot left from the experienced squad that was expected to give the American teams the most severe competition, called Baron Mumm from New York today. Mumm, experienced in foreign competition, immediately gathered together Hasso von Bismark, Baron J. Hessert, and Albert Block and arrangements were completed for their entry.

U. S. to Meet Canada at Hockey

Gov. Roosevelt to Be at Opening Ceremony at Lake Placid.

11:00 a. m.—Hockey, United States vs. Canada.

2:15 p. m.—5,000-meter speed skating trials.

2:45 p. m.—Hockey, Germany vs. Poland.

3:00 p. m.—5,000-meter speed skating finals.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 3 (A.P.). Strutting proudly about in a perfect setting of ice and snow, the citizens of Lake Placid made final preparations tonight for the big event of their lives—the third winter Olympic games opening tomorrow.

For almost two solid years the village of 3,500 inhabitants, wholeheartedly seeking the title of the Nation's winter sports capital, has been investing to the extent of $1,500,000 in the game.

A bob run, so dangerous it already has sent six German riders to the hospital, two of them gravely hurt, and has caused innumerable spills, was erected last year at a cost of over $200,000. An indoor ice arena, where Canada and the United States open the international hockey war with the first game at 11 a. m. tomorrow, cost the citizens $225,000.

Gov. Roosevelt At Ceremony.

But tomorrow, all the financial straining, all the worry over the financial deficit that may amount to $500,000, all the strain of preparations and the worry over accidents that have shrouded preliminary practice during the past three weeks, will be forgotten for the moment.

Shortly after 10 a. m., Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, surrounded by all the high amateur officials of the United States, Canada and European nations, will open the games officially from his place of honor in the outdoor Olympic stadium.

Bugles will sound—they even plan to fire cannons—and as the Olympic flag with its five circles is raised to the top of the big flagpole, Jack Shea, a Lake Placid youth and Dartmouth College sophomore, who is the United States chief hope in the 500-meter and 1,500-meter speed skating races, will step forward from the semicircle of 331 international athletes to take the Olympic oath in their behalf from the governor.

Swear to Uphold Olympic Oath.

In their native languages, as Shea takes the oath in English, the athletes will repeat:

"We swear that we will take part in the Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations that govern them, and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and the glory of sport."

A half hour later the first three heats of the 500 meters skating races will be staged, followed at 11 a. m., with a hockey game between the United States and Canada. In the afternoon at 2:15 o'clock opening heats of the 5,000 meters races will be staged. Half an hour later Germany and Poland, the only other two hockey teams in the competition, will clash in the open air stadium. Curling exhibitions later in the afternoon and in the arena in the evening complete the program of the opening day.

Hall in Sixth Place In 3-Cushion Title Play

Chicago, Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Allen Hall, Chicago, ended his schedule with his finest exhibition when he defeated Jay N. Bozeman, Vallejo, Cal., Western champion, by 50-40 in 40 innings today in the world's championship three-cushion billiard tournament. Hall had a high run of 6 to Bozeman's 4. Hall has won five and lost six, the same as Bozeman and Len Kenney, of Chicago. However, Hall gained sixth position, as he leads in total points.

Bud Westhus, of St. Louis, Southern champion, triumphed over Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, former titleholder, in another afternoon game, 50 to 34, in 60 innings. Each had a high run of 4.

Jake Schaefer, of San Francisco, set back Gus Copulos, of Eugene, Oreg., tonight by winning their match, 50 to 21, in 32 innings. Copulos had been tied for third place with Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago, present title holder.

ISBELL BUYS TOPEKA CLUB.

Los Angeles, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Frank Isbell, former owner of the Des Moines and Wichita franchises of the Western League, announced today he had taken over the Topeka, Kans., Club and will move it to Wichita, made vacant by the removal of that baseball club to Tulsa, Okla.

Olympic Figure Skaters Defeat Short-Skirt Issue Of American Housewives

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The long ballyhoo is over and the Olympic games of 1932 will start tomorrow morning when Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt reviews the array of foreign and domestic athletes in the Olympic Stadium at Lake Placid. The players will march past under their respective national colors, attired in the uniforms of their respective events, and the female figure skaters will wear short skirts, which are uniform for figure skating, notwithstanding the extremely moral importunities addressed to them on behalf of the organization of American Housewives.

The organization of American Housewives urged the female figure skaters to wear the old-fashioned long kind to avoid unnecessary wear and tear on the morals of the males who will witness the figure skating exhibitions, but the female skaters decided that they would not do this unless the sprinters of the summer program would agree to run in Oregon boots and the swimmers to swim in Mother Hubbards. However, for the benefit of any husbands of any of the ladies of the organization of American Housewives who may happen to attend the winter games, it should be noted that there are still some harness shops in the Adirondack villages where they can obtain horse blinkers.

The competitive action will begin soon after the formal ceremonies with the 500-meter speed-skating race and will continue until the afternoon of Saturday, February 13, unless the climate should happen to go tropical again and disarrange the program. Up to the present the weather has been very unreliable and the trials of the American candidates in some of the events were necessarily dispensed with, the varsity representatives being selected arbitrarily, either on the strength of their past performances or on the strength of their social affiliations.

The bob-run, which traces a serpentine groove one and one-half miles long down the side of a hill called Mount Van Hoevenberg, has not been in good condition at any time, and because there has been no snow available to provide traction on the glassy ice of the perpendicular banks in some of the curves there have been several minor accidents premonitory of worse ones to come when the teams go down the side on their mechanized sleds under no restraint but the prudence of their crews.

Inasmuch as no prudent person would slide down a mountainside in a trough of ice, anyway, there will be practically no restraint. The modern racing bobsled is steered with a wormgear and wheel like those used in automobiles, but the Dutch, Swiss and Austrian teams are using old-fashioned, Strawberry Hill sleds, which are steered with ropes. It is to these crews, therefore, that the spectators

Kearns Seeking $50,000 Share For Fields in Corbett Match

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—So far there has been plenty of shouting, but no concrete action in the proposed world's welterweight championship match between Jackie Fields, of Chicago, newly crowned king, and Young Corbett, of Fresno, Calif.

The match, planned for San Francisco, February 22, was no nearer a certainty tonight than when it was first proposed a week ago, due to the demands of Field's manager, Jack Kearns, who was holding out for $50,000 as the champion's share of the purse.

San Francisco promoters were reported to have offered Kearns $35,000 but this was turned down. Ancel Hoffman, San Francisco promoter, is due to return to the West Coast tomorrow and something definite concerning the match may be decided then.

Meanwhile Kearns marked time here.

Garden Sees Fight Game Back On Feet; Returns Increase 100%

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Madison Square Garden, world center of the boxing game, announced tonight that financial returns from fights in January showed more than 100 per cent increase over January, 1931.

"The fight game is back on its feet," Jimmy Johnston, manager of boxing at the Garden, declared in his announcement. "Before the winter is over, the Garden will take in more money from boxing than from hockey games. That hasn't happened in several years."

Johnston said the Garden averaged more than $40,000 a fight for four bouts held there in the past month whereas bouts in January, 1931, did not average $20,000.

"I am convinced that the revival of boxing in New York City, despite

MY DANDY TAKES THRILLING DUEL IN FEATURE AT HIALEAH

Street Singer Fails Near Finish

Winner Gets Rousing Ride From Jockey Charlie Allen.

Bradley Stable's Bert John Shows Way at New Orleans.

HIALEAH PARK, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—My Dandy, the 7-year-old gelding owned by W. C. and E. W. Reichert, rang up another feature-race victory for the West when he scored a driving victory over Jack Howard's Street Singer in the Musa Isle Handicap of 1 mile here today. Third money went to Royal Ruffin, which was a length behind. My Dandy was favorite, paying $3.40. His time was 1:37 3-5.

Charlie Allen, the veteran saddle artist who has been riding great guns at the current meeting, put up one of his strongest finishes to get the choice home on top in a grueling battle.

My Dandy in the Lead From Start.

Taking the lead at the start, My Dandy was allowed to keep in front with a half length advantage over Espinaca, while Street Singer also raced close up in third position. The others could not keep up with the early pace.

Espinaca was hemmed in on the rail after turning for home, but he was tiring rapidly and dropped out of contention. Street Singer made a determined challenge through the final furlong, but Allen held My Dandy together and the game gelding lasted. Royal Ruffin, while closing ground in the stretch, could not menace the two leaders.

Silvery ran a powerful race to win the sixth event over the mile and a furlong distance, with Charlie Allen scoring a double by piloting the mare home a length clear of Prince Toy. The latter was three spans before Partisan.

Bert John Wins Feature At Fair Grounds.

New Orleans, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—E. R. Bradley won his second feature race in as many days when Bert John, which ran third in his three previous starts as a 3-year-old, captured the Frigate Old Ironsides purse at the Fair Grounds.

Although only a mediocre juvenile last year, Bert John outclassed J. J. Robinson's Renaissance, which campaigned successfully among the 1931 Eastern 2-year-olds. Three lengths separated the pair at the end of the mile journey with C. Januska's Sandwrack third.

Bert John took the lead at the three-quarter pole and from then on coasted to victory. Renaissance started second place and was never able to improve his position as first the Three D's Stock Farm's Sir Melton and then Bert John set the pace. The Bradley colt ran the distance in 1:40 1-5, and paid $3.40 for $2.

Malolo, Even Money Choice, Cops at Havana.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Malolo, a 6-year-old son of Dis Donc which races for the Blue Star Stable, was a driving winner of the 6-furlong handicap purse, which featured the card at Oriental Park today.

Shouldering the top weight of 126 pounds and conceding many pounds to his six rivals, Malolo ran the distance in 1:12 1-5 to defeat Mrs. Emil Denemark's Burning Up with P. B. Codd's Medicine Bow third.

Malolo was made the even money favorite and ran like a good public choice. He set all of the pace and at the judges' stand was under a drive a safe distance in front of Burning Up, the second choice.

CASEYS MEET BOYS CLUB.

The Knights of Columbus unlimited team and Boys Club Big Five will meet tonight at 8:30 p. m. at the Boys Club. It will be the first meeting of the year for the two. Both clubs have impressive records.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FATALIST, $5.30, $5.40, $3.00; BLACK SIGNAL, $44.10, $8.90; SANSARICA, $2.30.

FATALIST went to the front with a rush, saved ground all the way and appeared to be only galloping at end. BLACK SIGNAL, a forward contender from the start, easily disposed of others. SANSARICA broke slowly and was crowded back first furlong. She broke out of hand. WESTY'S LAD was a forward contender in the early stages. OLD REB never was a dangerous factor. He was eased up last sixteenth.

SECOND RACE—Two and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start poor. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:47. Off at 2:54½. Winner, M. Lowenstein's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MEANY, $3.80, $3.00, $2.80; DRY RIDGE, $10.30, $6.60; CHILTENNY, $9.20.

MEANY broke rapidly and ran straight. Callahan was riding him hard all last furlong and the colt hung on with splendid courage. DARK RIDGE bore over to inside. He was driving to the limit to stall off CHILTENNY. Latter finished stoutly and was wearing the leaders down. GAY ATTIRE was never able to improve his position. SIR CHRISTOPHER broke well. JOHN DAVENPORT was shuffled back soon after the start.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:18. Off at 3:20. Winner, J. Spencer's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVERY, $5.80, $3.20, $2.30; PRINCE TOY, $10.10, $3.60; PARTISAN, $2.30.

SILVERY was rated off the pace first six furlongs, moved up on the outside rounding the far turn and easily disposed of opposition in home stretch. PRINCE TOY, a forward contender from the break, shook off PARTISAN in final furlong. PARTISAN ran in bold fashion to top of home stretch. But tired when put to a drive. He just lasted long enough to stall off BLUE CLOUD. ULTRAMARINE was used up making the pace.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:18. Off at 5:21½. Winner, Mrs. V. M. Duncan's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLENSIDE, $11.50, $8.40, $5.10; BRAGGADOCIO, $45.50, $35.80; BATTY, $4.40.

GLENSIDE was rated close to BOSAFABO'S pace under restraint to the far turn, began move around bend and, catching the pacemaker after turning into stretch, drew away steadily with little effort. BRAGGADOCIO, outrun early, made up ground rapidly after leaving back stretch, came to middle of track entering stretch and held on gamely to save place. BATTY was in close quarters around bend, but came very fast on outside in stretch and would have been second in another stride. NEGOPOLI, off on outside in stretch and would have been second in another stride. NEGOPOLI, off slowly, closed an immense gap. BOSAFABO set pace under light restraint to stretch, but faltered fast under extreme pressure.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Feb. 3.—Hialeah Park features the fourth race, the Long Key Handicap at 6 furlongs, tomorrow. Only four horses have been named for the $1,500 purse. DON LEON, at his best now, should win. He makes only a slight concession in weight to the others, carrying 116 pounds.

This R. W. Collin's colt was second to Evening in her record race of 7 furlongs in 1:23 2-5 in the Hialeah Highweight Handicap last week and carried 124 pounds. In his previous start he beat Brown Wisdom in a canter. HELINATHUS, very inconsistent, has speed at times, and should be the contender. PANETIAN, on recent form, should finish in the money. BACK LOG is the other starter and has no recent form, but has worked fast.

FIRST RACE—MAKE SPEED looks best in the opener, taking a line from his last start, in which he was third to James River. SINGLE KAY, over his head in recent races, may be the contender in this if he runs back to Tropical Park form. CHIEF CAMILLE also showed speed earlier in the winter and may improve.

SECOND RACE—Two-year-old fillies make up the large field in the second race, and they advance in distance, going two and a half furlongs. DARK LOVE is selected. She won her first start a fortnight ago, beating the fast Lucille K. MISS BROOM'S last race was a good one, landing her third, and she should place. G. D. Widener's UPHEAVAL, a first starter, reported very fast, should be in the money.

THIRD RACE—Marshall Fields' filly, SOBIEHA, which won Tuesday at 1-4 should be about that price tomorrow. SINGLE STAR will be the contender and ELLICE is liked for the show money, recent races showing she is rounding into form. SOBIEHA is very consistent, having previously scored at this track.

FIFTH RACE—ULUNIU looks best for the secondary feature. He won his first start at this track and his racing has been even. Dropped back in his own class, he should run a fast mile. KINCSEN should be the contender. She won her initial race in Florida, beating Lightning Bolt. DANCING MACK should get in the money circle.

SIXTH RACE—EL PUMA, second Tuesday to James River, will have another chance to graduate. GALLOPING DUCHESS has had one qualifying race and may improve.

SEVENTH RACE—TANCRED should repeat. TORE ALONG rates the contender. SCARLET BRIGADE should show something and may beat FAIR BILL for third money.

EPISCOPAL NO MATCH FOR EASTERN

Bassin Star as Va. Five Is Trounced by 47-22 Count.

EASTERN HIGH'S basket ball team added still another scalp to its lengthy belt yesterday by upsetting Episcopal High, 47-22, at Eastern Gymnasium. The Lincoln Park Club led from the beginning, and finished up the game with an exhibition of pyrotechnical shooting.

Eastern reserves manned the game until late in the third quarter. A team composed of such lesser lights at Edelen, Bassin, Davis, Hale and Essex held a lead of 13-8 over the Episcopal Club at the half, and a 27-16 one near the end of the third quarter, largely the work of Bassin's fine shooting.

Eastern's first team, Kane, Courtney, Lieb, Waters and Bayliss came in with red hot hands to finish the game.

Maryland Frosh Bow to Tech, 25-14

Old Line Cubs, Showing Weak Attack, Trail From the Start.

Tech High's Basket Ball Team, showing a superior skill in all departments of the game, defeated the Maryland Freshmen five yesterday, 25-14, at Maryland. It was the first loss a Maryland Plebe Team has suffered on its own floor since 1930.

Maryland, showing fair defensive play, but a weak attack, was behind from the start, and trailed, 10-7, at the half. It gained a bit of headway against Tech's zone defense in the fourth period to come within four points of the leaders, 18-14, but Tech stepped away with a blistering passing and shooting attack, and won in a walk.

G. U. Preps Defeat Loyola Quintet, 25-21

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 3.—Georgetown Prep defeated Loyola High School, 25 to 21, in an exciting basket ball game played here today. The visitors led at every turn of the battle, although their margin was never more than 2 points until the closing minutes of play, when they extended it to 4. Morris Nee, clever little guard, and Bill Keating, a forward, were prominent in the Georgetown attack. Lackey, O'Brien and Colimore bore the brunt of the Loyola attack.

Charlottesville Five Noses Out Gonzaga

The Charlottesville School for Boys Basket Ball Team, showing great stamina in the final moments, outlasted Gonzaga yesterday to win a close 34-32 decision at Gonzaga Gym. The Purple played without the services of its three leading tossers, Nolan, Fitzgerald and Perusso, who were side-lined by disciplinarian measures.

The clubs went into the second half tied at 18-18. Charlottesville went ahead on Little's and Roberts' shooting, but Gonzago was always within striking distance. With two minutes left of the game Charlottesville had widened the game to an eight-point lead, 34-26. Hall, Gonzaga forward, sank three long shots in the closing minutes.

Gonzaga beat the Virginians, 37-34, last week at Charlottesville.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

"TWINKLE, twinkle, little star," is wrong.

Stars do not really twinkle; they only appear to do so. According to Dr. John A. Anderson, of the Mount Wilson Observatory, in California, the twinkling is caused by peculiarities of the atmosphere. Tiny vortexes or whirlpools in the higher atmosphere interrupt the rays of starlight and produce the effect of twinkling. Planets do not appear to twinkle, as stars do, because each individual (or really very small area) twinkles, but many points twinkle out of step, so that a steady intensity of light is the result.

On a clear night the heavens seem to shine with millions of stars, but to the naked eye no more than 3,000 are visible at any time, anywhere and under the best conditions. Ir fact, most of the time a much smaller number would be all that one could see well enough to count.

Another thing about stars is that "fixed stars" are not really stationary, for all stars are in continual motion. Stars are not star-shaped, but round. "Shooting stars" are not stars; they are meteors.

The cashew "nut" is not really a nut, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. It is the seed of a fleshy fruit borne in clusters on a large evergreen tropical tree. Curiously, the seed is on the outside of the fruit. The cashew thrives in Porto Rico and other West Indian islands and a few trees have been grown in Florida.

STOCK PRICES RALLY SLIGHTLY IN CLOSING

Market Is Dull, With Sales Dropping to Low Total of 808,179 Shares.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Stocks led a hum-drum existence today. In the last hour the market absorbed the slack of an easier decline and prices closed a little higher, but the spread between highs and lows was narrow, and volume evaporated to 808,179 shares.

General Motors' dividend meeting, late in the day, caused some hesitation among professionals who invariably mark time while an event of financial importance is pending. War news had no hold on the speculative imagination, although uncertainties surrounding current Far Eastern affairs undoubtedly contributed to the somnolence. Japanese bonds rallied.

The day's trading embraced few interesting price movements. U. S. Steel rose more than a point net, reflecting covering by shorts made nervous by the ¼-point premium at which the stock is loaning. International Harvester was heavy, presumably on bearish dividend forecasts.

General Electrics Recover.

General Electric eased fractionally to a new low and then recovered. Loew's and Auburn sagged. Atlas powder, discussed as a "war baby" only a couple of days ago, dropped 4 points on a single late sale. Numerous rails made small advances. The same was true of utilities and industrial leaders. Radio, Allied Chemical, du Pont and American Can were up about a point.

Reduction in General Motors' quarterly dividend to 50 cents from 75 scarcely surprised Wall street. Despite strong cash positions, prominent industrial corporations are showing increasing reluctance to continue unearned payments, a policy which has its supporters even though one implication may be that managements are none too confident as to when business will start on the upward path.

Standard Oil of California, cutting to a $2 basis from $2.50, placed the stock on the dividend level of New Jersey Standard. There has been talk of merging the two companies, a share - for - share exchange being favored in recent gossip.

Steel Reports Unfavorable.

The market's early sag coincided with uninspiring reports from the steel industry's bedside. That patient, according to Iron Age, has been unable to show seasonable improvement, although current operations are showing considerable irregularity, in that some manufacturers are doing much better than others. In the aggregate, operations have fallen a point to 28 per cent of capacity and there have been further price concessions. Automobile plants are expected to turn out more cars this month than last, but delay in placing orders has held back the steel mills.

Domestic copper was cut to 6½ cents, a natural development after the weakening of the foreign quotation yesterday. Available stocks of the metal are so large that even with effective curtailment it will take some time to reduce them; meanwhile, demand is light.

Neither United States Government bonds nor the money markets appeared to be anticipating a cut in the reserve rediscount rate tomorrow. For the past two or three weeks there has been a belief in some quarters that such a step would be taken soon. Gold exportations have recently slackened but whether this will influence the decision of the Central Bank authorities has not been indicated.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Renewal of anxiety over Far East belligerence, together with sudden development of below zero temperatures threatening widespread crop damage put backbone into wheat prices today.

Estimates that 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been bought for shipment overseas were also a strengthening influence. Confidence of speculative purchases of wheat was shaken at times, however, by assertions of a British trade authority that the United States would provide 80,000,000 bushels less of world import requirements this season than had heretofore been expected.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼ to ⅝ cents above yesterday's finish; corn ¼ to ⅝ down; oats unchanged to ¼ off and provisions at 5 to 7 cents decline.

Late reports did much to rally the wheat market from transient setbacks were to the effect that a new cold wave sweeping eastward had tumbled the mercury to 8 below zero at various points in Kansas. This drop in temperature was viewed with particular misgivings on account of recent abnormal warmth. The alternating periods of cold and mild conditions were generally regarded as more menacing than would be the case with steady arctic weather.

All of yesterday's wheat price decline due to hopes of peace were more than wiped out in today's dealings. The upswings in the market here were promoted by unexpected strength in the Liverpool market and by reports that British and European continental homegrown supplies of wheat had become much smaller. Closing quotations at Liverpool showed a reaction, however, and this circumstance was temporarily an advantage to bears. New rallies were in progress here, however, as the day drew to a close.

Enlarged rural offerings of corn had a bearish effect on feed grains. At one time today prices for May delivery of corn dipped to lowest price since January 27.

Provisions went lower on account of downturns in hog values.

Closing quotations: WHEAT—May, 59¼@59¼, 60⅞@61; July, 59¾@59½, 61¼@61¾; September, 61, 62⅝. CORN—May, 39⅜@39¾, 40⅝; July, 41¾, 42⅝.

DOING WILL DIRECT BANKERS' PROGRAM

Woodward Names Committee to Make Arrangements for June 8 Session.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Membership of the important program committee for this year's convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at Hot Springs, Va., June 9-12, was announced yesterday by President Claude H. Woodward, Mount Vernon Savings Bank, chairman of the general committee in charge of this, the fourteenth annual convention of the association. The success of the event is dependent largely upon the work of this committee, and the acceptance of the men named assures a worth-while program.

The committee will be headed by Charles H. Doing, chairman, and C. F. Jacobsen, vice chairman. Other members are Lanier P. McLachlen, president, McLachlen Banking Corporation; Henry H. McKee, president, National Capital Bank; Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank; Victor B. Deyber, president, Second National Bank; John Poole, president, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; Francis G. Addison, jr., president, Security Savings & Commercial Bank; Howard Moran, vice president, American Security & Trust Co.; Joshua Evans, jr., president, District National Bank, and Maurice D. Rosenberg, president, Bank of Commerce & Savings.

The chairman, Mr. Doing, is a vice president and director of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., and was vice chairman of the program committee for last year's convention. He was chairman of the press and publicity committee for the 1930 convention at Asheville, N. C. He is also chairman of the District of Columbia Bankers Association's credit bureau.

Group's Vice Chairman.

The vice chairman, Mr. Jacobson, is cashier of the National Metropolitan Bank and a member of the council of administration of the District of Columbia Bankers Association. All other members of the committee are past presidents of the association, whose ability and experience justify the belief that the coming event will be an outstanding occasion in the annals of the local bankers' organization.

Assets of Eastern Building & Loan Association increased from $1,363,912.61 at the close of the fiscal year 1930 to $1,471,327.71, it was announced last night following the forty-third annual meeting of stockholders.

All officers and directors of the association, organized in 1889 and under Government supervision, were reelected as follows: Maurice Otterback, president; Clarence F. Donohoe, vice president; William N. Payne, jr., secretary; George R. Repetti, treasurer; Walter H. Marlow, attorney; Charles A. Carry, Clarence F. Donohoe, William H. Harmer, William H. Harrison, James J. Hayes, Walter H. Marlow, Maurice Otterback, George R. Repetti, John M. Riordan, directors.

Murphy Stores to Expand.

Owing to increasing business, the Washington branch of the G. C. Murphy Co., national chain of 5 and 10 cent stores, located at 1215-17 F street northwest, has leased premises at 1219 F street, adjoining its present store.

The Washington unit of the G. C. Murphy Co. opened for business at its present location in May, 1930. The original company was organized in 1900 and was purchased by the present company in 1908. At the time of the acquisition, the original company had but three stores. The present company now consists of a chain of 175 stores located in twelve States.

The most important change that has taken place in the average consumer's financial situation since November is a halt in the declining trend of pay roll totals, which had been falling continuously throughout the depression, according to the latest consumer study by Investors Syndicate, with local offices. This, coming at the same time as a renewal of the decline in the cost of living, indicates some improvement in the employed workers' financial status.

An 83 per cent jump in number of automobiles sold in December over November, together with a slight upturn in the amount of security investments suggests some change for the better, although the total volume in both cases is far below last year's total. Life insurance sales register a sharp gain, while savings continue their almost unbroken climb, suggesting more and more that the debts from the boom have been paid and that thrift has become a predominating habit.

The board of directors of the Florsheim Shoe Co. has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock of the company payable April 1, 1932, to stockholders of record March 15, 1932.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—There was a steadier tone in cotton today. Offerings were decidedly lighter with a renewal of trade buying as well as covering or rebuying by recent sellers.

This demand sent the price of May up to 6.76 or 7 points net higher. Offerings increased slightly in the late trading when there seemed to be some Southern selling as well as realizing, and there were partial reactions. May closed at 6.73 with the general market closing barely steady, net unchanged to 4 points higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 4 points. Near months were relatively steady on trade buying or covering. March advanced to 6.58 while July sold up to 6.93 making net gains of about 5 to 7 points on the active months, after which the market was narrow with later fluctuations somewhat irregular. Selling became a little more active toward the close with last prices showing net declines of some 3 to 5 points from the high levels of the morning.

While selling at the start and again at the close to be attributed to brokers with Far Eastern connections, the pressure from that source was much less in evidence than on the decline of Tuesday, and this doubtless made favorable impression on sentiment. The steadier action of the grain and stock markets was also considered a factor on the advance, although bullish features evidently failed to stimulate general buying and business was quiet enough to suggest that traders were awaiting developments.

Liverpool cables reported local and continental liquidation absorbed by trade calling in that market and said there was a fair British home trade in cotton goods with China business at a standstill. Exports today 23,702 making 5,046,196 so far this season. Port receipts 29,873. United States port stocks, 4,913,583.

COLLEGE sports will lay seige upon the winter sporting public this week-end with a determined and savory program of activities, in the shape of basket ball and boxing. Beginning tonight Columbus, Catholic and Maryland will make their local debuts in the rings, in that order, and the field will bristle with basket ball games of promised high caliber.

Columbus University's greatest claim to sports notice, its boxing team, makes its bow to local followers of the resin game tonight against Washington and Jefferson, of Washington, Pa., on the stage of the Strand Theater, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Dick O'Connor, motivating genius behind the Columbus fighters, has culled a fancy hitting team from among the students and promises a warm reception for the leather-brandishing Pennsylvanians.

The Old Line courtmen, carrying well their heavy title of champions of the Southern Conference, will meet the undefeated basket ball team of the University of North Carolina Saturday night.

Maryland to Meet W. & L. Boxers.

Following the game Maryland's leather slinging huskies will square off against the boxing team of Washington and Lee University. The two crowd-gatherers will be fittingly presented in Ritchie Coliseum, foremost sports structure in this region of the country.

Vying for interest will be Georgetown's attempt to break into a local winning habit in basket ball at the expense of Western Maryland. The game will be played at Tech High, and the mesmerized Hoya crew appears fated to come through successfully.

Tomorrow night, Catholic University's rugged boxers, aided by the "demotion" of Danny Pyne from a heavy to an even better light-heavy, meet City College, of New York, at C. U.'s giant gym. Veteran to the core, Catholic's team will have to step to the limit to accomplish a victory over the sturdy New Yorkers. Pyne, undefeated in heavy ranks last year, scales at 172 this year and Coach LaFond feels that he is giving too much weight for the goliath class. The rest of the team will be Frank Stines, Harry DiGiacomo, Stapleton, and Miro. Bill Calabrese will supplant Johnny de Pasquale in the Card line-up.

Strayer's to Meet Bliss.

Georgetown's track team runs in the Millrose games in New York, Saturday night, against the best in the East. Al Kelly, national indoor 60-yard champion, is held Georgetown's chief scoring hope.

Besides Maryland boxing and basket ball, and Georgetown's track competition, Saturday night will see Catholic's tossers play Loyola in Baltimore, Bliss tangle with Wilson Teachers, at Tech, and Gallaudet play host to Temple College of Pharmacy.

GARDEN'S PROFITS SHOW INCREASE

the depression, is an indicator of what is to be expected throughout the country." Johnston continued. "There has been a decided slump in boxing for the past two years, largely because of poor matchmaking in general, and because of lack of harmony between boxers, managers, promoters and athletic commissions. This situation is being cleared up—because of necessity."

Johnston declared that relations between the Garden and the New York Boxing Commission are better now than at any time during the Garden's history. The matching of Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey for the world's title in June has resulted from this harmony.

TEAM MANAGER WANTED.

Dick Weatherall, athletic officer of Washington Police Post, No. 29, American Legion, is seeking a pilot for the post's entry in the 1932 Legion Baseball League. He can be reached at Lincoln 3089 after 4:30 p. m. or at No. 9 Precinct during the day.

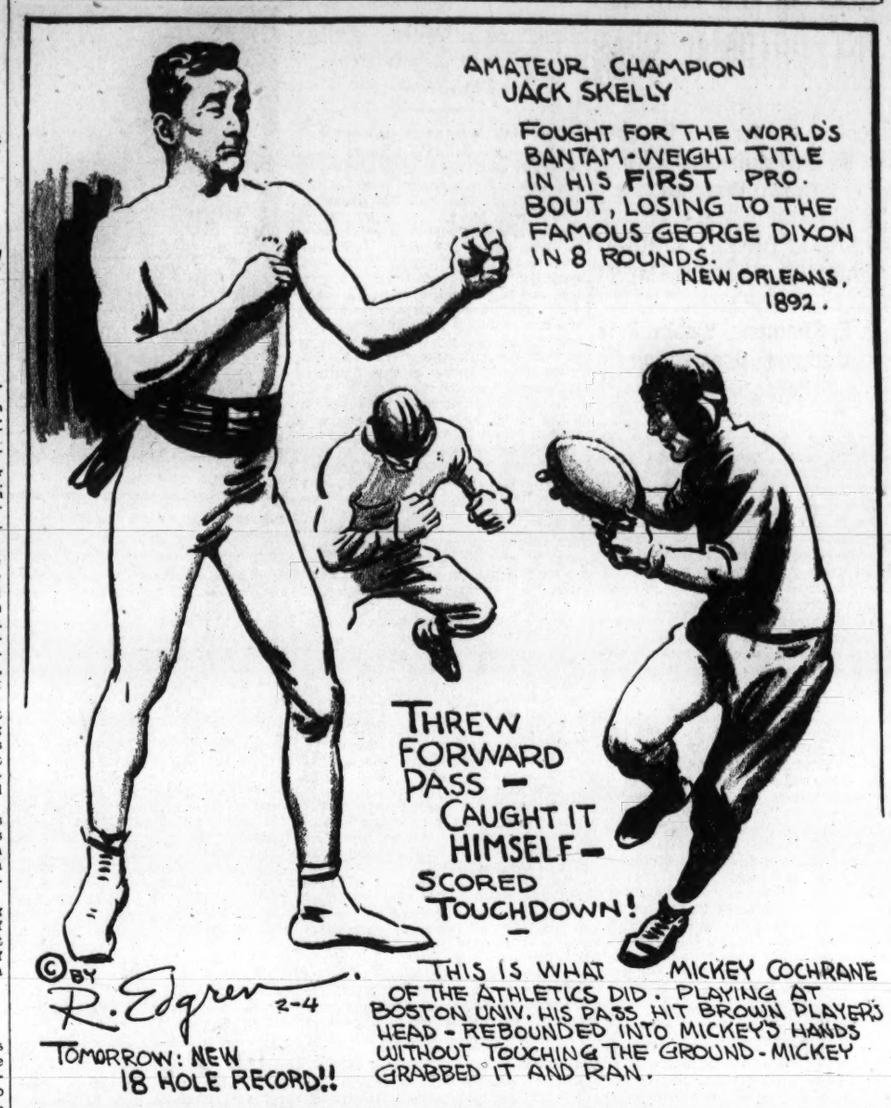
MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren



Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE first weekly luncheon of the infant association that binds the alley operators together will be held today at 1 p. m., at the Olmsted Grill. The discussion, which will follow, is expected to revolve around the fate of the National Duckpin Congress.

The consensus of opinion among those closely associated with the game is that ways and means must be found to save the congress. The leading alley owners of this city have already signified their willingness to do everything within their power to help. The chief problem confronting the congress seems to be converting alley operators and individual bowlers all over the country, and especially in the East, to the cause. If all alleys were registered in the organization, and all duckpin enthusiasts joined, it would be able to stand on its own feet.

Certainly the congress has conducted the game in a most satisfactory manner. Bowlers have come to rely on it in matters pertaining to official records, in arranging intercity matches, and other forms of competition. It was the opinion of one observer that the only improvement desirable at this time was the manner of conducting the national championship matches. As it is, the owner of the alley where the championship is to be staged, must hustle to obtain entries in order to save the title matches from becoming a "flop." This person suggested that the cities bid for the championships, as do cities where the ten-pin game thrives, and the matches be awarded the city guaranteeing the highest number of entries. The idea sounds practicable.

It was our privilege to witness a one-man bowling, ice skating, wrestling and hulahula dance show yesterday. It happened at the Recreation alleys in the early afternoon. The individual concerned obtained a firm grip on his first ball and glared menacingly at the set-up with a stance similar to that employed by Jim Londos when facing an opponent in the wrestling ring. He then moved cautiously to the foul line and thumped the ball on the alley, and after releasing the sphere slid about two feet over the line. In attempting to regain his balance he struggled like a kid taking his first ice-skating lesson and just as the ball crashed into the pins he jiggled his hips like a shimmy dancer. But he rolled a game of 106 and another of 122.

Four tardy bowlers rolled their first block of five games in the Suburban Sweepstakes at Bethesda last night. The men and their scores are Jim Collins, 84, 131, 118, 135, 117—585; George Isemann, 118, 114, 125, 142, 118—617; Tom Walker, 105, 97, 94, 105, 109—510; Bill Miller, 119, 123, 121, 117, 127—607.

Young & Simon deserved to lose one of its games with the Rinaldi Tailors in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike, but the two others it lost were tough ones. The Tailors' scores were 555, 576, 604, while the losing team rolled games of 550, 565 and 566. Ben Hare's 379 set, and Ollie Pacini's 144 took the cake, or whatever it is they give the prize winners in the National Capital.

Watson and Sperling, a pair of jolly old Englishmen, captured the individual honors in the Bureau of Standards loop at Columbia. Watson had a set of 371, while Sperling had a game of 138 to his credit. B. T. U. rolled a set of 1,619 to win two from the Chemists. The latter's only victory was scored on a 589 game. The Technologists, Engineers and Industrialists copped the deciding games from Ceramists, Mimeos and Files.

We almost slipped up on a couple of noteworthy Ladies' District League scores, namely, Margaret Leaman's 345 set and 134 game, and Mrs. Jarrett's 132 game.

Hecht's Annxe was one better than all Five Greeks in the King Pin Business Men's League.

Ollie Clark led his Identity Team into first place in the A. G. O. Men's League by winning all three games of its mtach with Files at Lucky Strike. Ollie did himself proud with a set of 346. Marquard's 136 game was high for the evening. Organization copped the team game prize with 539, while team set honors were accorded Identity with its 1,549.

If your name happened to be Hurley, or if you rolled with the West Washington Baptist Team, in the Georgetown Church League, you were O. K. last night at Arcadia. A game of 131 and set of 353 was credited to Hurley, while scores of 571 and 1,608 were rolled by the team.

Action was brisk in section 2 of the North of Washington League at Silver Spring. Frank Appler carted away the individual game trophy with a score of 133, and Francis Bergman led his team to a three-game win over Geary-Johnson, with a set of 361. The team, incidentally, had a score of 1,621. A game of 560 enabled Forsythe's Drug Store to take the odd one from Southern Railway. Victor Flower Shop, Swann's Service and Independent Oil were one-game winners over Anderson's Cafe, Langdon Mills and Silver Spring Firemen.

Rolling a record game of 602, the Colonials defeated Washington No. 2 by a 2-to-1 score in the Nautical League at Columbia. George Nash's 152, and Tom Ryder's 369 bagged the individual laurels. Potomac No. 1 rolled a 1,560 set, but dropped the odd one to Drifters No. 2. Drifters No. 1 made a clean sweep of its match with Washington No. 1, and Bonzal did the same to Washington No. 2. Washington No. 3 was one game in the red after meeting El Dorado.

Mackie's 137 game and Hunter's 363 set were prize-winning scores in the C. and P. loop at Lucky Strike. The Coin Box is just a bit fuller today because of its game of 593 and set of 1,674.

It was a wild night for the teams rolling under the banner of the Ladies District League. King Pin, after dropping the first game to the Bill Woods at Lucky Strike, rallied to win the final two. It also rolled a game of 580, which smashed all previous records made by women's teams in league competition. But not long after the John Blick's tallied 588 pins in winning a single game from Deal's Service at the Columbia drives. Convention Hall took the odd one from Lucky Strike on the latter's home alleys, Columbia was one better than Recreation, and Georgetown whitewashed Takoma Park in the other matches.

The honor roll for the night includes Reeva Banks, who is now the proud possessor of a record by virtue of her 152 game; Anne Ford, who punished the pins for a set of 386; Polly Sugrue, who rolled a game of 123 and set of 351; Sarah Updike, whose three-game total was 340, and last, but by no means least, the old reliable, Lorraine Gulli, who busted the Brunswicks for a game of 135 and set of 356.

The teams that make up the Commercial League went in for home economics in a big way at Convention Hall last night, and when they had finished cooking their first meal it turned out to be a swell kettle of fish. Jack Wolstenholme, of Hecht, and Paul Lawhorn, of Call Carl, tied for the game honors with 142, while Brad Mandley, of Kann's, and Charley Young, another of the Call Carl group, were deadlocked for the set laurels at 369. Perhaps Carl didn't hear you boys, call a little louder the next time. Convention Hall was overpowered by the Call Carl crew and thrown for a 2-1 loss. The victors registered a game of 587 and set of 1,699. Fitzpatrick's Service Station saved Kann's the trouble of working for its three game win by forfeiting, and Edmonds and Hecht took the odd ones, which curiously enough are even when you think of it, from Briggs and C. and P.

W. M. ENTERS FULL TEAM AT C. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Feb. 4. With an all-star array of William and Mary varsity and frosh track men Coach Scrap Chandler, leader of the Indian runners, will enter a full team in the third annual indoor track and field meet of the Catholic University at Washington, February 27.

The freshmen aggregation, led by Henry Little, brilliant cinder artist from Maury High School, who is the holder of three State records, a group of all-Tidewater records, and almost a complete track team in himself, is expected to give the varsity team, which includes such performers as Wink Johnson, Mooch Smither, and Billy Renn, all record holders, much aid in the attempt to bring intercollegiate cup to William and Mary.

Last year Johnson was the only Indian runner at the Catholic University meet. He distinguished himself and William and Mary by his work in the Ryan "1,000" race in which he came in for a close second behind Ray Conger, the celebrated club runner. This year the meet is open to collegiate runners only and will consist of intercollegiate varsity events: Invitation events, open events, for frosh and varsity; the District of Columbia A. A. U. championship, and high school and prep school events.

Two relays will be staged. The Indian varsity relay team will consist of Hart, Hemmingway, Clarke, Upson and Penello, according to the announcement given out here by Coach Chandler. The frosh team will include Little, Talley, Bishop, Meyriam, and Cifelli. Individual medals, point trophies and the intercollegiate cup will compose the prizes.

Emerson Bows, 32-12, To Woodberry Forest

Woodberry Forest, Va., Feb. 3.—In a rather slow game, the Woodberry Forest Basket Ball Team ran roughshod over the Emerson School quintet here today. The final score was 32 to 12. At no time during the game was Emerson able to break Woodberry's lead. The score at the half stood Woodberry 16, Emerson 12.

BUILDING OF SCHOOL NEAR PETWORTH FOR COLORED PROTESTED

SPOKESMAN DECLARES MAP FOR AREA IN ERROR

Commissioners to Be Asked to Withhold Negotiations Pending Inquiry.

The largest delegation seen at a meeting of the Board of Education in three years crowded the board room at the Franklin School yesterday to object to the building of a colored school at Allison street and Rock Creek Church road northeast, on the border of the Petworth section.

Their appearance resulted in the board voting to ask the District Commissioners to withhold further negotiations in acquiring property for the school until the entire matter is investigated. The three colored members of the board, Dr. Hayden Johnson, Mrs. Mary McNeil and the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, voted against this motion.

The delegates, numbering about 75 citizens, representing a number of associations, burst into applause when a representative of a real estate company said his company is planning development of a white community which will do away with a number of colored shacks in the section.

Objects to Demonstration.

Dr. Bennett objected to this demonstration as "a grand stand play." Dr. Abram Simon, president of the board, observed that the board is not swayed by applause in making its decisions.

Arguments of the delegation were presented by Arthur W. Cline, of the Chillum Heights Citizens Association. He contended that the map used by school officials to show the number and location of colored children of school age in the area is in error, and that there are only 37 children in this class in the area. He also maintained that there is a marked exodus of colored persons from the community. The site for the new school, which will replace the Bates road school, is surrounded by white residents, he declared.

School officials claim that a new colored school is needed to accommodate colored children living north of Columbia road. There are many more colored children in the area than claimed by the citizens, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, declared.

Appropriation Allowed.

The motion to ask the commissioners to withhold further action was made by Henry Gilligan, who said that if he had known the circumstances he would not have voted for the school when the board approved it. This action was taken after Congress allowed an appropriation. Many citizens stated they did not know of this appropriation until two months ago.

Among the citizens associations represented by the delegation, in addition to Chillum Heights, were the Columbia Park, Petworth, Manor Park and J. R. Keene Parent-Teacher Association. The last demonstration at a board meeting took place three years ago when citizens clashed over the change of the Toner School into a colored health school. The delegates yesterday emphasized they had no wish to deprive colored citizens of their rights.

Maj. Granville Munson, of the judge advocate's office, appeared on behalf of parents of four mentally backward children who are excluded from further tuition from the Weightman School. Despite his appeal that these children be cared for in the public schools, the board approved Dr. Ballou's recommendation that the children be withdrawn. Mr. Gilligan opposed.

Abolition of Entire Class.

Dr. Ballou contended that the children can not profit from anything the public schools may try to do for them. The superintendent's recommendation was in line with regular ones he offered at board meetings, but yesterday's had heightened significance because it means abolition of an entire class made up by the four children. Responsibility of the children now rests with the Board of Public Welfare. An institution at Laurel, Md., is available to them.

The board discussed at length the problem of admitting nonresident pupils after Dr. Ballou presented a report, showing the crowded conditions in schools. The board is powerless to exclude these children who receive free tuition until a new law is drafted. It is expected that the board members will refer the problem to the District committees of Congress at hearings to take place soon.

At the close of the first term in January, 1932, the high schools showed an increased enrollment over 1931 of 1,117 children, and junior high schools an increase of 2,578. Elementary schools, because of a transfer of pupils in grades 7 and 8, to junior high schools, showed a decrease of 446 pupils.

More Accommodations.

This congestion persists despite additional accommodations, consisting of 79 new rooms in elementary schools and two new buildings and three additions in junior high schools, accommodating 2,320 additional pupils, Dr. Ballou pointed out. He referred to the question of nonresident pupils as "again pressing for consideration," and urged the board to decide upon a course of action.

At the request of Mr. Gilligan, chairman of the legislative committee, the board instructed the committee to amend the free text book bill to provide for free books for night schools. The amendment will be submitted to the Commissioners and thence to Congress.

DEALER CONVICTED IN MAGAZINE SALE

Subject to $500 or Year in Jail; Many Others Due to Plead Guilty.

Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh yesterday scored another victory in his campaign to drive indecent magazines from the city when a police court jury of five women and seven men decided, after a 20-minute deliberation, that George J. Mandes, 500 G street northwest, was guilty of offering for sale an indecent publication.

Two of the three banned magazines have now officially been held to be indecent by police court juries. The third magazine has not yet been tested by a jury decision. It is expected that a case involving the third will come up next week.

As a result of his conviction, Mandes is subject to a fine of $500 or a year in jail, but because he had not been warned of the contents of the magazine, no such penalty will likely be dealt out.

Painting a picture of a "family circle" Mr. Keogh, in his argument to the jurors, asked them to consider if they would want "your 7 or 12 year old daughter to come to the table and discuss the rot, the indecent matter she had seen in this magazine.

"I ask you to protect the youth of this comunity from the suggestive pictures, postures and written inscriptions in this periodical. Just imagine children getting hold of this magazine and learning what its various indecent 'jokes' mean."

Pointing to specific drawings and their captions, Mr. Keogh asked the jurors if they would substitute "those drawings in the place of any pictures you now have hung in your home. Would you want your friends to come into your house and see those things on the wall?" he asked.

Information coming to the prosecutor yesterday was that many of the 133 dealers arrested in the drive are planning to enter pleas of guilty to having for sale the various magazines. Now that test cases have been won by the Government in two of the three issues involved, those taken in the police drive are planning to throw themselves on the mercy of the court.

Mandes was tried before Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

Colored Night Schools Show Enrollment Gain

Colored night schools, according to announcement yesterday by C. O. Lewis, director, gained 312 in the midyear 1932 enrollment over that of the previous year, with a total of 3,194 as contrasted with 2,882 in 1931. The high school enrollment is 1,703, with 1,149 students at Shaw, and 554 at Armstrong. The former school is crowded, while the latter has accommodations for more students in vocational subjects.

Elementary classes can also accommodate more students. They are enrolled in elementary grades at Armstrong, 118; Bell, 131; Briggs, 17; Burrville, 103; Deanwood, 39; Francis, 158; Garnett-Patterson, 798; Lovejoy, 127.

Man Gets 60-Day Term On Rum-Sale Conviction

Acting on complaints from boss workmen that others on the new House Office Building structure were getting liquor on the job, police arrested Isaac Pollard, colored, yesterday on a charge of sale and possession.

Policeman P. E. Ambrose, of the First Precinct, testified in Police Court that he made two purchases from Pollard. Judge Isaac R. Hitt gave the prisoner a sentence of 60 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Police Searcher Finds Missing Lad in Movies

With some of the self-reliance evidenced by his namesake, "Old Tippacanoe," in hunting the wily Tecumseh, 5-year-old William Henry Harrison went to a movie yesterday afternoon.

About 3 o'clock his mother missed him from the Harrison home, at 5812 Seventh street northwest. She went to the Sixth Precinct police station and enlisted officers in a search which was fruitless until the Colony Theater was visited.

There William Henry was found perched up in a seat, completely absorbed in its cinema. It was not determined whether he paid or crashed the gate.

BICENTENNIAL GROUP STIRS HOUSE CLASH

Bride and Patman Engage in Exchange on Plan for Incorporation.

Attempt to amend a bill to incorporate the District Bicentennial Commission, which failed of passage last week in the House, led to exchange of words yesterday between Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride and Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas.

At a House District committee meeting, Representative Patman proposed to further amend the measure, which already had been patched up to meet objections raised on the House floor. He sought to bar corporations in which any commission director was interested from profiting through a concession let by the commission.

Corporation Counsel Bride, who represents the Commissioners at every District committee hearing, said the restriction if rigorously applied would prevent purchases from the National Electric Supply Co. and even the use of telephones.

Ordered Favorably Reported.

He declared Congress is trying to "hog-tie" the commission, adding:

"We would rather not have any bill at all."

The bill to settle claims of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway Co., arising from removal of its tracks in the Mall, was ordered held over again after Representative Allard H. Gasque (Democrat), South Carolina, objected to paying the company any damages.

He read a brief opposing the move as establishing a dangerous precedent. Local traction companies who have been forced to reroute their tracks in the neighborhood of the Capitol might seek similar relief, he declared. The Comptroller of the Currency has stated informally that Federal building funds can not be used to pay the company, he said.

Action Is Deferred.

No action was taken, although Corporation Counsel Bride explained that under agreement between the Treasury Department and the railway company the line understood it would be compensated for abandoning its tracks.

Six bills on which a favorable report was taken included measures authorizing the tax assessor to qualify as an expert in condemnation proceedings, protecting union labels, giving the police and fire trial boards authority to subpena witnesses, speeding up the taking over of condemned property in the District, and providing for improvement of Georgia avenue north of Princeton place.

The measures will be laid before the House Monday—District day.

Commerce Division Aroused Over Parking Restrictions

Headlines may shriek of war clouds in the Far East, but a problem most vexing at the particular moment to automobile owners among the thousands of employes of the Department of Commerce is where they will park each working day.

All streets within a half-mile radius of the new building housing Commerce Department activities are restricted as regards parking to either one or two hour limits. Then many of the streets outside of this radius require the shifting of the machine at 4 p. m. to give greater carriage capacity to the streets during the late rush hours.

A strong movement is understood to be planned among the Commerce personnel to bring the matter to higher authorities. It is expected that shortly a petition of some sort will be sent to Secretary Lamont asking his aid.

The automobile owners among the Commerce personnel say that since the park police took jurisdiction of much of the parking space near the department building, tickets have been distributed in a "big way." The resultant fines are proving an irritable drain on their salaries and they are quite exercised over the situation. If they ask leave to desert their desks for a while, the clerks say, it causes them to lose valuable time in handling their daily quota of work.

One assistant chief of a division in the department received two tickets yesterday, despite the fact that he had left his desk twice to shift his car in an effort to avoid the police summons.

GAMBLING HABITUES MAY FACE ARRESTS

Senators Also Favor Bill to Padlock Houses of Chance.

Frequenters of gambling establishments would be liable to arrest and the padlock law extended to gaming establishments under two bills favorably reported yesterday by the police and fire subcommittee of the Senate District committee.

Both measures, stiffening gaming penalties in the District, were approved quickly, following indorsement by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover. Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, asked one question before the vote was taken. He wanted to know whether the measures would apply to rich and poor alike. The District attorney assured him they would.

"I felt last year that some of the citizens were unduly excited over one phase of gambling which relates to poor and disregarded gambling done by millionaires in hotels," Senator Copeland said. "I think we ought to travel with equal foot."

Boards Called Futile.

A bill to empower police and fire trial boards to compel attendance of witnesses was approved by Senator Robert D. Carey's subcommittee over vigorous objections of Senator Copeland.

"I hate all this third degree stuff," Senator Copeland said. "This is only an extension of it. I don't think it's proper to give the Police and Fire Trial Boards that much power."

Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride said that without that power the boards are a "fiasco."

"The situation as it is now is laughable," Corporation Counsel Bride said. "Why, witnesses now can come before our boards and thumb their noses at us."

Pension Bills Deferred.

Senator Copeland said the committee would have to pass the bill over his objection.

"It will only be a matter of four or five years before a citizen will have no rights at all," he said.

The committee held over bills extending the annual leave in police and fire departments from 20 to 30 days, and granting pensions to widows and children of police and firemen who die in the line of duty.

Mr. Bride said the Commissioners are awaiting a report from the Bureau of the Budget on the pension bill. He said they are afraid the bill increasing annual leave would involve a large expenditure and necessitate additional taxation. For that reason, he said, they are opposed ot it

Suicide Ruling in Death Of Auditor Is Contested

Two verdicts of suicide returned by a coroner's jury after inquests into the death of Harry D. Kizer, War Department auditor, were overruled by the Treasury Department Beneficial Association, mutual life insurance organization for Government employes, it was announced yesterday.

Consequently, a check for $750, the full amount of the policy held by Kizer, 35, was forwarded to his widow, Mrs. Grace S. Kizer. Inasmuch as the policy was less than a year old, the suicide decisions would have made it contestable legally, it was explained. Frank Birgfield, counsel for the association, after a review of testimony at the inquests, held there was no evidence of suicide.

Attendance Marks At Auto Show Fall

7,248 Are at Exhibition; Dodge Is Next Car to Be Awarded.

All existing attendance records were broken last night at the Auto Show when 7,248 persons crowded in Washington Auditorium.

A two-door De Soto sedan was awarded to Vernon I. Richardson, of 4811 W street northwest.

Mr. Richardson was not at the show when the announcement was made, but officials notified him by telephone. Tonight's gift car will be a Dodge four-door sedan.

Tuesday a four-door Studebaker sedan was awarded to Mrs. Hazel R. Peter, of 828 Flower avenue, Takoma Park.

Newsboy Forfeits $5 On Police Court Count

Frank O'Connell, 17 years old, of 417 Hobart place northwest, forfeited $5 in Police Court yesterday on a charge of violating the police regulations governing the crying of papers for sale in a residential neighborhood.

Policeman W. M. Malone, of the Ninth Precinct, arrested the boy in the Northwest section, where, it was asserted, he proclaimed the papers he was selling to be extras when they were merely regular editions.

MAN, 29, HELPS SAVE SELF AFTER LEAPING OFF POTOMAC SPAN

Jobless Father of 3 Rescued by Policeman as Rush Crowd Watches.

TRAFFIC ON KEY BRIDGE JAMMED IN EXCITEMENT

R. E. Simmons, Victim, Is to Undergo Observation, Police Declare.

Leaping from the Key Bridge, an act he had often performed as a stunt, Richard Earle Simmons yesterday made what was reported as an unsuccessful suicide attempt during the height of afternoon traffic over the span.

According to his family, Simmons had dived from the bridge before on a number of occasions. He has also leaped from the old Aqueduct Bridge and is known as an expert swimmer and diver. He was employed on the Key Bridge during its construction and used to dive from it to win wagers.

Simmons, who is 29 years old and lives at 3241 N street northwest, has been out of work for several months. His three children have been put in a home and he has been despondent. Yesterday he left his home with a suitcase, which was not found after his leap.

After striking the water Simmons, who was uninjured, swam to an abutment and clung to it until rescued by Private L. D. Phelps, of the Traffic Bureau. The policeman was directing traffic at the M street end of the bridge when a man rushed up to him and told him of having seen the man leap.

Incident Jams Traffic.

Simmons was almost exhausted and suffering from cold, Private said, and could not have clung to the bridge much longer. Phelps put out in a boat and pulled Simmons from the water when his strength was almost gone.

Simmons was taken to Georgetown Hospital. Police said he would be removed to Gallinger for mental observation later. Traffic in both directions on the bridge was heavy and jammed for some minutes with persons attracted by the throngs staring over the railing. Arrival of police radio cars cleared the roadway.

Rum Car Speeder Gets Four Months

Driver, Whose Auto Hurt Woman, Held Also on Liquor Charge.

Pete Howard Ridley, 2701 Dumbarton avenue northwest, was given a sentence of 120 days in jail in Police Court yesterday when he was tried on a charge of driving his machine down Sixteenth street at an average of more than 60 miles an hour.

On another charge, that of transporting 40 gallons of liquor, Ridley was ordered held for the action of the grand jury.

Police said that Ridley was being pursued by Maryland authorities as he crossed the District line and started south on Sixteenth street. As he neared Meridian place northwest his machine struck another car, causing serious injury to Mrs. Bronson Thomas. A short distance away Ridley was captured by police.

Dr. Simon Will Celebrate 28th Year of Pastorate

Many of Other Faiths to Join Festivities Tomorrow.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

There are some men who seem never to grow old. Among them is Dr. Abram Simon, noted rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation. Every year he has an anniversary; yes, several of them—and some years he has quite a number of them. This year he will have three—his birthday, which comes on July 14, the day the Bastille fell; his wedding, which comes on August 5, and the next one will be his thirty-sixth; and his pastorate here, which comes tomorrow night, and marks the end of 28 years of labor in this flourishing vineyard of Jewry.

In commemoration of the event which is to be celebrated tomorrow evening there will be no particular kind of fireworks popped off or special brand of refreshments served. Indeed, this venerable young man either has not yet reached the fireworks and ice cream age or has passed beyond them. What actually will happen is that he will preach a sermon on looking forward—he has no eyes in the back of his head—and after the regular worship hour all of his friends will gather in the social rooms below to extend their congratulations to him and to his lovely lady, to whom he owes so much.

This is going to be no affair of the Jews, for the Jews and by the Jews. Dr. Simon is too much of an institution in the civic and social life of the community for the community to be denied the oportunity of sharing in the joy of his people over the passing of another milestone in his life and in his relations with them. So the invitation has publicly gone forth to his friends and to the friends of the congregation, regardless of creed and race, to come to the reception and take part in the festivities.

Washington has changed a great deal since that day in 1904 when the young rabbi came here to be the associate of the venerable man who was then passing from the stage of life. There are not half a dozen ministers now here who were in active pastorate here when he came; perhaps two or three Episcopal clergymen, the same number of Catholic priests, and Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, the minister of All Souls' Unitarian Church. Dr. Joseph Kelly, known far and wide as "Father" Kelly was then in the full flush of his remarkable ministry of 50 years at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, and the late Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, was a mighty fortress of his denomination in the Capital City.

In these 28 years Dr. Simon has seen the beautiful national churches of the several Protestant denominations spring up, and with them many Christian temples of lesser note. He has seen the great Cathedral of St. Albans move steadily on and on in its march toward completion.

Indeed his clearly seeing eyes have seen many changes in this community, physical changes of magnitude, but none, I dare say, has impressed him so much as the changes he has seen take place in his own congregation, which has been built up to such large numbers and power under his leadership. Those venerable fathers and mothers in Israel who first greeted him have nearly all passed on to Beulah Land, and their places have been taken by the young men of his own age who were then like himself first showing the mettle of their pasture.

So it would seem that as he sits quietly in his library today passing before his mind's eye the panorama of life through which he has lived in these past 28 years there will walk unobtrusively into the picture as it unrolls before him many a scene that will quicken his heart and many a figure that will revive memories both pleasant and sad.

Our rabbi, however, is not known in this community altogether as the spiritual leader of a great congregation and a great people. Without his asking he has had laid on his broad shoulders civic responsibility, which he has carried with high intelligence and a deep sense of duty. In the stern old Roman sense, anything that interests or concerns Rome is grist to his mill.

His tastes are so catholic and his spirit so little enthused with intolerance, that he is a much sought after speaker by other religious groups, and sometimes he is so daring as to read from his Hebrew Bible—otherwise known as the Old Testament—and challenge his hearers to find anything more beautiful in the New Testament.

No fair land gave this man birth. There came down to him from father to son the touch of the mighty hand of Old Hickory, a blessing which has made more than one man step out from mediocrity, the most notable one being another President, who was named for Gen. Jackson; and that was Andrew Johnson, also general. Dr. Simon did not become a general, and neither did he remain a Democrat, but all the same, "He's a jolly good fellow."

SENATE UNIT AGREES TO PAY-CUT STUDIES

Smoot Reverses His Position on Consideration of Three Borah Measures.

Reluctance of Senate committees to harbor Senator William E. Borah's three pay-cut bills underwent a complete about face yesterday, when the finance committee withdrew objections to consideration of the measures, and the civil service committee militantly sought jurisdiction. Still the Senate delayed action.

Ironically enough, the civil service group, which announced it was not only ready but willing to take up the bills, is headed by a man aggressively opposed to any reduction in Federal salaries—Senator Porter H. Dale (Republican), Vermont.

Senator Dale, who reiterated to The Post his emphatic objection to Government pay slashing, denied that fact had anything to do with his asking reference of the bills to his committee.

Question of Jurisdiction.

He said it was purely a question of jurisdiction—that if the civil service committee is empowered to consider retirement and reclassification legislation, it follows that Federal pay-cut proposals also should go before the group.

"At that, I think they would be more likely to receive a favorable report from us than from the finance committee," he said.

"Sentiment on the civil service committee is by no means unanimous against pay reduction. I believe the finance committee is more of one opinion on that point than we are."

Smoot Reverses Position.

Chairman Reed Smoot (Republican), Utah, of the finance committee, who Monday said his committee had all it could do without taking up the pay-cut measures, reversed his position yesterday.

He told The Post he had no objection now to considering the bills. He said he had gained the impression the bills already had been referred to his committee anyway, though the record does not show this.

The three bills, providing for cuts in the salaries of Farm Board members, Cabinet, senators, representatives and Federal employes receiving above $5,000, were brought back to the Senate Monday by Chairman Wesley L. Jones, of the appropriations committee, who asked they be sent to another committee. Senator Borah said the finance committee ought to take them.

Insurance Man Dies After Collapse in Street

Lewis M. Ryce, 60, of 717 Newton place northwest, was pronounced dead by Emergency Hospital physicians yesterday morning, after collapsing in front of 1319 F street northwest. Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, issued a certificate of death through natural causes.

Mrs. Mae E. Ryce, widow of the dead man, last night had not completed funeral arrangements. Mr Ryce had been connected for a number of years with a local life insurance office.

PATRICK CRITICIZES MERGER OPPOSITION

Charges Clayton and Keech Have Changed Stand on Traction Plan.

Discrepancies in testimony of William McK. Clayton and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech in their stand on merger legislation this year and before the last Congress, were charged yesterday by Chairman Mason M. Patrick of the Public Utilities Commission, in letters to every member of the Senate District committee.

Mr. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and People's Counsel Keech picked the commission's new merger bill to pieces at hearings before the Senate District committee Tuesday.

At that meeting, Mr. Clayton urged the wisdom of a Federal rather than a District charter for the merged company. Referring to hearings on an almost identical bill at the last session of Congress, Maj. Gen. Patrick said:

"Mr. William McK. Clayton distinctly stated that while it had been suggested "that a Federal charter be granted the new company rather than incorporation under the Code of Law of the District of Columbia, we do not propose that here now. He did suggest that before the articles of incorporation were finally recorded, they should be subject to the approval of the Public Utilities Commission."

Chairman Patrick stated that one of the amendments he offered Tuesday was in exact compliance with the Clayton suggestion.

Maj. Gen. Patrick continued:

"At that same time, Mr. Clayton dwelt upon free transfers between buses and cars and upon the matter of reduced fares for school children. Mr. Clayton was asked if he had any other objections to the measure, or any other suggestions to offer, and he said that he had none.

"The people's counsel, Mr. Keech, appeared before the House committee in its hearings upon the same measure. The only things which he discussed were the provision for continuing the existing fare for two years and the reduced fares for school children. He raised no objection, whatever, to any other features of the measure, and indicated, in fact, his approval of it as then drafted.

"As was pointed out yesterday, the measure now before you differs in but two particulars from the similar measure which was before the Seventy-first Congress. 1. The provision with reference to reduced fares for school children was eliminated for the reason given. 2. No mention of the fares to be charged by the merged company. The reason for this was also given at length."

Maj. Gen. Patrick indicated that the commission now concurred with Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, that provision should be made for protection of the minority stockholders.

Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, of the Senate District committee, expects to hold further merger hearings next week. Chairman Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, of the House District public utilities subcommittee, said further hearings will be held by that body.

RATE ROW BELIEVED FORCING MANY CABS TO QUIT OPERATIONS

Only 2,000 Certificates of Titles Issued; 5,000 Taxis on First of Year.

CONDITIONS IN TRADE ARE LABELED CHAOTIC

Many Complaints Are Made on Overcharging, but Proof Is Difficult.

The chaotic condition of taxicab operation, perhaps coupled with the threatened meter requirement and the strict regulations provided in the same order, apparently has driven a large number of the more than 5,000 cabs in operation the first of the year out of business, it was learned yesterday.

Upon learning from Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer that only approximately 2,000 certificates of titles had been issued to hackers the Public Utilities Commission began a tabulation of the number of cabs they have on record.

The commission is also prepared to insist upon the arrest of any cab drivers who park alongside downtown hotels, particularly the Willard, the Washington, and the Mayflower, either with H or L tags because of the recently adopted policy of limiting livery operators strictly to livery business.

Up until the deadline of 1931 license plates the Black & White and Yellow Cab Co. and the Mayflower Taxicab & Sightseeing Co. maintained their cabs along the curbs in front of the three hotels with which they had arrangements. As there are no hacking stands along these curbs now, police are empowered to arrest the drivers who can not prove that they have been specially ordered for a specific patron.

While the meter order is tied up by litigation in the District Supreme Court, numerous reports are reaching the commission that an almost chaotic condition is prevalent among the cab operators because of the uncertainty of both the outcome of the litigation and the authority of the utilities body.

While practically all cabs in Washington at present are being operated on the flat-rate or zone system, and most of them on the 20-40-60 cent rate, there is an obvious lack of uniformity in the matter of boundaries of the three zones. As a consequence the average patron is at the mercy of the driver after he has gone a few blocks outside the congested area.

Overcharging Alleged.

Numerous complaints of overcharging have come to the commission of recent weeks, but prosecution and conviction in such cases are difficult unless the charge was clearly excessive.

One operator in particular has been the object of frequent complaints though he has always been able to justify the charge. The reason for the complaints lies in the fact that his cab is equipped with a meter that is operated on the old meter basis of 25 cents for the first half-mile and 10 cents for each succeeding half-mile.

Representative James V. McClintic, of Oklahoma, complained that he had been charged $1.55 for a trip from the House Office Building to the Shoreham Hotel. The commission investigated and found the charge approximately correct and informed him that the charge would be only 60 cents under the new meter rates. Under the average zone system, however, this trip would be in the city proper and would be made for 20 cents even though it is 4 miles.

Proponents of the meter and the zone systems of operation charge each other with responsibility for the present chaos. People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, stanch defender of the flat-rate system, argues that the zone cab brought the present cheap rates and has not been given a fair trial under proper regulation with uniform zone boundaries.

Advocate Meters.

Officials of the commission contend, on the other hand, that it is impossible to work out a system of zones that will be practicable and equitable. They argue that only through a meter will both the driver and the patron be assured of fair treatment. Furthermore, they claim to have on file statements from 700 independent cab drivers expressing a desire to return to the meter basis.

All agree, however, that the greatest need in the way of regulation of the local cab industry is compulsory insurance for all operators. Such a law, for which a bill is now pending in Congress, would automatically eliminate most of the irresponsible operators as well as protect the public.

Local civic bodies are becoming more worried as the controversy continues because of the fear that Washington Bicentennial visitors will be at the mercy of unscrupulous cab drivers this spring at least. For, whichever way the court decides the issue, the commission has already postponed the effective date of the meter order for 60 days from the day the decision is rendered.

Army Ambulance Crash Injures 3

Collision With Woman's Auto Hurls Vehicle Into Signal Pole.

Four soldiers, a sergeant and three privates of Fort Myer narrowly escaped serious injury late yesterday when an Army ambulance in which they were hurrying to Walter Reed Hospital, crashed into a traffic signal pole following a collision at Sixteenth and Monroe streets northwest.

The ambulance was conveying Master Sergt. Frank Lankton, U. S. A., retired, who had been taken ill at Fort Myer. At Sixteenth and Monroe streets the ambulance was struck by the auto driven by Mrs. E. B. Bagby, of 1448 Park road northwest. The impact forced the ambulance onto the sidewalk and it crashed into the pole.

Private Robert Murphy, the driver, and Sergt. Lankton were bruised and a passing car took them to Walter Reed. Private Gus Rudolph and Private Patrick D. Williamson, also occupants of the ambulance, escaped injury.
